BY PARKE BROWN.

Illinois voters — possibly nearly three million of them — go to the primary polls today with most of their acute interest centered on the fights in both parties over the governorship nominations.

Thruout the country the national scale politicians are watching the results of the presidential preference voting, and the long ballots include contests ranging from those for United States senator to Chicago ward committeemen.

But state-wide feeling and excitement have been aroused almost exclusively by the race between Dwight H. Green and Richard J. Lyons for the Republican nomination for governor and the much more bitter battle between Harry B. Hershey and Lieut. Gov. John Stelle for the same nomination by the Democrats.

Machine Enraged at Stelle.

Stelle's crescendo climax to his campaign—his announcement in Springfield yesterday that he has taken over the powers of Henry Horner and is now acting governor of the state—multiplied the cheers of the anti-machine element and the rage of both statehouse and Chicago city hall organizations.

This dramatic coup was in extreme contrast to the quiet, relatively peaceful windup of the preliminary contest among members of the G. O. P. family.

All major contenders o- the Republican side closed their electioneering with farewell messages to the primary voters of the party which dwelt more on the welfare of the state and nation than upon differences among them that developed at the height of their campaigning.

Emphasis Placed on Contest.

This was true of both Green and Lyons and also of Wayland Brooks and Congressman Ralph E. Church, rivals for the Republican nomination for election to the United States senate next fall. Among their backers there were intense feelings, but they were those of contest rather than those of combat.

Stelle's bold stroke also threw into the background his two associates on the insurgent Democratic ticket, State Representaitve Benjamin S. Adamowski, who chose to pit himself against United States Senator James M. Slattery, he of "strongbox" fame, and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, who refused to submit when the organization bosses threw him off their slate.

Running Mates Back Stelle.

His running mates were backing Stelle in every move that he made during the last month and they were among those cheering most loudly

STILL WAITING IN THE CYCLONE CELLAR

It's Tough Race in 22d, and No Tricks Barred

East St. Louis, Ill., April 8 [Special].—A. L. Bedel, known far and wide as a former beer barrel inspector, has no edge. Even his campaign manager, Chandu the Great, a former magician, isn't sure Bedel will win the Democratic nomination for congressman from the 22d district tomorrow. Here are the fellows Bedel has to beat:

George Hary, ex-boss of a softball team that played its games in the saddle—on goats. [All but the pitcher—he played barefoot.]

Henry N. Frees, former circus clown who promises to walk 14 miles from Belleville to East St. Louis on his hands if he loses.

Edward M. Schaefer, who already has the job and the blessing of the Washington administration.

Weather to Suit Everybody.

Bedel wants to go to Washington to solve the weather problem. It's easy, he says; Call January July and swap the names of the rest of the months. Presto! Warm weather in the winter and vice versa.

Hary, the goat impresario, began a filibuster against Congressman Schaefer Saturday night in a hall above a saloon. No one came, so Hary set up a loudspeaker and made 'em listen!

When he ran out of conversation he sang "The Little Man Who Wasn't There." That, he said, was Congressman Schaefer. Hary averred that Schaefer never has made a speech, obtained passage of a bill or allowed sessions to interfere with his fishing in the eight years he has been a congressman.

Buns on Cough Drops and Beer.

When Hary's voice got husky, his wife fixed it up with cough drops and beer. He went to sleep after 52 hours and his supporters are afraid they can't wake him up in time to vote.

Frees, the ex-clown, has been delivering his campaign addresses standing on his head. He promises to stand Washington on its head by putting over the Townsend plan in a speech from the floor of the house—and he means the floor.

NEWEST MICROSCOPE HELD UP AS POSSIBLE GERMAN WAR TERROR

Cincinnati, O., April 8 (AP).—A new German microscope which has photographed atoms so small they never before had been seen, has been halted by the British blockade while en route to the United States, delayed by suspicions it might be some new scientific terror of war.

The inventor, who described the microscope today before the American Chemical society here, is Prof. Peter P. Debye of Berlin, director of the famous Kaiser Wilhelm institute and Nobel prize winner. He is a native of the Netherlands and now is on leave from Germany to lecture at Cornell university.

The instrument uses incandescent electrons, the smallest bits of matter, coming off a 30,000 volt tungsten wire, the same as X-rays are used to make shadows. Prof. Debye's instrument photographs hydrogen atoms, the smallest in the universe. About one minute suffices for a picture.

PLANE STRANDED IN A FOG WITH 12 PASSENGERS

New York, April 8 (AP).—Rain and fog gave the new $40,000,000 LaGuardia field its first aerial traffic jam tonight. Fifty-eight flights to and from the field were canceled and at one time half a dozen incoming planes were stacked up circling the field at different altitude levels waiting for a chance to come down.

One plane, TWA flight 10, which carried Actor Henry Fonda among its 12 passengers, circled the city for two hours before the control tower signaled it to land at Newark, N. J.

Pilot Eugene Klose of Kansas City, Mo., found the field there closed in by bad weather. He then flew on to the Harrisburg, Pa., airport, but lowlying clouds made a landing there too hazardous.

Klose finally set his ship down at the new auxiliary Cove Valley airport, 22 miles southeast of Altoona, Pa., at 9:49 p. m. The plane had left Pittsburgh at 3:25 p. m. Later the passengers resumed their trip to New York by train.

Charges Slush Money Used for Whoopee

Arnold L. Lund, a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said yesterday that he has learned something about the spending of Democratic slush funds raised by collecting 2 per cent of the monthly wages of state pay rollers. Lund exhibited photostatic copies of checks of the Iroquois Illinois league, fund raising agency superseded by the Illinoisans.

"My investigation shows that a goodly amount of the slush money extorted from scrub women and others in the state institutions purchased whoopee for the Democratic big shots," Lund said.

Payments for Whoopee.

"Not content with the buying of votes to keep themselves in power, the czars of the Democratic party chiseled the campaign funds for Havana cigars, barber shop service in their hotel rooms, and cleaning and pressing between rounds of drinks. I might add that the scrub women also paid for the drinks."

Check No. 372 of the Iroquois Illinois league, in the amount of $2,130, dated June 5, 1936, was made out to "Chester Rainey, manager" of the Fairfax hotel in Philadelphia. Lund said he learned that this was mailed three weeks before the Democratic national convention in 1936 as a drawing account for state administration leaders.

"Regular headquarters were in another Philadelphia hotel," Lund said.

Check Signed by Smith.

"To pay this single outrageous whoopee bill, three and one-half million citizens must go into stores and spend $1 each, paying 3 cents sales tax on each dollar. Then the Democrats turn around and take 2 per cent of the $106,500 collected for salaries."

The check was signed by the late F. Lynden Smith, director of public works, whose recent death still is shrouded in mystery; W. J. Walsh, state patronage boss for the Democratic party, and Samuel L. Nudelman, state director of finance, and member of the "bedside cabinet" of Gov. Horner.

Check No. 264, dated May 6, 1936, for $220.28, was to Dr. Allen D. Albert, who Lund said made speeches in the 1936 campaign.

SCANDINAVIA PORTS TAKEN; ARMY ENTERS COPENHAGEN

Norse Government Flees; Fight Ships Invading Oslo.

LONDON, April 9 (AP).—A special announcement of the German radio intercepted today by Reuters, British news agency, said German troops had invaded Denmark and Norway.

The agency only shortly before carried a dispatch from Paris saying that the radio at Oslo, Norway's capital, had announced the landing of German troops at Norwegian ports at 3 a. m. (8 p. m., Monday, Chicago time).

Germans "Protect" Countries.

Reuters said the following announcement was made by the German radio:

"The high command of the German army announces that in order to counteract the actions against Denmark and Norway (apparently the Franco-British mine laying along the Norwegian coast) and to prevent a possible hostile attack against these countries, the German army has taken these two countries under its protection. The strong forces of the German army have therefore invaded these countries this morning."

Norse Government Flees.

The intercepted Oslo radio report said the Norwegian government had abandoned its capital and was moving to Hamar, in central Norway, about 60 miles north of Oslo.

German forces were said to have occupied Bergen and Trondheim.

The invasion of Norway came shortly after shore batteries at Oslo fjord had repelled four warships, believed to be German, attempting to force an entrance to the water gateway to the capital.

Two Fleets Near.

Presumably the attack was from a German fleet, which earlier was reported steaming thru the Kattegat, near Denmark, from the Baltic in a northerly direction. However, British naval units also were numerous off Norwegian shores yesterday.

Amid heavy burst of cannon fire from the waships, one of which was reported to be a heavy cruiser, an air battle was reported to have taken place between Norwegian planes and foreign fighting aircraft above the dark gorge of Oslo fjord.

LONDON, April 9, Tuesday (AP).—A German navigation service broadcast, intercepted by Reuters, British news agency, said all important harbors and ports of Sweden had been mined early today by Germany.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, April 9, Tuesday, (Special).—German troops invaded Denmark at 5 o'clock this morning (10 p. m. Monday, Chicago time), crossing the frontier in South Jutland and landing soldiers in Copenhagen, the capital, according to reliable advices received here. German warships landed forces at Nybodg on Fuehnen Island, at Korsoer in Zeeland, and at Middelfart. German troopships moved into the Little Belt, between the mainland and Fuehnen, landing one heavy gun immediately.

Danish troops in Schleswig and at the Sonderborg garrison were reported retreating before the Germans. In Copenhagen there were none to oppose the Germans' march.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, April 9, Tuesday.—Postoffice operators have been trying unsuccessfully to get calls thru to Copenhagen since 7 a. m., when the service normally opens. As calls between London and all Scandinavian countries pass thru a central radiotelephone station at Copenhagen, attempts to communicate with other Scandinavian capitals also failed.

AIR HEROES FERRY GERMAN PLANES TO RUMANIANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 8.—German pilots who distinguish themselves in raids on shipping in the North sea or the British east coast are rewarded by being selected to deliver German warplanes to Rumania.

Twenty-two Messerschmitt pursuit ships and 30 Dornier bombers were flown here recently as part payment for Rumanian oil shipments to the reich. Planes, antitank and antiaircraft guns and arms of other types are used to pay for many Rumanian products sent to Germany.

Buys Bag for 4 Cents—Finds It Contains $810

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NANCY, France, April 8.—When Mr. Aubry, notary public of the nearby village of Martigny-les-Gerbonvaux died a few days ago it was decided to sell his belongings at public auction. Among the buyers was a peasant who picked up a bag of odds and ends for two francs [about 4 cents in American money]. When he got home and investigated the contents of the bag he found 40,000 francs [about $810]. The peasant returned the money to the auctioneer.

Gets Year in Jail for Promising a Job for $3

Cameron Boles, 43 years old, yesterday was sentenced to one year in the Bridewell by Municipal Judge Joseph B. Hermes for taking $3 from William Maloney, 945 West 54th street, on the promise of getting Maloney a truck driver's job. Boles, an ex-convict, has a record dating from 1922.

U. S. Envoy Ready to Take Over for Britain.

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, American minister to Norway, notified the state department tonight that the Norwegian foreign minister (Halvdan Koht) had informed her that Norway is at war with Germany.

The state department here issued the following statement:

"The American minister to Oslo, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, telegraphed to the department of state tonight that the foreign minister has informed her that the Norwegians fired on four German warships coming up Oslo fjord and that Norway is at war with Germany.

Envoy May Have to Flee.

"In response to a request by the British minister to Norway, the American legation at Oslo has been authorized to take over British interests in Norway in case he is obliged to evacuate."

The Norwegian minister to the United States, Wilhelm de Morgenstierne, was in conversation with the state department shortly after midnight. The department stirred quickly to activity and officials hurried to their offices. Across the street lights in the White House executive offices also burned, altho President Roosevelt was at his Hyde Park home.

Neutrality Action Studied.

There was no comment from officials here as to whether the President would take immediate steps to issue a proclamation under the neutrality act, adding Norway to the list of belligerents.

Such action undoubtedly would be coupled with a proclamation forbidding American ships to enter Norwegian waters. The present "combat zone" from which these vessels now are banned ends just south of Bergen, Norway.

When the state department issued its dispatch from Mrs. Harriman, the Norwegian minister said he had received no direct word yet from the government at Oslo.

Await Word on Denmark.

At that time, the state department lacked diplomatic information on the situation in Denmark. It became apparent that official news about that nation would be awaited before consideration of any neutrality proclamation concerning Norway.

There are 552 American citizens in Denmark, department records showed, along with 1,067 in Norway, and 1,752 in Sweden.

125 Ships in Fleet.

OSLO, Norway, April 9 (Tuesday) (AP).—Alarming reports were received here early today that 125 armed German ships, including a pocket battleship and heavy cruisers, were approaching Norwegian shores, perhaps to strike back at the British fleet which yesterday mined Norwegian waters and sank a German troopship with 300 of the 500 German soldiers aboard.

The Norwegian admiralty ordered every lighthouse on the coast blacked out. Norwegian radio stations from the Swedish coast to Bergen on the North sea were shut down.

Pocket Battleship in Armada.

Reliable sources said the German armada was made up principally of trawlers and coast guard ships, but also included one of the 10,000 ton pocket battleships, the Admiral von Scheer or the Luetzow [formerly the Deutschland], and several heavy cruisers and many destroyers.

Perhaps more mystifying even than the advance of the German warships on their undisclosed mission was the sinking yesterday by a British submarine of the German troop transport only four miles off Norway's southern coast.

Five hundred German infantrymen, cavalrymen, and airmen were aboard and 300 were killed or drowned. Also lost were the 80 horses aboard.

The reason for the German transport's presence in these waters was not immediately clear.

Protest to Empires.

Earlier, Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht told parliament that Norway had protested to both Paris and London against the mining of her waters at dawn yesterday. The empires hoped this sudden move would cut off Germany's Swedish ore shipments thru Norway's western coastal waters.

In a public statement Koht charged France and Britain with an "open breach of international law" and demanded that the mines "be removed at once and that the guard by foreign warships cease." Britain was patroling Norway's waters near the new mine fields, stating such action would be for 48 hours to warn away neutral vessels.

[An official British radio announcement heard in New York last night by the Columbia Broadcasting system said the British and French, as a result of their mines off Norway, have trapped seven German ships in the ore port of Narvik and another eight ships somewhere along the Norwegian coast.]

Koht charged Britain with violating a March 11 agreement which he said provides that all Norwegian goods, including contraband, could be sent from Norway to Germany. He said that not only would Norway demand removal of the mines but "reserves for herself the right to take any and all steps which may be necessary as a result of such infringement of Norwegian neutrality."

Then came news of the sinking of the German transport. Norwegian residents at Lillesand and Kristiansand, where survivors were landed by Norwegian schooners, said those brought ashore wore Germany army uniforms.

The transport was the 5,261 ton freighter Rio de Janeiro, normally out of Hamburg in the South American service.

Norwegian fishermen said the Germans began jumping overboard into the Skagerrak, entrance to the Baltic sea from the North sea, when the first British torpedo struck. Then the second torpedo was fired and many Germans were killed by flying débris as they swam in the water.

German Steamer Torpedoed.

There was more British-German naval activity in the vicinity, but details were vague. The German tanker Kreta reported she had been attacked by a submarine but still was afloat off Faerder, southern Norway. Norwegian officials said reports that the 12,000 ton German tanker Posidonia had been torpedoed and sunk grew out of the fact that the Kreta, apparently to conceal her identity, sent out the call letters of the Posidonia, which apparently still was afloat.

A Reuters, British news agency, dispatch from Oslo also reported that possibly 200 men were lost when an unidentified ship sank yesterday after a violent explosion off Lillesand, Norway. Sixteen survivors were rescued by a naval vessel, which also recovered 19 bodies. Other ships rescued 72 men and recovered 8 bodies.

[London reported Monday that the Greek steamer Oceania, 4,843 tons, was sunk, apparently by a mine. The location was not disclosed. One of the crew was missing; the survivors, five of whom were injured, were landed at a Southeastern British port.]

Mine Fields Heavily Guarded.

The mine fields which British ships planted off the Norwegian west coast yesterday were heavily guarded by British warships tonight so close that they could be seen from shore.

Some sources thought the mine laying might tempt German capital ships out for a naval engagement larger than any which has come in the war. Others thought Germany would react by hunting down British submarines concentrated off Bud, Bodo, and Stadtlandet, the three western Norwegian coastal points near where the mine fields were sown within the three mile limit.

[The British Broadcasting corporation, in a broadcast picked up by the Columbia Broadcasting system, described the mine fields as jutting for some distance out into the ocean. The field at Stadtlandet, one of Norway's westernmost points, sticks out six miles from shore and covers about 45 square miles, the B. B. C. said. The one at Bud projects "10 or 11" miles into the ocean, and covers about 35 square miles. That at Bodo, just south of Narvik, the port from which the Swedish ore moves to Germany during the winter, is the largest, a 100 square mile strip five miles wide and 20 miles long, according to the B. B. C.

[This last field "projects from the Norwegian coast in a northwesterly direction so as to leave a clear passage into West fjord, but compelling ships to pass well outside the territorial waters," the B. B. C. said. Narvik lies at the head of West fjord.]

Ships Kept in Port.

All ships of northern Norway were ordered to remain in port.

Whether Sweden had an inkling of the British action in mining Germany's route northward thru Norwegian waters was regarded as an interesting question in view of Sunday night's Stockholm announcement that stiffening defense measures in Sweden had been taken. Norway had no advance notice of the act.

It was pointed out here that if the Franco-British mines succeeded in stopping German shipping of Swedish ore along Norway's west coast, this war-vital supply still could be taken to Germany thru the Gulf of Bothnia in about a month when the gulf ice breaks up.

However, facilities at Lulea, the Swedish gulf port, would permit only limited shipments by this route, it was said, and ports at Svarton and Frejabolaget would require some time to be put in order to handle shipments.

British Dynamite Fleet Seized

(Story in adjoining column.)

Rumanian police yesterday seized a fleet of dynamite laden British barges at the Danube river port of Giurgiu. Germans charged the fleet was to have blown up a narrow Danube gateway and thus block a German supply line.

THE SKAGERRAK, SITE OF JUTLAND BATTLE, IS KEY TO BALTIC SEA

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Skagerrak, scene of yesterday's attack by foreign warships on Oslo, capital of Norway, where a German troopship was sunk yesterday by the British, is the scene of the world war's most famous naval engagement, the battle of Jutland.

The Skagerrak is a strategic arm of the North sea between Norway and Denmark. Leading from the North sea, the narrow stretch of water becomes known as the Kattegat as it threads the narrow expanse and islands between Denmark and Sweden into the Baltic sea. Thus the Skagerrak is the key to the Baltic sea. To the Germans the battle of Jutland is known as the battle of the Skagerrak.

The battle of Jutland took place at the western mouth of the Skagerrak on May 31, 1916. After Jutland the British fleet was undisputed master of the German navy, which remained bottled up in the Baltic.

The Skagerrak is about 140 miles long and 70 miles broad. It is shallow near the Danish shore, which is low and beset with sandbars, but toward the steep Norwegian coast it is deep, reaching a maximum of 443 fathoms.

HERE ARE SHIPS IN WHICH NAZIS' SEA HOPES REST

Oslo dispatches last night said the German armada off Denmark contained a pocket battleship and several heavy cruisers.

Janes' Fighting Ships, authoritative work on the world's navies, shows Germany has five 10,000 ton heavy cruisers—the Bluecher, Admiral Hipper, Prinz Euyen, Seydlitz, and another that formerly was the Leutzow. The name Leutzow was given on Jan. 25 to the pocket battleship Deutschland in order to preserve her old name for a mightier war vessel. The name of the fifth heavy cruiser was not announced.

Since the scuttling of the Admiral Graf Spee last Dec. 17 off Montevideo, Uruguay, Germany has had two 10,000 ton pocket battleships, the one now named Leutzow and the Admiral Scheer. One of them was reported damaged by air bombs on Sept. 4, 1939, in a British raid on Kiel.

LARGE SHIPS FIND AMPLE ROOM IN OSLO ANCHORAGE

Oslo, the capital of Norway, lies on the Aker river on the southeastern coast of the mountainous country. It is at the head of Oslo fjord, and about 80 miles from the Skagerrak.

It is a well planned city with a population in 1930 of 253,124. Its port can be used by large vessels, but the harbor is ice bound for three or four months in the winter.

Guarding Oslo is a fortress at Oslo fjord. This apparently is the fortification which drove back the attacking warships yesterday. It is one of the four most important fortresses in Norway. The others are Oscarsborg, Bergen, and Agdenes.

SENATORS GRILL REYNAUD TODAY ON WAR PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 8.—Premier Paul Reynaud tomorrow afternoon will face the senate in a secret session. Eight senators have given notice of their intention to question him about his government's conduct of the war.

Paris newspapers generally refrained tonight from predictions as to the fate of the cabinet. La Liberte, however, said it foresaw "a large enough majority" in the senate. The senate debate probably will last for two days and Reynaud will face the chamber of deputies on Thursday.

Reynaud met today with his inner cabinet and Gens. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, chief of staff, and Alphonse Georges, assistant chief of staff.

RUMANIA HALTS BRITISH DYNAMITE FLEET IN DANUBE

Plot to Blast Supply Line Charged by Germans.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 8 (AP).—Detention of a fleet of dynamite-laden British barges, charged by Germans with being designed to blow up a narrow Danube gateway and block a German supply line, today electrified southeastern Europe with the fear war soon might spread to it.

Rumanian police, acting on a tip said to have been supplied by the pro-Nazi Iron Guard, halted the fleet near Giurgiu, Danube river port whence Germany ships much needed Rumanian oil supplies.

Germans alleged the British planned to blockade the spot in the Danube known as the Iron Gate by sinking the barges and wrecking the narrow channel where the river cuts thru the Carpathian barrier between high cliffs. The Iron Gate is 280 miles up river from Giurgiu.

Planned to Blow Up Boats.

Official British quarters, acknowledging the barges were loaded with explosives, insisted they were to be used only for destroying French and British river craft if Germany invaded Rumania.

The only official British statement merely reported Rumanian authorities had seized two cases of firearms which a British barge captain had neglected to declare in passing customs.

Two hundred Rumanian and Jugo-Slav soldiers, armed wtih machine guns, tonight were guarding the gateway where the Danube forms the boundary between Rumania and Jugo-Slavia.

The German version of the seizure, said to have taken place Saturday, reported more than 100 British army, navy, and air force men, who were to have participated in the coup, had been arrested.

The Germans reported the flotilla, which they said consisted of eight big ships, nine barges, and a number of speedboats, carried several thousand boxes of dynamite mines and depth charges.

Linked to Mining Off Norway.

It is understood the Germans tipped off the Rumanian secret police service about the "British plot." The Nazis described the chief plotter as an English vice consul at Bucharest who, they said, actually was the chief of the British secret service in Rumania.

German officialdom said the Danube plot was a worthy companion piece to the mining of Norwegian waters by France and Britain, which they said might have "consequences nobody can foresee."

Both the Rumanian foreign office and British quarters insisted there was no basis to the German reports that Britons had been seized aboard the barges.

GERMANY MASKS ITS 'ANSWER TO BRITAIN'S MINES

Any Course Justified, Nazis Declare.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 8.—Sowing of mine fields by the British navy near the Norwegian coast was followed here tonight by a statement by Germans that Britain has "blatantly violated Norwegian neutrality and Germany now is justified in taking measures she deems advisable."

"Is it true that a German fleet passed thru the Kattegat and was seen between Norway and Denmark?" an authorized Nazi spokesman was asked. "We can divulge no military information" was his reply.

British Fleet Nearby.

Within the last 24 hours both British and German warships have been reported near the Norwegian coast.

Official Germany called British-French mining of Norwegian waters "an exceedingly far reaching decision, the consequences of which nobody can foresee." Authorized sources added that the effects would be "tremendous." German officialdom finally took this stand: "Icily cold, Germany reserves her decisions to meet the situation."

Tho Norway protested to London against the mines and demanded that they be removed, semiofficial German sources were dissatisfied with Norway's reaction. They branded it spineless.

"Nothing Can Prevent Us."

When foreign observers suggested the laying of British mines would make it impossible for the Germans, if they had made such plans, to land troops in Norway, Nazis replied: "If our high command intends to make such a move, nothing can prevent us; we are strong enough militarily to carry out what we plan."

Laying of the mine fields as announced by the British, German business men said, means that the sea route from Narvik, Norway, over which Germany has been carrying iron ore produced by Sweden, has been closed.

GERMAN CARGO PASSES SAFELY THRU ADRIATIC

ROME, April 8 (AP).—The German freighter Ankara arrived safely at Trieste today with 5,000 tons of bauxite from Jugo-Slavia.

The cargo had been carried 350 miles thru the Adriatic sea from Dubrovnik on a test trip that the Germans hoped would establish a new gap in the British-French blockade.

British warships were reported in the Adriatic and had been expected to try to halt the Ankara, which left Dubrovnik yesterday. None of the warships was sighted and the Ankara's captain described the trip as uneventful. It was made thru territorial waters of Jugo-Slavia and Italy, both neutral.

Coroner's Jury Declares Lake Drowning Accident

A Lake county coroner's jury yesterday found that the death on Sunday night of Adolph Koepke, 52 years old, 1837 North Mozart avenue, was accidental. Koepke drowned when he fell from a pier on the east shore of Fox lake. He was a world war veteran and was gassed in action. Police were told he was subject to fainting spells. He went to his lake cottage a week ago to fish.

BRITAIN STANDS FIRM AS NORWAY PROTESTS MINES

Chamberlain to Explain in Commons Today.

LONDON, April 8 (AP).—Great Britain stood fast tonight on its laying of mines in Norwegian territorial waters despite vigorous protests by Norway.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is scheduled to explain and defend the Anglo-French action in a statement before the house of commons tomorrow.

Stating the action was taken in reprisal for German attacks on neutral shipping, Britain hoped to halt the use of Norwegian territorial waters by German ships taking Swedish ore to Germany. It believes the mines will force them out into the open sea to become prey of Britain's navy.

Attack on Ships Possible.

Neutral naval sources said it was possible Germany would strike at British ships lying outside the mined areas awaiting ore boats or send sweepers to clear the mine fields.

Report Navy Standing By.

The British navy, which sowed the mines in an hour at dawn today, was reported standing by tonight.

British foreign office sources refused comment on the mine blockade except to emphasize that it was a joint action of Britain and France.

Moral arguments in support of the British-French violation of Norway's neutrality rights are approved by the press and political circles with the exception of a small group of extreme left wingers. These characterize the act as a ruthless attempt to spread the war, no matter at what cost to the neutrals, "for whom the war is being fought."

Mines Command Three Ports.

All the mined areas are south of Narvik, iron ore shipping point and control three ports.

Scandinavians in London professed to believe the blockade's effect would be only temporary. They said the entire flow of Swedish iron ore to Germany could be diverted to the Gulf of Bothnia in May or June, when the ice breaks up in the gulf, if the Germans are able to split the handling of the shipments among Stettin Bremerhaven, and Hamburg by way of the Kiel canal.

BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER.

The body of Louis Lzakawa, 40 years old, 1622 34th street, who had been missing since March 8, was recovered yesterday from the south branch of the Chicago river at 33d street.

HERE IS NAZI-DANE NO-WAR PACT SIGNED LESS THAN A YEAR AGO

New York, April 9, Tuesday.—Following are the two articles of the German-Danish nonaggression pact, signed in Berlin on May 31, 1939:

ARTICLE I.—The German reich and the kingdom of Denmark will, under no circumstances, resort to war or any other form of violence against each other. Should a third party take action of a kind designated in paragraph one against one of the parties to the pact, the other party to the pact will in no way support such action.

ARTICLE II.—This pact shall be ratified and instruments of ratification shall be exchanged in Berlin as soon as possible. The pact comes into force with the exchange of instruments of ratification and is valid from then on for a period of 10 years. The pact may be renewed another 10 years if notice to that effect is given by one of the parties to the pact not later than a year from the expiry of the first term. The same holds for the further renewals.

ROOSEVELT WILL SPEED TO CAPITAL ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Hyde Park, N. Y., April 9, Tuesday, (AP).—President Roosevelt communicated with the state department by phone early today over the northern European crisis. Aides awakened him with the news shortly before 4 a. m. He immediately got in touch with Washington. Meanwhile, a secretary set about making arrangements, if feasible, to have a special train rushed here to return the President to the capital as soon as possible.

FOUND HANGED IN HOME.

Alfred Mallo, 58 years old, who had been ill six months, was found hanged yesterday in the basement of his home at 3846 South California avenue.

ROME, April 8 (AP).—Seven hundred thousand Italians now are employed in the manufacture of war materials, Gen. Umberto Favagrossa, commissioner general for war manufacturers, reported today to Premier Benito Mussolini. Gen. Favagrossa said 929 auxiliary factories are controlled by the war manufacturers' board.

DENMARK FINDS ITSELF ON 'SPOT' AS KEY TO BALTIC

Has Minimum of Arms to Protect Position.

Denmark, one of the smallest and most peaceful kingdoms in Europe, sits at the gate of the Baltic sea, north of Germany, and midway between the British Isles and soviet Russia proper.

It is the stopper to the Baltic. Copenhagen, its largest city, is on an island which dominates the gateway for the seaboards of Sweden, Finland, Russia, most of the German coast, and the shores of several tiny Baltic states. Its geographical position places Denmark on what may be described as "the spot."

Danish Armed Forces Small.

In 1931 Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, a former British sea lord, predicted:

"If war came upon Europe, interested powers would race to settle themselves in Danish waters. It would be a free for all fight for Denmark's position."

The Danes have long recognized such a peril, but instead of maintaining a strong army and a stronger navy to give its geographical position proper authority, Denmark chose, instead, to maintain a minimum of armed forces.

Friendly to Both Sides.

Traditionally, the Danish friendship has been cultivated with Great Britain, but friendship has also been cemented with Germany. Last May 31 Denmark and Germany signed a 10 year nonaggression pact. While Denmark nominally controled the Baltic, it was England, until a few years ago, which actually controled it. England, some Danish circles felt, more or less abandoned the actual control when it concluded a naval agreement with Germany, thereby permitting Germany to exercise greater power in the Baltic.

Denmark's area is 16,568 miles—of which 11,308 cover the peninsula of Jutland, and 5,161 cover various islands. Its population is approximately 3,500,000.

Army Is Three Divisions.

Its army is made up of three divisions, plus fortress troops. Its peacetime strength stands at about 15,000. Its war strength may reach 161,000. One in every four men is trained in the military arts. Denmark's navy is virtually nil—two antiquated coast defense warships, one cruiser-minelayer, 20 torpedo boats, and 12 submarines. The air force is estimated at not more than 90 planes.

Small fighting forces have been the wish of Denmark's government. A few years ago parliament considered bills virtually abolishing both the army and the navy.

The expressed thought behind this self-imposed military and naval helplessness was; "Why spend money uselessly in trying to build up a defense force that would be useless? Even if all our 3,500,000 were armed, we could make no defense against our powerful neighbors."

Asserts Its Independence.

When war broke out last September, Denmark promptly proclaimed its neutrality. Then again, last January, Denmark declared neutrality, but went one step further and announced that its "independence would be maintained and attacks resisted."

In its pact with Germany, Denmark insisted on the right to trade with Germany's enemies in event of war, the only such country ever to win an open concession of that nature from Hitler. Recently, however, Denmark began feeling the pinch of British and German blockades. In January rationing of coal, coke and cinders, and kindred products was put into effect.

GERMAN FLYERS ATTACK BRITISH AT SCAPA FLOW

LONDON, April 9, Tuesday (AP).—German warplanes last night dropped incendiary and high explosive bombs in their third raid within a month last night on Britain's Scapa Flow naval anchorage in the Orkney Islands, the air ministry reported today. At least two German planes were shot down, the British said, and a third was believed brought down.

No damage was done to shipping, it was said. A civilian was buried under débris caused by a bomb but suffered only shock.

Spectators said fighter planes "were thick as locusts" in the air.

Germans Report Hits.

BERLIN, April 8 (AP).—German planes successfully attacked the British naval anchorage at Scapa Flow tonight, the German official news agency, DNB, announced. It said several heavy units were reported hit.

Flyers Active at Front.

PARIS, April 8 (AP).—The British-French high command's communique tonight said: "A day without important incidents on the front. Activity of the air forces of both sides during the morning." A revised list showed British-French flyers downed seven German planes yesterday.

Miss Stanwood as she appeared in court as result of Niles Center tavern fight. The arrow marks spot on head. She charges Mrs. Jones pulled the hair out.

Harry Jones, Wilmette pharmacist and husband of woman in fight, was also in court.

As the result of a finger biting fracas Feb. 17 in a Niles Center tavern, Justice of the Peace Fred Kloman yesterday imposed $5 fines on Mrs. Velma Jones, 1008 Oakwood avenue, Wilmette, and her husband, Harry, a pharmacist, and a $10 fine on Miss Della Stanwood, 563 Greenbay road, Winnetka. Then he suspended the fines but ordered the three to share costs of $20.

He dismissed a charge of mayhem against Miss Stanwood, who had bitten the tip off the first finger on Mrs. Jones' left hand. Miss Stanwood's attorney, Joseph Lustfield, said the act was not wilful. In fact, he said, she was unconscious at the time.

To prove this he had Miss Stanwood bare her head. A large tuft of hair was missing. If Miss Stanwood had been conscious, the attorney argued, she would have shrieked in pain when Mrs. Jones pulled out the hair, her jaws would have relaxed, and Mrs. Jones' finger would not have been severed.

U. S. OFFICIALS SHOCKED BY NAZI WAR ON DANES

Washington, D. C., April 8 [Special].—The German occupation of Denmark struck the national capital with the suddenness and shock of a thunderbolt and left American and foreign diplomatic officials dumfounded.

As word of the invasion was received shortly before midnight, officials were hurriedly notified, but could say little in the absence of many details, other than to declare that "hell has broken loose."

The state department received a European message stating that Denmark had been invaded, but this first report said nothing concerning the seizure of Copenhagen.

The department sent messages to American embassies in Berlin, London, and nearby points to report promptly on the situation. At the same time it reached by telephone Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who is spending a two days' vacation at Atlantic City and is due to return to the capital tomorrow. The President was in Hyde Park.

First thought of officials was concerning the safety of Americans in Denmark and measures necessary for evacuating them.

RUSSIA'S FORTS IN NORTH PACIFIC STIR SENATORS

Reynolds Wants U. S. to Acquire Wrangell Isle.

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—Several senators expressed concern today over Alaskan defenses in the light of reported fortification construction on Russian islands in the North Pacific.

At the same time, Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] proposed a state department investigation to determine whether the United States may legally take sovereignty over Wrangell Island, lying between Alaska and Russia.

Sees U. S. Establish Ownership.

Asserting that in 25 years Wrangell Island would become "one of the most important bases in all the world" for both Russia and the United States, Reynolds declared this nation could establish ownership of the island despite Russian claims based on limited occupation. As an alterative he suggested that the United States might agree to accept the island in liquidation of soviet debts to America, which he said were nearly 400 millions.

The Alaskan discussion was touched off by Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.], who said he would seek restoration to the war department appropriation bill of a $12,700,000 item for an air base at Anchorage, Alaska. He asserted that a base there was vital because of the proximity of the Aleutian Islands to both Japan and Russia. The islands, he said, were within sight of those reported being fortified by Russia and within two hours of Japan by air.

Might Corect Alaskan Area.

Schwellenbach said he believed fortification of various islands in the North Pacific by the Russians was based on the thought that at some future time the Alaskan territory might be available to them alone or to joint action by Russia and Japan.

Senators Lister Hill [D., Ala.] and Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.] supported Schwellenbach's proposal as did Senator Reynolds, who urged coast guard bases on all of the ten sizeable islands between Unalaska and the Island of Attu.

Consul Has 'Own Ideas' About Norway's Protests

TORONTO, Ont., April 8 [Canadian Press].—Carl J. Printz, Norwegian consul in Toronto, said today that he "doesn't feel bad about it all" when commenting on the action of Britain and France in sowing mine fields off the Norwegian coast to halt the passage of German ore carriers. "Norway will have to protest," he pointed out. "If she didn't Germany could accuse her of being un-neutral. But I have my own ideas about the nature of these protests between Norway and Britain."

Norway's Army Is Small, But Defensive Position Is Strong

Norway, which dips head down into the North sea from the cold arctic reaches, possesses only a small army and a small navy, but occupies such a strategic position that her forces, if cleverly employed, might prove formidable.

If only as a relay depot for joint British and French operations Norway might serve a definitive and deadly mission against Hitler, some military observers hold. Planes and ships could lash out from Norwegian territorial waters or lands against the enemy instead of from their own more distant shores.

Against the world's modern armies and navies, Norway's fighting forces seem relatively puny. Its army is a sort of national militia, in which 10,000 conscripts receive 84 days' training each year. In normal peacetime only 5,000 professional soldiers are retained for training purposes. Norway's population is only 2,907,000.

Relies on Reserves.

Since 1936 efforts were made to increase the standing army and today Norway can put between 20,000 and 30,000 trained men into the field. Reserves are Norway's hope. Of these between 75,000 and 100,000 are believed available for active combat. The army as it stands today is divided into nine brigades; a battalion of artillery, and some fortress troops. [It is believed that the combined strength of Norway and Denmark would not reach more than 250,000 men.]

The Norwegian navy has six new destroyers of about 600 tons; three old destroyers of about 500 tons; one mine layer of 1,600 tons, and another of 600 tons. It also has three torpedo boats of 200 tons; 22 old torpedo boats of 50 to 100 tons; four mine sweepers; four small coast guard fishery patrol boats; nine submarines; four old armed coast defense vessels of 3,500 tons each, and a small fleet of armed trawlers and whalers leased for war use. [It has been reported that the navy also includes four "coast defense battleships."]

Air Force Is Weak.

In the air Norway is believed to be weak, altho great efforts were made during the last year to strengthen the air force. Within the last year Norway and Sweden were reported negotiating for 600 fighting planes in America. Only last month it was reported that orders for about 75 single engine patrol bombers equipped for sea duty had been ordered from California aircraft companies. Norway's present available fighting planes are estimated at about 100.

Following the outbreak of the Finnish-Russian war, Norway accelerated defense moves. It strengthened fortifications, appropriated about $46,000,000 for defense, changed ministers of defense, coördinated all hospitals and medical services, and urged all women to prepare themselves to take over men's work.

Historically, Norway has been tied by friendship and commerce with Great Britain, but has not remained frigidly aloof from Germany. Traditionally, Norwegians have, like Danes, looked upon Britain as the desired friend if need were to arise.

It is believed that Norway has been ready for months for the worst. Blackouts have been practiced, and arrangements have been completed to evacuate almost half of Oslo's 253,000 population.

BRITISH ASK U. S. FOR CREDITS TO BUY FOODSTUFF

Senate Hears of Pleas to Wallace.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 8.—Representatives of the British purchasing mission in this country have approached Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace for government credit with which to purchase American agricultural products, according to information received by members of the senate today.

Henry A. Wallace.

The British representatives made their appeal for credit at a recent conference with Secretary Wallace and other officials of the agriculture department, including the heads of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, the Commodity Credit corporation, and the Surplus Commodities corporation, members of the senate were informed. The British spokesmen, it is said, inquired:

"China's credit is good. Finland's credit is good. Why isn't our credit good?"

No Legal Obstacle.

Altho Secretary Wallace did not encourage the British in their desire for credit, it is understood that one of his solicitors made a study of the neutrality act of 1939, as well as the Johnson act, and prepared a memorandum holding that there is no statutory prohibition against the extension of credits to belligerents by such government agencies as the Export-Import bank and the Commodity Credit corporation.

Moreover, Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], a member of the foreign relations committee and one of the authors of the administration's neutrality act, declared today that technically the law would not prohibit credit to private citizens and corporations of the belligerent powers for the purchase of nonmilitary supplies.

Violation of Spirit of Law.

Senator George asserted, however, that loans from the government lending agencies for such purposes would violate the spirit of the neutrality law. He expressed doubt that any such circumvention of the neutrality act will be attempted, but predicted that if there is an intensification of the European war after the presidential election next November there will be a frontal assault on both the neutrality law and the Johnson act in order to permit financial assistance for the allied empires.

Altho Senator George helped to draft and enthusiastically supported the administration's arms embargo repealer, he strongly opposes credits to the warring powers of Europe. He opposed the recent 100 million dollar expansion of the revolving credit authority of the Export-Import bank for the purpose of making additional loans to Finland and China. He and other members of the senate contended that loans to Finland would be used as a precedent or a pretext for credit to Great Britain and France.

Finland and China Exempt.

Finland and China, Senator George explained, were eligible for credit in the United States since the neutrality law was not invoked with respect to their undeclared wars. Neither was either country a defaulter, under the terms of the Johnson act, on obligations to the United States government.

Altho Great Britain is subject to the prohibitions of both the Johnson act and the neutrality law, there is nothing in either statute which prohibits credits to private citizens and corporations for the purchase of American nonmilitary supplies, the senator declared.

The Johnson act makes it unlawful to sell in this country the obligations of governments which are in default on their obligations to the United States government. The neutrality law makes it unlawful to extend credit of any kind to a belligerent government or any agency thereof, or to extend credit to private citizens and corporations of belligerent countries for the purchase of arms, ammunition, and implements of war.

Private Purchases Permitted.

There is nothing in the law, however, to prohibit credit to private purchasers of American agricultural products and other so-called nonmilitary supplies. Since Great Britain and France control all exports and imports and have the authority to requisition all supplies, the device of a private corporation could be used to obtain credit for the purchase of American agricultural products.

Amendments specifically prohibiting loans and credits by the Export-Import bank, the Commodity Credit corporation and other government lending agencies to belligerent purchasers were rejected in both the senate and the house when the neutrality act was under consideration last October. Proponents of the legislation took the position, however, that the language of the bill was broad enough to prohibit credits from these agencies to belligerent governments or their representatives.

While the revolving credit authorization of the Export-Import bank is limited to 200 million dollars, virtually all of which has been committed, the Commodity Credit corporation has a lending limit of 1 billion dollars, including 100 million dollars of capital, subscribed by the treasury, and up in 900 million dollars from the sale of its own government guaranteed bonds, notes, and debentures.

Since the adoption of the so-called cash and carry neutrality act, the British and French governments have virtually ceased buying American agricultural products, such as wheat, cotton, tobacco, apples, pears, etc. Their argument is that they must conserve their cash to buy airplanes and other military equipment in this country.

PATRICIA DONOVAN.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 8 [Special].—Miss Patricia Donovan, 23 years old, daughter of Col. William J. [Wild Bill] Donovan, of New York City and Buffalo, was fatally injured early this afternoon when her coupe skidded from the rain-soaked highway on U. S. route 1, 25 miles south of here. The car struck a tree and overturned upon her.

Miss Donovan had been traveling northward alone. She was not found until some time after the accident. Then a passing motorist brought her, unconscious, to Mary Washington hospital in Fredericksburg. Miss Donovan's father won fame during the world war as commander of the 69th infantry—New York's fighting Irish. He was an assistant United States attorney general in the Coolidge administration and is now a leading New York corporation lawyer.

MONOPOLY QUIZ TURNS GUNS UPON USE OF MACHINES

Goal of Probe Remains a Committee Secret.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 8.—The monopoly committee today began adding to its mountainous record by delving into problems brought about by the mechanization of industry in the United States and its effect on employment and production.

Theodore J. Kreps.

What the committee hopes to prove in this phase of its investigation remains as vague as the objectives sought in previous inquiries into insurance companies, banking and investment, glass, oil, steel, and other industries. The belief persists in Washington that the committee is being used by the Corcoran-Cohen-Frankfurter-Frank group of radicals to lay the groundwork for far-reaching proposals outdoing in their daring any of the governmental experiments thus far put forward by the New Dealers.

Fear Grips Industry and Labor.

The advance of "technocracy"—the development of the use of machines—has been used in the past as an excuse for the encouragement of a host of wild-eyed schemes. There is a well founded fear among business men and representatives of labor, who have watched the progress of the committee's investigation with uneasiness, that proposals even more fantastic may come out of the committee's latest inquiry.

Theodore J. Kreps, economic consultant to the committee, was the first witness today, offering a general analysis of the situation. He asserted that the impact of the machine age upon American civilization will be even more severe in the future than in the past. Technical advances are scheduled to outstrip anything witnessed in history, he declared.

Age Level Adds to Problems.

One of the major problems posed by technology, Kreps testified, is that of unemployment—among youths and adults alike. The problem of unemployment among men between 45 and 64 years of age, he said, is greater than in all history.

Forty witnesses are scheduled to be questioned in the next two weeks. They include such leaders of industry and labor as Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Charles Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill company; Philip Murray, president of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee; M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington road; A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; G. H. Conze, president of the Susquehanna Silk mills; Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines corporation. A number of scientists and economists also will testify.

Bill Under Consideration.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], the committee chairman, insisted that the hearings are not intended to support his bill, introduced three weeks ago, which would reward employers whose output was obtained by more than an average use of man power and penalize those whose production was obtained by a more than average use of machines.

"Far from gaining support for my bill," he declared, "the exact contrary is the case. The bill was introduced for the purpose, as I said at the time, of focusing public attention on the problem of men and machines.

"I would be the last person to propose anything to retard the amazing development of the United States. However, it is an obvious fact that technological advance and the increase of unemployment have been simultaneous. The committee hearings will give an opportunity to coordinate and develop public thought on the problem."

Seeks to Align Forces.

The committee plans to examine the development of the use of machines in the automobile industry, in steel mills, in coal mines, on railroads, and in the fields of textiles, communications, office appliances, and agriculture.

O'Mahoney's bill, he said when he introduced it, "undertakes to bring about an alignment of men with machines to conquer depression."

The bill would place a "labor differential tax" on all products. Labor differential income is designated as gross income less the following deductions:

1. The total cost of materials and supplies purchased and used during the taxable year in carrying on production.

2. The total amount of remuneration up to $3,000 paid as salary or wages for personal services to any worker.

The rate of the "labor differential tax" was left by O'Mahoney to be worked out by congress.

INDIANA 2% QUIZ BARES GRAFT IN LIQUOR CONTROL

Scandal Reveals Ways of Shaking Down Dealers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 8.—The Indiana Democratic slush fund scandal assumed larger proportions today, with indications that it involves large scale grafting and shakedown of interests receiving contracts and other concessions from the state government.

Bowman Elder.

It was learned that the total amount of income taxes, interest, and penalties for which the federal treasury has cracked down on Indiana politicians who handled the fund approximates $372,000, with the investigation still incomplete. There were intimations that the total may go higher before the inquiry is concluded.

Government demands to date comprise the following:

Upon Bowman Elder, a leader of Paul V. McNutt's campaign for the nomination for President and former treasurer of the slush fund	$233,000
Upon three other Democratic leaders who handled "contributions" by corporations and other interests	139,000
Total	$372,000

Liquor Dealers Pay Off.

One of the trio from whom the treasury is seeking tax payments and penalties aggregating $139,000 is alleged to have collected and paid into the slush fund $53,000 collected from wholesale liquor dealers receiving special favors from the state administration in the enforcement of the Indiana liquor laws.

All the persons involved are currently or formerly connected in various official capacities with the 2 per cent club, the institution founded during the régime of Gov. McNutt to obtain Democratic organization funds by assessment of state jobholders. McNutt and Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] have defended the 2 Per Cent club as a legitimate, open and above board instrument for obtaining party funds from party members interested in perpetuating Democratic control of the state.

It would appear, however, from the conditions uncovered by internal revenue bureau operatives that the slush fund was obtained not only by the 2 per cent assessment on the salaries of state employés, but by grafting and shakedowns.

May Cost McNutt His Post.

Friends of Federal Security Administrator McNutt assert that the treasury investigation cleared him of any involvement in the scandal. They expect the treasury or the White House to make a statement to this effect in the near future.

Also cleared, according to the McNutt entourage, is Frank McHale, Democratic national committeeman for Indiana and chairman of the McNutt for President campaign committee.

Among Democratic leaders, however, the opinion is general that, even if McNutt is not involved, the scandal smearing some of his highest lieutenants, for acts connected with an institution founded by McNutt, has dealt his candidacy for President a fatal blow. There also is the possibility that he will be forced out of the Roosevelt administration in which he holds cabinet rank. He is a regular attendant at cabinet meetings on the invitation of the President.

President's Ardor Cools.

When McNutt was appointed security administrator Mr. Roosevelt proceeded to give him a build-up as a potential heir apparent in case the President should not choose to run for a third term.

A few months later, however, the scandal of the Indiana slush fund began leaking out and the treasury sent 40 agents to Indianapolis to investigate. Not long afterward Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes assailed McNutt in an interview, asserting that no liberal would support him for President. That was accepted by the politicians as evidence that the President had cooled toward McNutt as a possible successor.

Elder has been served by the treasury with a notice to show cause why he should not be required to pay income taxes, interest and penalties aggregating $233,000 on some of the funds that passed thru his hands during the five years he was treasurer of the 2 Per Cent club.

Half Million Unexplained.

Elder is said to have accounted satisfactorily for some of the money he handled, but refused information concerning disposition of other amounts running into a large figure—exceeding, according to one calculation, half a million dollars. Thereupon the treasury declared the unexplained amounts to be Elder's income on which he had not paid the income tax. The same procedure obtained in the case of the three others who have been assessed $139,999.

Whether the administration will investigate the Illinois Democratic slush fund obtained thru the similar device of a 2 per cent club was a matter of animated speculation here today. It has been charged that the Illinois fund also reeks with graft. The Kelly-Nash-Horner Democratic machine, however, stands high with the Roosevelt administration, being a vociferous booster of Roosevelt for a third term.

Morgenthau Defends "Leak."

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau endeavored today to absolve Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering from blame for utterances on the Indiana scandal. Helvering told reporters immediately after a conference with President Roosevelt on March 30 that the government is investigating the Indiana 2 per cent slush fund and that he hoped arrangements would be made to issue a statement on results of the investigation soor.

Technically, Helvering broke the law when he made that statement. There is a statute which restrains treasury officials from discussing any pending tax investigation, with a penalty of $1,000 fine and/or one year in jail for violation. It was assumed generally that Helvering had been authorized by the President to make the statement.

Secretary Exhibits Annoyance.

Morgenthau became irritated at his press conference today when reporters quizzed him on the Indiana and Illinois Democratic slush funds.

"No responsible treasury official will discuss any pending tax case," Morgenthau declared in taking a backhanded slap at Helvering. When asked about the Illinois situation, the secretary said he would not comment upon tax inves..gations in any state.

Asked whether Helvering had not violated the law in admitting the Indiana investigation, Morgenthau said that Helvering denies making the statements which have been attributed to him. White House reporters, however, were unanimous in quoting Helvering and have a transcript to support them. Helvering was in his office today but "unavailable" to reporters.

REVEALS MINNEAPOLIS UNION MEMBERS HELD PARLEY WITH TROTSKY

Minneapolis, Minn., April 8 [Special].—A conference between leaders of the General Drivers union and Leon Trotsky, exiled Russian revolutionary, was revealed today in a court suit seeking removal of the union officers. The meeting took place in Mexico in March, 1938, Carl Skoglund, union president, testified. Skoglund is a former communist.

Those participating in the Trotsky conference were Vince Dunne and Emil Hanson, organizers, and William Hodgson, a member of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Dunne and Hanson are American Federation of Labor members. Skoglund said he went with them as far as Laredo, Tex.

Arthur H. Anderson, attorney for five truck drivers who have asked the court to remove the union's officers, charged that the affairs of the Minneapolis union were being conducted by Trotsky thru individuals within the organization.

Earlier a statement was put into the record that Vincent, Grant, and Miles Dunne, all brothers and labor leaders, are Trotskyite communists. Farrell Dobbs, another union officer, also was identfied by Skoglund as a Trotskyite.

NEAR NORTH SIDE RISES IN WRATH OVER WOODWARD

Many Deny His Claims of Their Backing.

The near north side rang with indignant voices last night as a number of prominent citizens denied that they have indorsed State Representative Robert M. Woodward as was implied by an elaborate political brochure which he distributed in the closing hours of the campaign.

Woodward's chief opponent is Robert Hall McCormick III. Both are Republicans. Nomination of one Republican and two Democrats for three house seats in the 29th senatorial district is equivalent to election.

Frank J. Loesch, dean of fighters against crime and president emeritus of the Chicago crime commission, was the first to protest against the use of his name by Woodward.

Letter Written in 1936.

"I regard it as cheap politics for Woodward to reproduce a portion of a letter I wrote him in 1936," Mr. Loesch said. "I am supporting his opponent."

Silas H. Strawn joined the protest. He asserted that letters reproduced in the brochure and purporting to bear his signature were "fabrications." He said he could not understand how Woodward obtained one of his law firm's letter heads. Mr. Strawn added with finality that he had not given any one permission to send out political folders using his residence as a return address.

Former Vice President Charles Gates Dawes said: "I never heard of Woodward."

Sewell Avery, industrial leader, said Woodward was a stranger to him and that the use of his name in a commendatory manner for Woodward's candidacy was "political rot."

Edwin W. Sims, whose name also appeared in the list, also denied any connection with Woodward's ambition for a fifth term in the law making body at Springfield.

Denies Request for Use of Name.

Mrs. Frederic Upham said some one had phoned and asked for permission to use her name, but that she refused the request. Her name appeared in the list.

Even Mrs. R. Hall McCormick, mother of Woodward's principal opponent, was listed on the roster of "outstanding civic, business, and social leaders who for eight years have consistently commended State Representative Robert M. Woodward to the voters." She was perhaps the most indignant over what she termed "a trick to fool the voters."

Deceased persons listed were Kellogg Fairbank, William B. McClure, Arthur Bissell, and Lawrence M. Viles. Some named in the brochure no longer reside in Chicago.

CROMWELL WILL SEEK NEW JERSEY SEAT IN SENATE

Returns from Canada Next Week.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 8 [Special].—American Minister James H. R. Cromwell this afternoon confirmed reports that he will shortly become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator from New Jersey.

Cromwell is returning to the United States next week and will meet Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, the state Democratic leader, on April 16. He will probably make formal announcement of his candidacy at his Somerville, N. J., home on April 19.

May Seek Leave of Absence.

Cromwell does not expect this candidacy will interfere with the tenure of his present post, unless he is elected, in which case he would resign.

There is said to be nothing in existing law to prevent his obtaining leave from the state department to absent himself while making the senatorial campaign and he evidently has reason to hope that the department will grant his leave.

His candidacy will not affect his plan to tour Canada from coast to coast in June. It will be only after his return that he will seek leave of absence in order to make his campaign.

Speech Recalled.

Cromwell's speech to a group of Canadian club and Empire club members in Toronto on March 19, in which he expressed the belief that "the life, the liberty and the very safety" of neutrals was at stake in the European war and asked what the world might expect if Germany won, caused a stir in America. Some members of congress demanded he be recalled, claiming American diplomats should not take sides in the war. The speech drew a rebuke from Secretary Hull.

[Unless Cromwell resigns as minister to Canada he cannot run for senator under the terms of the Hatch act of 1939, according to unofficial sources in Washington, D. C. The Hatch act forbids all federal employés and officials below the rank of assistant cabinet officers to take an active part in politics.]

Titled Mate of Rockefeller Heiress Seeks Citizenship

Lakewood, N. J., April 8 (AP).—Marquis George de Piedrablance de Guana de Cuevas, husband of Mrs. Margaret Strong Cuevas, granddaughter of the late John D. Rockefeller, revealed today he had applied for citizenship papers. The nobleman, a Spanish national and a native of Santiago, Chile, said he had appeared before the Ocean County Naturalization court at Toms River on Saturday. "They told me I would have to renounce my title," he said. "I replied, 'mister is good enough for me.'"

BUILDERS OF CHICAGO (29)

By CALEB

FROM the birth, on Feb. 17, 1843, of a boy in Chatham, N. J., resulted two great achievements: the saving to Chicagoans of Grant Park as a "perpetual waterfront playground," and the mammoth 68-year-old mail-order business of Montgomery Ward & Company.

Ingratitude, sacrifice of personal fortune, and twenty years of bitter litigation, with three lower court reverses and final vindication by the Supreme Court of Illinois, marked the great fight which Montgomery Ward finally won to keep business buildings out of Grant Park. His one concession was erection of the Art Institute at Adams Street.

Ward's business beginnings were modest. His parents moving to Niles, Mich., when he was quite young, his first job followed rudimentary schooling, at 14, in a stave factory at 25 cents a week. Some years later, he went to St. Joseph, Mich., as clerk in a general store at $5 monthly and board, in three years' time becoming its general manager at $100 a month and board. In 1866, he joined forces for two years with Field, Palmer & Leiter; then entered the employ of Willis, Gregg & Brown, wholesale drygoods merchants. After going "on the road" for Walter M. Smith, of St. Louis, he returned to Chicago and associated with C. W. Pardridge & Company.

For future career-building all this experience proved invaluable. The story of his venture into the mail-order field also attests the worth of character as finest requisite of all. For the Grangers were then a powerful force in the farm market; and when their committee waited on Marshall Field to solicit his recommendation of a man for their agent, the latter unhesitatingly named A. Montgomery Ward.

Accordingly, in 1872, Ward launched the country's first mail-order enterprise, with George R. Thorne, his brother-in-law, as partner. A circular of those days announced: At the earnest solicitation of many Grange men, we have consented to open a house devoted to furnishing farmers and mechanics throughout the Northwest with everything they need at wholesale prices; and early catalogs bore the slogan: "The Original Grange Supply House."

From one room and a clerk, the business expanded to a nationwide institution, today comprising 640 retail stores in every state in the Union; nine great mail-order houses; and gross sales of $500,000,000. At his death on Dec. 8, 1913, A. Montgomery Ward was mourned equally as an esteemed friend, a splendid merchant, and sponsor of the most unique city-front in the world! Few molders of Middle West business history more richly deserve the title: Builder of Chicago.

STELLE DEFENDS HIS TAKING OVER GOVERNOR REINS

Statement Denies Action Is Attack on Horner.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 8.—Following is the statement issued here today by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle after he proclaimed himself acting governor:

"April 8, 1940.

"My action today in assuming the office of acting governor during the governor's continued disability, as provided by the state constitution, will be construed by members of the illegal regency which has sought to run the state government behind the governor's back as an attack on a sick and disabled man.

"I feel, however, that it is no attack on a disabled man to recognize his disability and to offer to assist him; it is no attack on a sick man to recognize that he is sick and to relieve his distress by doing his work for him.

Cites State Constitution.

"The constitution of the state of Illinois is specific in its requirement that the lieutenant governor shall act in the event of the disability of the governor of the state. I do not intend to disturb Gov. Horner's comfort at the executive mansion, but I will continue to serve as acting governor until his disability is removed.

"When Eddie Barrett [State Auditor Edward J. Barrett] and I served in the American army overseas, it was not regarded as an attack on a man, either a general or a private, to note that he had fallen, wounded, with his face to the foe, and to carry him to a hospital behind the lines somewhere in France. Nor was it regarded as an attack on him to send another man to fill the gap which was left in the ranks where he fell.

Draws Other Parallels.

"If a workman succumbs to the ardors of his employment, or is injured, or is overcome with the heat or suffers an illness, so that he has to give up his task, it is no attack on him to remove him and put a younger, stronger man in his place.

"And if the younger and stronger man has been chosen in advance and trained for years for such an emergency, it would be regarded as foolish to deny him the right and the opportunity to carry on when the disabled man was forced to cease. And when he appeared on the scene he would not be accused of attacking the disabled man he replaced.

"If the president of a bank became stricken with an illness which brought him to death's door and which finally reduced him to the state where for months he was unable to go to the bank or to meet any of the customers of the institution, it would become the duty of the vice president to assume the duties.

Argues It Is His Duty.

"The action of the vice president in so doing would not be regarded as an attack on the disabled president—indeed, the stockholders would likely think it more than strange if he failed or refused to carry on the managerial duties of the disabled president.

"If the managing editor of a great newspaper became stricken so that during 18 months he was able to go to his office only three times, it would not be regarded as an attack on him if the assistant managing editor sat at his desk and did his work.

"These parallels from the daily walks of unofficial life illustrate fairly the situation in which the governmental organization of the state of Illinois stands today.

Denies Attacking Horner.

"It is no attack on Gov. Horner to recognize that after 18 months of a most critical illness, which obviously is not improving, he is incapacitated for the arduous duties of the governorship—duties to which he formerly gave 10 to 16 hours a day, and for which he now can scarcely lift his hand or his voice.

"I have not attacked Gov. Horner. I will not attack Gov. Horner. I do not attack him now. I only intend to relieve him of the duties which he cannot perform. I attack only these persons, who without legal authority, have taken advantage of the governor's illness and incapacity to set themselves up as a regency.

"I am forthwith discharging Sam Nudelman as director of the state department of finance, on the charge that he is inefficient and is guilty of misconduct in connection with the collection thru coercion of campaign slush funds from state civil service employés.

Promises to Confer.

"While acting as governor of the state and during the special session of the legislature, I will confer as often as it may be necessary with any members of the general assembly who wish to consult me about pending or proposed legislation.

"However, it will not be my policy now, or in the future, to undertake to dominate the legislature to the extent practiced by some former governors. The people elect the members of the general assembly to carry out the legislative function, and it will be my aim to build up the sense of personal responsibility among them rather than to depress it by executive domination.

"While acting as governor, it will be my aim at an early date to effect some details of reorganization among the administrative code departments of the state which come under the control of the governor.

"I hope to put an early end to some of the abuses and laxities which have grown up in the administration during the illness and disability of Gov. Horner, abuses and laxities I feel certain he would not have permitted had he not been disabled.

"I need not go into the details of these matters, since they have been much in the public attention during recent months. But I think that I would disappoint many thousands of the citizens of the state if I failed to say now that I will put an end to the illegal regency which has been usurping the functions of the executive. There will be an end of Nudelman."

SEIZE FUGITIVE ACCUSED IN VOTE PETITION FRAUD

Robert Swartz, who had been sought since March 12 in the investigation of fraudulent election petitions, was arrested yesterday by state's attorney's police.

Robert Swartz.

Swartz, who is 51 years old, was ordered arrested at a hearing on Donald J. Seeley's nominating petitions in the Republican primary race for the nomination for clerk of the Probate court. Seeley's opponent, William John Granata, had charged that signatures on Seeley's petitions were forgeries. Seeley said he had investigated and found this to be true, but said he had no knowledge of the plot, as he had hired Swartz to get the signatures.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki then issued a warrant charging Swartz with obtaining money under false pretenses. Seeley's name was stricken from the ballot. Swartz is a former employé of the election commission. He lives at 3345 Maypole avenue.

SOCIALISTS CALL FOR U. S. TO KEEP CLEAR OF WARS

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—The Socialist party today adopted a platform calling for political and economic isolation from the European war, but expressing a willingness to coöperate with neutrals to mediate in behalf of a negotiated peace.

The platform—on which Norman Thomas of New York and Maynard C. Krueger of Illinois will conduct their campaign for President and Vice President, respectively—also favors socialization of industry.

Declaring that two out of three American families must live on less than $1,500 a year, the platform said neither the Republican nor the Democratic party offers any adequate remedy.

David H. H. Felix of Philadelphia was named chairman of the campaign committee. An 11 member national executive committee includes: Leonard Woodcock, Michigan; Paul Porter, Wisconsin; Travers Clement and Arthur MacDowell, Illinois.

SLUSH INQUIRY IN STELLE EXTRA SESSION ORDER

Call Includes 2 Points Not Listed by Horner.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 8.—Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, who today proclaimed himself acting governor, issued a call for a special session of the legislature for April 30. His call includes 12 points specified in the special call issued by Gov. Henry Horner Saturday night, and, in addition, two new matters not listed in the Horner call.

These new points deal with relief and the 2 per cent slush fund collected by the Illinoisans for the Horner administration. Their importance in Stelle's mind apparently is emphasized in their numerical positions, No. 1 and No. 5, on his call.

Text of Points Nos. 1 and 5.

Their texts as appearing in the formal proclamations, follow:

"No. 1.—To enact laws and amend or repeal any existing laws in relation to the method of administering care and assistance to needy and destitute persons; to enact laws enabling counties, cities, and other municipalities of the state to take such action or adopt such ordinances and resolutions as will enable them to raise money for such care and assistance; to enact laws enabling counties, cities, and other municipalities of the state to divert or borrow from their various funds, such sums as may be necessary to provide for such care and assistance, and to appropriate such further sums from the state treasury to be expended for the care and assistance of needy and destitute persons."

"No. 5.—To investigate and prevent their repetition of the forcing of political contrubutions from the employés of the state of Illinois."

Relief experts said that the relief section is broad enough to permit vast changes in relief. Under it, they said, relief administration may be expanded or the present joint operations of the Illinois Emergency Relief administration and of the Chicago Relief commission may be separated.

Raise Money by Bond Issues.

Stelle may have in mind, the experts said, to enable townships and counties to raise money by bond issues to meet relief indebtedness, which they now cannot do without special legislative permission. He also may have in mind a wish to change residence requirements of relief applicants, or a desire to unify the several independent assistance agencies—state direct relief, blind assistance, old age assistance, and dependent children assistance.

The section relating to political contributions is aimed at the slush fund collection of the Illinoisans to which state employés, including civil service, were forced to contribute 2 per cent of their salaries. The fund, partially tied up by an injunction, has been estimated at as high as $200,000. The slush fund scandal was heightened by the recent strange death of F. Lynden Smith, Horner official, who superintended the collection.

UNION OFFICIAL'S SON INDICTED IN $20,000 PWA FRAUD

New York, April 8 [Special].—Frauds amounting to $20,000, on nine PWA contracts totaling about $75,000, were attributed to Daniel Quigley Jr., two other men, and a corporation in an indictment opened today in federal court. Quigley was described as a son of the vice president of the District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

According to Jay Slonim, assistant United States attorney, the contracts were for laying floors in nine New York City schools.

Defendants besides Quigley are Irving Suben, his partner; Harry Greenbaum, and J. Greenbaum & Sons, Inc. They are accused of filing false pay roll statements. The statements listed salaries for employés at $11.20 a day, when actually they received $6 to $9.50 a day, it is alleged.

The same defendants were indicted in June, 1938, by another federal grand jury. They pleaded not guilty to charges involving kickbacks of wages paid their employés.

DELAY DELIVERY OF VOTE SUPPLIES TO 140 PRECINCTS

Ballots and supplies for today's primary election were withheld last night from 140 of the city's precincts when deliveries were made to the rest of the 3,648 precincts. The ballots withheld were ordered to be delivered at 5:30 a. m. today, half an hour before the polls open. An election board official who declined to be quoted by name said the precincts were those in which there had been trouble in previous elections.

STELLE CLAIMS GOVERNORSHIP; VOWS CLEANUP

Two Calls Are Issued for Special Session.

Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, who yesterday proclaimed himself acting governor of Illinois, followed this unprecedented action last night by pledging a thoro cleanup of the state government. He promised to halt payment of tribute by firms doing business with the state, to stop slush fund collections, and to take state employés out of politics.

Stelle announced his cleanup campaign on his arrival in Chicago from Springfield to deliver the final radio address of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor. He left behind him in the capital unparalleled confusion as to whether he or Gov. Henry Horner, who has been an invalid for 18 months, holds the reins of government.

Probe of $250,000 Contract.

Stelle said his first move would be an investigation of a hitherto unrevealed $250,000 contract given by a Horner press agent to a Chicago advertising agency to advertise Illinois. Charges have been made that the contract masked the use of state funds for campaigning by the regular Democratic organization.

Stelle's announcement of his crusade against graft and slush operations climaxed a series of dramatic events without counterpart in the history of Illinois. These developments were:

1. Stelle strode into the capitol at 10 o'clock in the morning, entered the middle office of the executive suite, and proclaimed himself acting governor of Illinois.

2. Stelle then "fired" S. L. Nudelman, state finance director, regarded as the head of Gov. Horner's bedside cabinet of unelected officials. Nudelman denied Stelle had authority to fire him.

3. A call for a special session of the legislature, to convene April 30, was issued by Stelle. It included a slush fund investigation and poor relief measures among its 14 points. Gov. Horner issued a cal. last Saturday. It did not mention slush or relief legislation.

4. Gov. Horner and the sickroom regents fought back at Stelle with a statement issued over Horner's typewritten name at the executive mansion. "I was elected governor; I will continue to serve as governor," the statement said.

5. Attorney General John Cassidy, a Horner appointee, declared Stelle's assumption of the governorship was unconstitutional. Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes refused to recognize Stelle.

6. State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, political ally of Stelle, declared he would not approve payment of Nudelman's salary, or approve any vouchers signed by Nudelman. Barrett said pay rolls must be signed by Homer Mat Adams, named by Stelle as acting finance director. It appeared that either Adams would sign, to prevent pay roll delays, or that the Circuit court in Springfield would be asked to decide which signature is valid: Adams' or Nudelman's.

7. State Treasurer Louie Lewis, who was not expected to recognize Stelle, found himself in a dilemma because of possible liability of himself and his bondsmen if any payments were made contrary to Stelle's wishes. Lewis' predicament strengthened the likelihood of a court test.

8. State Senator George M. Maypole, president pro tem of the senate, followed Stelle's lead and announced that as next in line of succession, he [Maypole] is now acting lieutenant governor of Illinois.

Nudelman Fired by Stelle

Sam L. Nudelman, state finance director (left), and Arthur O'Brien, Gov. Horner's secretary, in governor's office of statehouse yesterday as Lieut. Gov. John Stelle arrived. Stelle proclaimed himself acting governor and fired Nudelman, who declined to accept his discharge.

STELLE DEFENDS COUP

Asserts Only His Session Call Is a Legal One

In his radio address last night Stelle, who is an attorney, attacked Gov. Horner's call for a special session of the legislature as illegal because it was issued from the executive mansion instead of from the capitol. His own call, Stelle asserted, was legal and according to the constitution which empowers the lieutenant governor to act in the disability of the governor.

"The constitution and statutes," said Stelle, "provide that the call, as well as other official business of the state, must be executed in the executive offices of the state capitol. The executive mansion is not a part of the state capitol. Rather it is one of the emoluments of the governorship.

"My action this morning is in line with my announced intention several days ago of issuing a call to coincide with any purported call that might come from the executive mansion, in order that the lawmakers of this state will have a legal call to which to respond.

Put Off 14 Times.

"Many questionable circumstances attach to the other [Horner's] call which came from the mansion in the late hours of Saturday night.

"When the call had been announced fourteen times in the last eight months, and put off fourteen times, what occasioned the great haste in announcing it just two days before the primary?

"Why, when the state laws specify that the call shall be issued from the state capitol, did the news story say the call was signed in the governor's Lincoln library, and the accompanying photograph shows the governor in pajamas and bath robe seated at his bedside with a cigar in his left hand and a pen in his right hand posed over a sheet of paper lying on the bed?

"Why, when a facsimile of the purported call appearing side by side with the photograph bore the testimony, 'Done at the State Capitol' did the picture bear witness to the contrary?"

Stelle said the Horner call was issued as a political expedient on primary eve after the bedside cabinet ignored the matter of old age pensions for months and likewise ignored pleas of the Chicago Emergency Relief commission for a special session to aid the relief situation here and four similar requests from the city council.

HORNER COUNTER ATTACK

Issued by Press Agent; Says People Aren't Fooled

Mr. Horner's counterattack on Stelle was handed out by Milburn P. Akers, his press agent, who holds the title of state director of public reports.

"I know that the people of Illinois are neither fooled nor intimidated by today's antics of the lieutenant governor," read the statement. "I was elected governor; I will continue to serve as governor. I will continue to perform my constitutional duty as governor until the expiration of my term.

"The lieutenant governor seeks merely to intimidate and coerce state employés. They will not be intimidated. They, I know, will repudiate Mr. Stelle at the polls tomorrow. The pathetic antics of the lieutenant governor in these closing hours of the campaign are so foolishly desperate that they should be met with an attitude of pity rather than censure."

Confusion was the order of the day in Springfield after Stelle's pronouncement. Many state pay rollers addressed him as "Governor." Others made heroic efforts to walk the political tightrope, leaving themselves room to fall on the winning side.

There was no assurance that the primaries will untangle the mess. Stelle declared he will serve as acting governor regardless of whether he wins or loses at the polls today.

The governmental functions concerned in the turmoil are vital to health and safety. They include the adjutant general's office and the National Guard; the department of public works, with its divisions of highways and waterways, and the state police; the department of public welfare with its prisons, insane asylums, and homes for the aged and for the blind; the departments of agriculture, conservation, and health, as well as the department of finance.

THE STATEHOUSE DRAMA

How Legislature Got Two Calls for Special Session

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Stelle went to the capitol in Springfield at 10 a. m. and took the elevator to his own office on the third floor—the office of the lieutenant governor at the rear of the senate chamber over which he has presided for the last four years. The desks of the senators were dust covered as Stelle and his faithful friend and adviser, Representative Schaefer O'Neill of Alton, walked by. Stelle sat down to study his call to the legislature which had been prepared in the last few days and had just been typed.

Hughes Signs Horner Call.

Meanwhile on the second floor Secretary Hughes had received the legislative call which bore the signature of Gov. Horner. Hughes said it was brought to his office by the messenger [name not given] who usually brings matters from the governor's mansion. Horner's call also set April 30 as the date for the legislature to convene.

Before acting, Secretary Hughes posed in front of the great seal of the state of Illinois, pen in hand, for the cameramen. Prior to his signing the document, the seal was locked. As Hughes signed the Horner call the lack was removed and Hughes then accommodated the photographers as he pasted a gold seal on the paper and then turned the handle which pressed the metal impression seal on to the paper.

"What about the call Gov. Stelle is to bring here in a few minutes?" Hughes was asked.

"This is THE call," Hughes replied, referring to the Horner document.

Stelle walked in at that moment and said, "Hello, Ed."

"Hello, John," Hughes returned, and the two officials shook hands.

Secretary Leaves Office.

"I'll have my call here in five minutes," Stelle said, and Hughes smiled pleasantly but engimatically. Then they parted.

A minute later Hughes, wearing hat and overcoat, left the office. Lewis Vogel, chief clerk of the index department of the secretary's office, left with Hughes. Employés of the office said Vogel is an expert on legal matters pertaining to that office. Both went to the offices of Attorney General John Cassidy, across the street.

Leaving Hughes' office, Stelle crossed the hall and stopped in front of the office with "Governor" on its arched door.

Arthur P. O'Brien, secretary to Horner for the last seven years, stepped out and shook hands with Stelle, each calling the other by his first name.

Inner Office Locked.

"I will want to sign a document in here in a few minutes," Stelle announced.

"Well, I guess we can't stop you from doing that," O'Brien observed as Stelle turned away.

But immediately O'Brien went inside and to the inner office, the door of which he locked.

When Stelle returned five minutes later he walked to that locked door and attempted to open it. His pull brought no result, so he turned to O'Brien and asked who locked it.

"It was locked by the governor's orders," O'Brien said.

"Gov. Nudelman?" asked Stelle, and when there was no answer Stelle sat down at the nearest desk and signed his name to the call. This was done in what is termed the middle office. The entrance to the executive office is a reception room. Then comes an office at which O'Brien and a woman secretary have desks. Further inside is the private office of the governor—the one that was locked.

CHALLENGE BY CASSIDY

Advises State Officials to Ignore Stelle Orders

Soon after Stelle's assumption of the governor's office a statement challenging its legality was issued by the Horner appointed attorney general, Cassidy. Four years ago Cassidy ran against Stelle for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor; Stelle won. Later Horner found a place for Cassidy when the elected attorney general, Otto Kerner, was appointed a federal judge.

Cassidy, as Horner's attorney general, obtained the first peek at the papers and documents of the late F. Lynden Smith, Horner campaign manager, whose strange death on March 9 is still unsolved. Smith held the secrets of the slush fund collections of the Horner Democrats. Cassidy has not made public the contents of his discoveries relating to Smith. His opinion today was unsolicited. He said Hughes did not consult him.

Attorney General's Statement.

Cassidy's statement was released to newspaper men as Stelle was leaving for Chicago. It said in part:

"As attorney general I wish to advise the different state officials that the action of Mr. Stelle in this respect is not supported by the constitution and that any action which he may assume to take in place of Gov. Horner will be absolutely null and void and without legal effect."

Having signed the document which signified his view that he was in fact the governor of the state of Illinois, Stelle walked once more across the hall into the office of the secretary of state. He asked for Hughes, and a dozen or so employés seemed embarrassed. A girl clerk on the other side of the counter from Stelle spoke up: "Mr. Hughes went out and will be back later." She said her name was Miss Dorothy Dee.

Stelle Hands Over Call.

"I am handing you this call," said Stelle and she took the document gingerly into her fingers. It was left on the top of the counter, an object which all other employés of the office seemed afraid to handle and which, apparently, Miss Dee had dropped as if it were hot.

Later Stelle sought to reach Hughes on the telephone in the office of Attorney General Cassidy, but did not complete the call.

"I am now acting governor, under the constitution of the state of Illinois," Stelle next said as his secretary handed him the telephone and told him the director of the department of agriculture was on the wire. "I expect you to do your duty by the people of the state."

In a few minutes Chief Walter Williams of the state highway police was reported at the other end of a telephone wire.

Reports Williams' Support.

"Walter, I have assumed the office of governor, as it was my duty to do," Stelle was heard to say. "I know you are a good police officer and I expect you to do your duty to the public and not to become involved in politics. I expect you to cooperate and I have confidence in you."

"Thank you, governor, I'll cooperate," he quoted Williams as telling him.

Next came the announcement of the discharge of Finance Director Nudelman, the principal target of Stelle in the primary campaign.

Letter Sent to Nudelman.

"You are hereby notified that by virtue of the power conferred on me by Section 12 of Part 5 of the constitution, I hereby remove you from office as director of the department of finance of the state of Illinois," said the letter written by Stelle to Nudelman, "for the following reasons, to wit: Incompetence, neglect of duty, and malfeasance. I have sent a copy of this notice to the auditor of public accounts."

"I refused to accept dismissal under such circumstances," Nudelman told newspaper men. "It's just as tho the janitor told me I was fired."

ILLINOIS VOTES TODAY ON BITTER PRIMARY RACES

Stelle Jolts Democrats; G. O. P. Is Calm.

when Stelle proclaimed himself acting governor.

Adamowski continued to hammer at the strongbox issue here and there, and Barrett went on denouncing the dictators who scorned a faithful public servant, but they could not win the public ear so long as Stelle was going on with his program.

The indignation of the regular organization was great. Unwilling to appear to concede that Stelle's move might have a big effect on the voting today, they sought quietly to offset it. A part of this program was a hurry-up call for former Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, Stelle's predecessor in office, to go on the air and tell the public how ridiculous Stelle's action was in the eyes of the law.

One effect of the Springfield clash—and Republicans were inclined to worry about it—was to threaten a substantial increase in the total Democratic vote in the state.

Against this suspected tendency all Republican leaders in all camps strove to hold their followers steady. That accounted largely for the quiet tone of their last appeals.

Lyons Reviews Platform.

A dozen persons, including the candidate, joined in a primary eve broadcast from Lyons' home in Libertyville. Lyons' own talk reviewed his platform, renewed his pledge to take the sales tax off food, and concluded:

"If you give me the Republican banner to carry I will give you a campaign from now until November which will not be a mere crusade. It will be a war to destroy every vestige of Kelly-Nash, New Deal domination, not only in city, county, and state, but in our national government as well.

"With Brooks for senator and Lyons for governor we will join you in waging such a campaign against New Dealism, graft, and corruption as will insure the election of Republican county tickets, the Republican state and congressional nominees, and put Illinois so far over into the Republican column that our 29 electoral votes will be cast for a Republican President of the United States of America."

Earlier Work Praised.

James E. Hill of Streator, downstate Lyons-Brooks manager, on the same program praised Lyons for his downstate campaign work in 1932, 1934, and 1936, when he was not a candidate for office, and said that in 1938, when Lyons ran for senator, the G. O. P. made big gains downstate.

Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Cook county central committee, another speaker, called Lyons "the greatest fighter and the greatest campaigner in the Republican party," and Patrick Sheridan Smith, manager of the Cook county campaign, said he never before saw ward committeemen and precinct captains so enthusiastic for a candidate.

The others who took part were Mrs. Lyons, the two Lyons children, Lucille and Richard, the Rev. G. M. Garber of the Presbyterian church of Libertyville, Mrs. Mabel Krutckoff, Mrs. Ernest B. Griffin, and William Marks, chairman of the Lake county central committee.

Green Pledges Fight.

In his windup Green pledged a continued fight against the Democratic political machines if he is nominated, recalling his charge that the 1939 mayoral election was stolen from him. He asked for an outpouring of independent citizens today to help him carry on this fight. His speech was broadcast from the La Salle hotel.

"The political machine must be destroyed," Green said. "The Kelly-Nash Democratic machine in Chicago and the Springfield gang have combined to perpetuate themselves in power. Their waste and corruption have criminally increased your tax bills.

"They have repeatedly stolen elections from the people. If I am elected governor of Illinois I will complete the job so nearly accomplished last April. I will not stop until we destroy both the Springfield and the Kelly-Nash political machines.

"There is no Green machine in Illinois. There will never be a Green machine in Illinois."

Promises Sales Tax Action.

Green promised that he would use every means to remove the sales tax from food. He said that if technicalities make the attempt unsuccessful he will compensate for it by giving an equal amount of relief from taxes in some other direction.

Green also said he has specific plans for reducing state pay rolls by between 15 and 25 per cent, which he would carry out if elected.

"I shall see to it," he said, "that the next administration gives all possible and proper encouragement to the retention and expansion of existing business within our state, and to the adoption of policies which will attract new and additional industry."

Brooks Predicts Victory.

Brooks, in a radio speech, predicted he would carry every county in his race for the G. O. P. senatorial nomination. He was introduced by John C. O'Halloran, international organizer for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, as "the man with a million friends."

Brooks repeated statements that the two most dangerous things which the world faces are centralization of power and war. He said the Republican party is the only medium thru which these things can be averted and, with them, dictatorship.

He then thanked the voters for their support and said he based his prediction of victory on reports reaching him thru telegraph, telephone, and letter. He will remain in Chicago today.

Church Reviews Record.

Congressman Church, in his last talk to the voters back home, reviewed his record during 22 years as a national and state representative.

Church's speech was made by radio from Washington, whence he did nearly all his campaigning.

"I think it is true," he said, "that actions speak louder than words. When we Republicans present our case to the people this fall are we going to ask that the New Deal be judged by what the New Dealers say or what they have actually done?"

Stelle Asks Fight on Machine.

Stelle, in a radio address, urged the voters to smash the Kelly-Nash machine, which he charged has ruled in tyranny over the citizens of the state.

"The machine will roll today," asserted Stelle. "Boss Kelly personally has supervised its oiling and his chief mechanic, Jacob Arvey, has checked its motors. The machine's objective is the heritage of freedom which has come down to us from our forefathers.

"The machine aims at control of the ballot box, and control of the ballot box takes from the people that weapon which our forefathers provided for the protection and preservation of our freedom. The machine must be destroyed, or it will destroy us as a free people.

Tells Group's Program.

"I and my fellow candidates—Adamowski and Barrett—have offered what we believe to be a substantial and necessary program for the future of Illinois. But our opposition—the harmony ticket—has offered no program, possibly because of a complete lack of any experience whatever in the affairs of state government, but more probably because the bosses have not made up their minds about such trivial matters, being concerned at the moment with the problem of readying their machine for election day.

"My plea to you tonight is that you, the people of Illinois, will take time out for a few minutes to visit the polling place and vote, as Americans, to preserve our heritage of freedom."

Ditchburne Asks Big Vote.

Harry S. Ditchburne, who seeks the Republican nomination as candidate for state's attorney, closed his campaign of urging voters to roll up the largest primary vote ever recorded in Cook county. He said country town voters should remember they can vote the Republican primary regardless of their former affiliations because no other primary has been held since the enactment of the new primary law in 1939.

"With a large primary and a full expressionf rom the people," he declared, "we cannot fail to nominate a ticket that will sweep the New Deal into oblivion in November."

DEWEY-VANDENBERG VOTE RACE RESUMES IN NEBRASKA TODAY

Lincoln, Neb., April 8 (AP).—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, will renew their jousting for farm belt support tomorrow in a Nebraska primary election coming on the heels of a cheering week-end rain and expected to draw 275,000 voters.

President Roosevelt is unopposed on the Democratic preference ballot. The preferential vote, under Nebraska law, is not binding on the state's 14 convention delegates, but is considered a moral obligation and has been violated only a few times.

Dewey's final word to the voters, before whom he appeared twice, was that the vote would be "a rebuke to the New Deal administration." Vandenberg, who did not appear personally in the state but addressed the voters by radio, was represented by Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, who came to Nebraska for radio talks.

NEW ELEVATOR SECTION URGED IN BUILDING CODE

The building and zoning committee of the city council yesterday recommended that the council adopt a revised elevator section for the new building code. The revised section would provide more strict regulation of remodeling operations that affect the speed, capacity, or weight of elevators, but would not affect remodelling for the purpose of improving cab interiors or general appearance. The elevator section now in the new code was rushed thru, it was said, so passage of the entire code would not be delayed. The suggested changes, it was added, were recommended by architects, and conform to a standard elevator section used in most large cities.

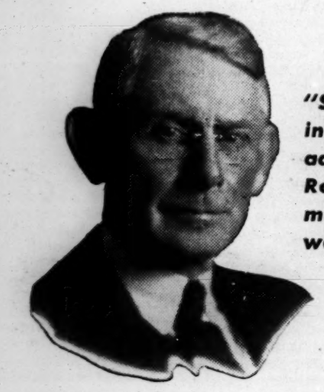
Chicago STOP-and-GO can be cut 35%!

Join the SHARE-THE-ROAD Club today!



"Shell's 'Share-the-Road' Club is a boon to Chicago in that it offers a specific way to reduce needless accidents and speed the flow of traffic. 'Share-the-Road' for both motorists and pedestrians will do much to correct discourteous driving and careless walking habits."

George N. Fleming

General Secretary, Mayor Kelly's "Keep Chicago Safe" Committee

35% of today's Stop-and-Go driving—the costliest kind there is—can be wiped out!

That's the news coming from Shell research, which produced new Super-Shell and new Shell Premium—the gasolines that have the highest Road Performance Rating (R. P. R.) in Shell history!

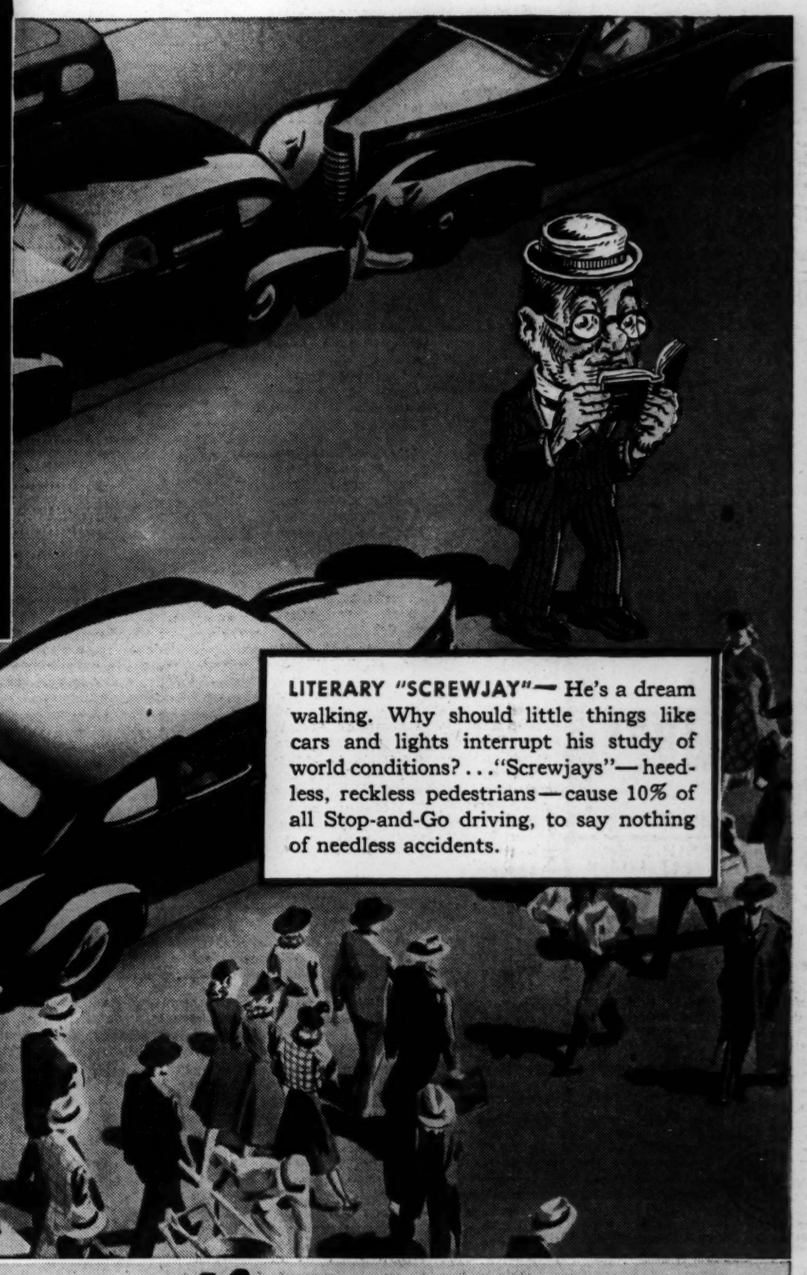
R. P. R. is the true measure of a gasoline's performance in your car. "Highest R. P. R." means faster starting, faster pick-up, higher anti-knock, more power and "go" in all gears, in all speeds. It results from Shell's "balancing" process—no single performance quality is emphasized at the expense of others. There's no "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

With new Super-Shell or new Shell Premium in your fuel tank, and a Share-the-Road emblem on your car, you're doing something about Stop-and-Go.

The Share-the-Road Club—a nation-wide force of more than 5,000,000 motorists—is public opinion at work against "Screwdrivers" and those heedless pedestrians, "Screwjays." It's crusading for decent driving—careful walking—for safety . . . Join today at your Shell Dealer's and receive your new 1940 day and night emblem FREE.

FREE at SHELL DEALERS

The new 1940 Share-the-Road emblem shines day and night. Warns "Screwdrivers" and "Screwjays." Gives your car extra protection. Drive into your Shell Dealer's today—enroll as a Share-the-Road Club member—and he'll put one on your car FREE.



SLOW-MOTION "SCREWDRIVERS"—They always have to wake him up when the light turns green, so by the time he gets going, the drivers behind are caught behind another "red"... Remember, your engine uses 3 times as much gasoline in low and second gears as in high—when a "Screwdriver" or "Screwjay" brings you to a needless stop, you pay.

LITERARY "SCREWJAY"—He's a dream walking. Why should little things like cars and lights interrupt his study of world conditions?..."Screwjays"—heedless, reckless pedestrians—cause 10% of all Stop-and-Go driving, to say nothing of needless accidents.

"And here are the two new gasolines that save even more on STOP-and-GO"

QUICK FACTS ON NEW SUPER-SHELL

Q. Is it higher in anti-knock?

A. Yes—much! Try NEW SUPER-SHELL on the steepest hill you can find. You can feel the difference!

Q. Is NEW SUPER-SHELL quick starting?

A. Yes. NEW SUPER-SHELL is the fastest starting regular grade of motor fuel we've ever made! Check it with a stop-watch!

Q. How about economy?

A. Just test it! NEW SUPER-SHELL is made by Shell's "Balancing Process," so the improvement in performance qualities means increased savings on Stop-and-Go—the costliest kind of driving.

Q. Does NEW SUPER-SHELL cost more to make?

A. Yes—but costs you no more to buy.

QUICK FACTS ON NEW SHELL PREMIUM

Q. Is its anti-knock stepped up?

A. Decidedly! If your car's anti-knock requirement is far above the average, NEW SHELL PREMIUM will amaze you with its smooth, steady, knockless power!

Q. Quick starting?

A. Like a flash! We know of none faster!

Q. Better mileage?

A. Absolutely! Because NEW SHELL PREMIUM is also made by Shell's "Balancing" process you can expect increased savings on your costly Stop-and-Go.

Q. What about the price?

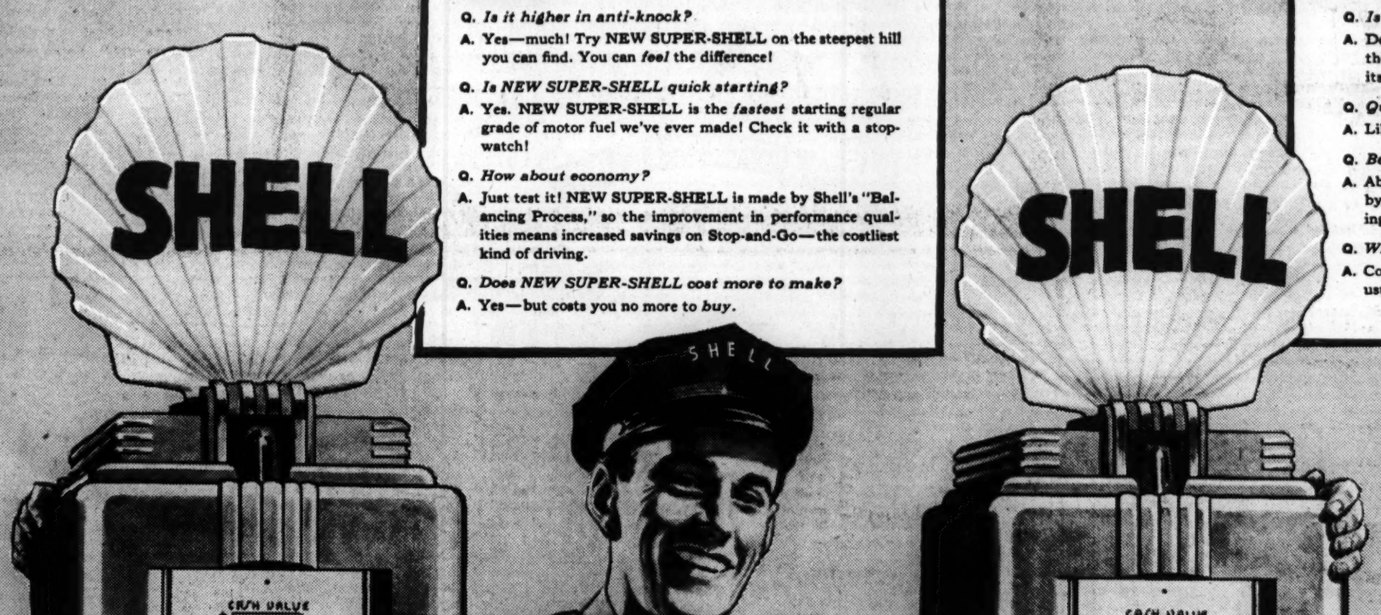
A. Costs plenty more to make, but costs you no more than the usual extra price.



To get full advantage of the High R.P.R. of these new BALANCED motor fuels ...Do not dilute them with ordinary gasolines

110 ARE IN FIELD FOR G. O. P. WARD COMMITTEEMEN

36 Posts Contested; 40 Democrats Unopposed.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Election of 50 Republican ward committeemen today will have an important effect on the makeup of local party machinery. Ward committeemen, members of the party county central committee, will be elected in both parties. Democratic incumbents face little opposition.

The Republican county committee is scheduled to meet immediately after the primary to elect new officers. The present chairman is Edward F. Moore, 30th ward committeeman. Altho the factions in the committee are not entirely split along lines represented by the Richard J. Lyons-Dwight H. Green state tickets, those slates have served to enliven the ward contests. The 30 township committee members, representing townships outside Chicago, were elected two years ago and have two more years to serve.

Contests on in 36 Wards.

There are Republican contests in 35 o fthe 50 wards. There are 108 candidates. Forty-nine of them, of whom 39 are incumbents, are supporting the Lyons organization. Forty-six candidates, including six incumbents, are with the Green faction. The remaining 15 are unaffiliated.

The following table lists all Republican ward committeeman candidates with their party faction affiliations. An asterisk [*] denotes incumbency; L, Lyons; G, Green, and B, Wayland Brooks.

On the Democratic side 40 incumbent committeemen are unopposed for reëlection. Of the 10 contests three—in the 16th, 36th, and 47th wards—are of special interest.

Ald. Boyle Seeks Post.

In the 16th, Ald. John S. Boyle is a candidate against the incumbent, Terence F. Moran. Last year, as a candidate supporting State's Attorney Thomas Courtney in the mayoralty contest, Boyle defeated Moran for the aldermanic post. Moran is a regular organization man. If he loses to Boyle for the committee post, Boyle will have complete political control of the ward.

In the 36th, Ald. Richard Walsh is attempting to gain full control of the ward. George W. Robinson, former alderman who lost to Walsh in last year's aldermanic election, is a candidate for committeeman on the regular organization ticket. Walsh was elected alderman last year with the support of State Representative Benjamin Adamowski, now insurgent Democratic candidate for United States senator, and has Adamowski's backing in the present campaign.

Glass Veil for Bride

The brides of the future may be veiled in glass, according to a preview yesterday of the second annual Fashion seminar which will be held Saturday in the Palmer house.

The bride of the fashion show wears pink satin veiled in what looks like white chiffon, as does her short harem veil. Both are made of safety glass—thin, soft and pliable, its seams vulcanized instead of sewn.

Among other synthetic fabrics to be modeled is a gray fabric, made into a tailored suit, made of a by-product of milk. One of the few old fashioned materials used in the show is cotton lace, fashioned into a garden dress, but it doesn't even look like lace. It looks like quilted brocade.

Approximately 300 clubwomen and educators are expected to attend the seminar, which will be conducted all day. Mrs. Amena Elliott Webster, a member of the Fashion Group of Chicago, is in charge.

A woman about 48 years old, who appeared to be suffering from amnesia, was found last night in the Dearborn street railroad station by the Travelers' Aid society, which turned her over to the Psychopathic hospital.

WIDOW TO SEEK HOUSE SEAT OF MAINE MEMBER

Washington, D. C., April 8 [Special].—In accordance with the last wish of her husband, who died early this morning, the widow of Representative Clyde H. Smith [R., Me.] will enter the race for his seat in congress, her associates announced tonight.

Mrs. Clyde H. Smith.

Smith, the 24th member of the 76th congress to die in office, was 63 years old and had been a member of the house since 1936. Funeral services will be held here tomorrow, after which the body will be taken to Skowhegan, Me., for burial.

An immediate decision on Mrs. Smith's part was necessary, because Maine primary filings close on April 15. Her race will be for representation of the 2d district, comprising Sormerset, Franklin, Kennebec, Androscoggin, Lincoln, Knox, and Waldo counties.

Appeals Court Reverses Reckless Driving Term

The Appellate court yesterday reversed the conviction on reckless driving charges of August Lockefeer, 4325 North McVickers avenue, sentenced last May 4 by Judge Jay Schiller to 10 days in jail. On Jan. 18, 1939, his car struck and killed George Minnes, 13, of 4410 North Long avenue, the son of a policeman, and injured Casper Herzog, 6, of 5400 Montrose avenue, at Long and Montrose avenues. The ruling held that the accident was caused by a broken spring in the accelerator which caused Lockefeer to lose control.

A WOMAN TELLS HOW CAPONE KIN RAN MIAMI UNION

Miami, Fla., April 8 (AP).—Mrs. Myrtle Buckholtz told State's Attorney G. A. Worley today that membership in the Miami Waiters and Bartenders' union swelled quickly after Dan Coughlin, brother-in-law of Al Capone, became its business agent.

The woman, formerly the union's executive secretary, said reluctance to join the union or permit unionization of night spots usually disappeared after a remark was dropped that "Al Capone's brother-in-law will be in to see you." She testified in Worley's investigation into charges that racketeering had entered the organization. Coughlin and Al Berlin, president, denied the allegations when questioned last week.

Mrs. Buckholtz asserted that waiters had to pay to get their jobs; all waiters and bartenders had instructions to push the use of a certain brand of Chicago beer and a sparkling water sold by Frank Nitti, once known as "the enforcer" for the Capone gang, and that conditions here were known by the Miami Central Labor union and the international union.

METHODISTS CRITICIZE TAYLOR APPOINTMENT AS ENVOY TO VATICAN

New York, April 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt's appointment of Myron C. Taylor as special peace envoy to the Vatican was criticized as unnecessary today by the 141st annual New York Methodist conference.

"We believe the appointment," the conference said in a resolution, "while made in all sincerity of purpose, was unnecessary, and we appreciate the fears raised among many Protestant denominations that it might create a dangerous precedent, in view of the American tradition of separation of church and state.

"We accept the President's assurances that the appointment does not constitute the inauguration of formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican, and that there was not the slightest intention to raise any question relating to the union of the functions of church and state."

CENSUS TAKER POLITICS CITED BY ADAMOWSKI

Benjamin S. Adamowski, candidate for the United States senate on the insurgent Democratic slate, sent a telegram yesterday to Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] repeating charges that federal census workers in Illinois are being forced to aid in the political campaign of the Democratic machine in violation of the Hatch clean politics bill.

The telegram was an answer to a request from Senator Tobey, leader of the fight in Washington against census snooping, for details of charges previously made by Adamowski. In his answer Adamowski said a woman census taker in Champaign, Ill., was seen with a bundle of literature advocating nomination of the Kelly-Nash-Nudelman ticket. He also said William J. Walsh, patronage dispenser for the Nudelman organization, had handled the appointment of census takers.

Are you on this "Merry-Go-Round"?

"Going around in circles" is the way many scientists describe the old-fashioned idea of combating constipation. You wait for it to strike you, treat it with an emergency cathartic, and then relax—until, after a few days, it rolls right back again.

Happily, a better way has been discovered—a way that is recommended by thousands of physicians and proven in millions of homes. Instead of first enduring constipation and then repeatedly trying to "cure" it, why not avoid it altogether by getting at its cause? It's very simple if your trouble is the common kind that's due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet.

A delicious breakfast cereal, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is the "ounce of prevention" you need. ALL-BRAN supplies the essential "bulk," so often missing in modern diets. If you eat it every day, and drink plenty of water, you can not only get "regular" but keep "regular," month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew. Ask your grocer for ALL-BRAN today.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

John Knox hated Mary

The Queen of Scotland had been brought up in the luxury of the French Court with a love for art, music and dancing. Knox, the preacher, was a rigid opponent of the "frivolous and gay." So this woman who inspired love in most men and women, suffered from the relentless hatred of Knox.

Of all Mary's characteristics, one of her greatest was the gift for friendship. It was this that, in long-past years, impelled the makers of our whisky to name it for the Highland Queen. It is a light and delicate Scotch, yet it retains rare flavor and bouquet.

KILLS LEGISLATOR OVER JOB; DIES AS POLICE QUIZ HIM

Lawyer Shot and Knifed; Slayer Takes Poison.

A. Andrew Torrence.

A. Andrew Torrence, colored, Republican state representative from the 3d district and a candidate for renomination in today's election, was slain yesterday by a disgruntled political worker who attacked him with a gun and a knife in Torrence's law office at 3458 South State street.

Two hours later the assassin, Cornelius Woodward, 54 years old, 3558 Prairie avenue, also colored, died of poison as police were questioning him in the Criminal courts building. An autopsy showed he had swallowed 3 to 4 ounces of copper sulphate, a poison that is deadly only in big doses. No one saw him take it. Doctors indicated it took an hour to kill him.

Quarreled Over Job.

Before collapsing, Woodward admitted attacking Torrence because he thought the state representative was stalling in promising to get him a job after today's primary. The assassin had been a 2d ward precinct captain for seven years before being replaced a year ago.

"I had been after Torrence to get me my job back, or get me a new one," he told police.

Torrence, 36 years old and a bachelor, lived at 3918 Prairie avenue. He admitted Woodward to his private office shortly after noon. Their voices rose in a quarrel and a secretary outside heard Torrence say: "Give me a chance." Woodward replied: "You took my job; I'll kill you." Three shots then rang out.

Discovered Slashing Victim.

When James Brooks, 3959 Wabash avenue, a precinct supervisor, broke down the door, Woodward was slashing at Torrence's head with a knife. One shot had struck Torrence in the left chest, his throat had been cut and there were other slashes.

Woodward fled after menacing Brooks. Passing police who heard the shots captured him. Officers said he might have taken the poison while being taken to the Criminal court building in a police patrol.

Today's voting probably will be permitted to proceed as tho Torrence were still alive, according to William E. King, Republican 2d ward committeeman. Then the canvassing board probably will declare a vacancy and the nominee will be named by the Republican senatorial committee.

COURT SETTLES A STRONG CASE AGAINST A MAID

In his salads and roasts Robert J. Twyman, 1411 North State parkway, contractor, likes a hint of garlic. But the plate of roast beef set before him Saturday, Twyman said yesterday in the Women's court, had great hunks of the fragrant herb imbedded in it.

Mr. Twyman said he exploded. The next to explode was the Twyman maid, Miss Betty Naughton, 32 years old. So violent was the argument, said Twyman, that he had to duck an atlas Miss Naughton hurled at him. Hence his reason for calling the police.

Miss Naughton said she didn't know why any one would like garlic, but if they did, and she looked at her former employer, he ought to tell the cook how much. Because Miss Naughton no longer is the Twyman cook, Judge William V. Daly dismissed a disorderly conduct charge, but admonished her to learn the ways of garlic lovers.

ROOSEVELT VETO PUT ON BILL TO OUST ALIEN SPIES

Deportation Plan Is Called Superfluous.

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt today vetoed the Starnes alien deportation bill, maintaining that its penalties for alien spies and saboteurs were superfluous and that its application to narcotic addicts was too harsh.

The bill would require the deportation of alien spies, saboteurs, narcotic peddlers and addicts.

In his veto message to the house the President said with references to the spy and sabotage provisions: "Among law for the deportation of alliens guilty of such activities, for the secretary of labor is already authorized to deport them if, after hearings, it is found that they are undesirable residents of the United States."

Ouster Would Be Mandatory.

When the measure was before the house, Representative Joe Starnes [D., Ala.] had explained that his bill would make such deportations mandatory, while under present law deportation was discretionary with the labor secretary.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his discussion of the bill, asserted he had no criticism of a provision calling for deportation of any alien convicted of any federal or state narcotic law.

He found most fault with a provision which he said would make mandatory the deportation of any alien who at any time, either before or after the passage of the act, has been lawfully committed to a public or private institution as an habitual user of narcotic drugs.

Holds It's a Disease.

"While severe treatment should properly be meted out to purveyors of narcotics," Mr. Roosevelt said, "enlightened consideration of the entire subject inescapably leads to the conclusion that this principle does not necessarily apply to the unfortunate addicts of drugs, who do not participate in peddling them to others.

"Addiction to narcotics is to be regarded as a lamentable disease rather than as a crime."

BIOFF FACES JAIL IN WEEK UNLESS HIGH COURT ACTS

If the Illinois Supreme court does not agree to reconsider its refusal to grant Willie Bioff his freedom on a writ by next Monday, the Hollywood union leader will be sent to the Bridewell that day to complete a six month sentence imposed 18 years ago for pandering.

Willie Bioff.

Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court yesterday delayed signing his order of March 15 denying Bioff a writ which would have voided his conviction. But the judge warned Bioff and his lawyer, State Senator Abe Marovitz, that the continuance would be the last. "If there is no action by the Supreme court by Monday," Judge Prystalski said, "we'll close the case right there."

The Supreme court refused Wednesday to grant Bioff a writ.

VILLAGE OFFERS $1,000 REWARD IN POLICE BOMBING

The village board of River Forest last night offered a $1,000 reward for the apprehension of the person or persons who placed a dynamite bomb in the automobile of Policeman Walter E. Gray. He was maimed last Wednesday when the bomb exploded as he attempted to start his car in front of his home at 722 Monroe street in the suburb.

John L. Brink, president of the village, told board members that he and the police chief had been examining the record of all arrests made by Gray in an effort to find a clew to the assassin. Brink, when told that villagers were taking up a contribution for Gray, said the village itself would see to it that Gray and his family would want for nothing.

RETRIAL IS SET FOR 2 ACQUITTED BY FIXED JURY

Trial of Samuel Orlando, Democratic captain of the 52d precinct of the 11th ward, and his assistant, Joseph Vinci, charged with vote fraud in the judicial election last June, was set for May 13 yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy in the Criminal court. The case was assigned to him by Chief Justice John Prystalski after Orlando and Vinci asked a change of venue from Judge Prystalski and three of the other six sitting Criminal court judges.

The five members of the precinct election board were named in the same indictment, but will be tried separately. An eighth defendant, Joseph Candella Jr., a party worker, has not been apprehended.

Orlando and Vinci were acquitted last Dec. 20 on similar charges, but investigation disclosed several members of the jury had been fixed. They were reindicted, and Orlando and seven other persons have been named in separate indictments in the jury fixing plot. This case also is pending before Judge Fardy.

WHAT ARE PRIMARIES FOR?

Citizens of Illinois who go to the polls today will be exercising a privilege that at this time remains unimpaired in the United States alone among all the great powers.

Altho some of the British dominions have not put the political franchise away on ice, in Great Britain and France politicians of all parties agreed, on the ground that it would be unwise to disturb the country, not to disturb their own tenure in office by holding general elections during the war.

In Russia, Italy, and Germany the scheme of government admits no such thing as a primary. There is only one party, which is amalgamated with the state. In the totaliterian election the voter finds waiting for him a list of candidates presented by the party and his only function is to vote yes. A member of the secret police breathes down his neck to make sure that he adds no scatological comment on Stalin, Mussolini, or Hitler.

Citizens who consider the situation in other and less happy lands will not be likely to forgo their privilege of voting today.

The laws under which the present primary are conducted give ground for reflections of another sort, concerning the function and nature of political parties in our republican government. Party organizations are recognized by statute. It is the evident intent of such statutes that groups sharing a common philosophy of government should make use of the party primary as an orderly process for nominating candidates to be presented to the general electorate under the party standard. The test by which a voter qualifies to participate in this preliminary selection varies from state to state. It recently has undergone a radical change in Illinois.

County Judge Jarecki's dubious interpretation of the former primary voting requirements, which interpretation furthered his political fortunes in the 1938 primary, caused the legislature last year to reduce the waiting period for a change of parties from two years to 23 months. The full effect of this law will not be observed in this primary, inasmuch as an estimated 150,000 Republican voters who went into the Democratic mayoralty primary are still imprisoned in that party.

There are no important primaries between the one held today and those of 1942. Under the 23 months' provision all voters will thus be eligible to choose the primary in which they want to vote two years from now. Except as mayoralty primaries intervene, Illinois primaries will thereafter be, in effect, open primaries.

The open primary obtains in some states. Wisconsin is an example. It has its critics, who hold that it makes possible for members of one party, who have no contest in their own primary, to go into that of the opposition party and help nominate weak candidates. On behalf of the open primary, it is held that the voter who has undergone a sincere change of political belief should not be disfranchised for one primary before being allowed to help name the candidates of the party of his new choice.

Illinois may want to reconsider its 23 month primary law. If political parties are to stand for a definite philosophy and set of policies, much is to be said for making the test of party regularity strict and imposing a waiting period, even at the cost of temporary disfranchisement on the voter who experiences a change of heart and desires to participate in party councils. If political parties are to be considered as mere coalitions of opportunists adopting any policies that may attract votes regardless of fundamental political philosophy there is no excuse for disfranchising voters and a strong argument for the open primary.

JOHN MATTHEWS MANLY.

John Matthews Manly, professor of English at the University of Chicago, who died a few days ago, was a giant, one of the supreme scholars of his day. Few men have read as widely as he had and still fewer have had his phenomenal memory. His immense and detailed knowledge created what might be called the Manly myth, except that it was no myth; it was the sober truth that the whole field of English literature, philology, and history was his intimate possession.

The myth is of a walking encyclopedia, but Manly was much more than that. He had an acute and daring intellect. Problems which others would shun as incapable of solution would attract him and in the end he managed to crack most of them. He succeeded, for example, in identifying many of the individuals portrayed by Chaucer in the "Canterbury Tales," men and women who were more or less obscure in their own day and are dead these 500 years and more.

Manly's skill as a literary detective proved of great value to his country in the last war. Among scholars it was said that no code or cipher could be devised which he could not solve in short order, and accordingly Prof. Manly became Capt. Manly of the United States army intelligence service in charge of decoding and deciphering enemy documents. There is reason to believe that his achievement fully matched expectations. It is to be hoped that the story of his military career will be recorded in detail; it ought to make one of the best of detective stories.

Prof. Manly had great learning and a penetrating mind. He had also, and especially, literary taste. It was not narrow. His anthology of English poetry, published first in 1907 and subsequently republished in many editions, is, so far as we know, the best thing of its kind available. His selection, it can safely be said, guided the literary taste of a generation and more of American college students.

THEY LOVE THEIR CHIEF.

Illinois New Dealers have been busy with their own affairs these days but not too busy to take an occasional look at what has been going on across the border in Indiana. New Dealers here have joined their fellow workers there in wondering just what the federal government was doing in its investigation of the Hoosier political contributions. The internal revenue department has about completed an inquiry into the collections of Mr. McNutt's 2 Per Cent club and whatever the revenue men have uncovered will be at the disposal of federal prosecutors.

The Illinois faithful also have their 2 Per Cent club. Its collections have been a matter of public notoriety and of grand jury action. It has been reported that the federal investigators were moving in here. The Illinois faithful, however, can congratulate themselves that they showed a great deal more discretion than their comrades across the line. The Illinois New Deal has no favorite native son for the Democratic nomination in July. Indiana has, in the person of the radiant Paul V. McNutt, Mr. Roosevelt's director of the Social Security administration.

The Illinois commissars and comrades have made no such mistake. They are for Mr. Roosevelt for the third term. They say they love him. They would do anything for him except not to renominate him. They will obey him in every other way. They will do just what he wants them to do but they will not take no from him on the third term. He must run again. This devotion to the chief is not equaled any other place in the country.

Mr. McNutt has tried to explain that he is for McNutt only if he cannot have Mr. Roosevelt. This, however, is a weak pledge of loyalty, and Mr. McNutt's followers in Indiana, who themselves say that he is their favorite son only in case Mr. Roosevelt should put aside the crown, are in trouble. Mr. McNutt's great offense is that he has thought of himself as a candidate. That is a dangerous error these days, particularly for New Dealers who do not enjoy congressional immunity.

It has been made apparent that a congressman can look at the nomination as a possibility and not find himself in an uncomfortable situation. That is because it is assumed that if punishment were threatened the congressmen would gang up and start some trouble themselves. They can do that.

Mr. Garner can be a candidate without fear of the secret police. So can Senator Wheeler or any other member of the senate or house. But the New Deal place holders have discovered that they are safe only if they are for the third term, and the louder they talk for it the safer they are. Even Mr. Farley has found that his long record of loyal work and achievement for Mr. Roosevelt has been canceled out by his candidacy. He has heard of things said about him in the White House and the denials that followed didn't deceive him. As an old campaigner he is too wise to make a public display of his sense of injury but his friends know that he was hurt and thought the wallop was one which wouldn't be allowed in the prize ring.

Any one observing what is being done to put the third term over would be justified in concluding that the promotion of that candidacy will stop at nothing.

THE WAR ON THE NEUTRALS.

The small maritime neutrals are finding that this is their war more than it is the war of the alleged belligerents. One combatant torpedoes, bombs, and sinks their ships and kills their sailors. The other two seize their ships and straitjacket their trade and now have laid mines in neutral territorial waters.

Injury done the small countries by one side is made the excuse for injury to be done by the other. The retaliations find the noncombatants in the middle. The burdens of war have been imposed on their uneasy peace. They must bear the expense of part mobilization as well as the economic losses of disrupted trade. Some of their enterprisers can make war profits but few of the countries can hope to escape the anticipated bankruptcy of Europe.

Meanwhile the Maginot line is no more active than the frontiers of the countries presumably at peace. The British government has informed the small neutrals this is their war. The neutrals can reply: You are telling us.

Editorial of the Day

PATENTS UNDER RESTRICTION.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

In a very important decision the Supreme court, acting unanimously, found the Ethyl Gasoline corporation guilty of using its patent rights in such a way as to influence the price and distribution of gasoline. This case will take rank as a significant one because it sets out the legal foundation for a national policy respecting the use of patents and licensing privileges.

The chief aim of the patent system, of course, is to give the inventor—or the person to whom he sells his patent—an exclusive right to the use of a device, formula, or the like for a limited time. This is a method of encouraging invention and research by making it more profitable.

In earlier times the typical patent holder often remained the sole user of the patent. But in recent decades the trend has been toward the widespread licensing of other manufacturers. Thus the benefits of a patent were more widely enjoyed, and the inventor or company controling the patent made its profit in the form of royalties.

The question at issue in the current case was the right of a patent holder to build up a system of licensees by which he could control the price of the product and so eliminate or reduce competition among the actual producers and sellers.

The problem is complex. From the standpoint of public policy, it is desirable to preserve the commercial advantages of a patent. Only in that way can the incentive to invention be maintained. But public policy also requires that competition, and not monopoly, should prevail in business life.

The Supreme court has drawn a careful line between the property right in a patent and the use of that property right to thwart competition. Guided by that court decision, the government should be able to pursue its antimonopoly policy the better, and without encroaching on the normal opportunity of patent holders to license others and so profit by the wider use of new inventions.

We first became politically conscious when, as a very small boy holding to our father's hand, we watched some mysterious magic lantern stuff which, to him, indicated that Grover Cleveland had been elected President. A shudder ran thru him and he said, "The country's ruined." Fifty-five years have passed, but we have never had any reason to doubt the paternal wisdom.

The "blitzkrieg" expression, of which the modern Germans seem to be so fond, was probably ground into the Teutonic soul by the armies of Napoleon, which trampled all over that land for years. For Napoleon said:

"It is a principle of war that when you can use the lightning it is better than cannon."

The recent proclamation of church dogma to the effect that the entire burden of original sin rests on Adam and not Eve causes us to wonder if this is the reason why women have no observable Adam's apple.

O, THE DIFFERENCE!

You,
My dear,
Are everything
My other loves were not!
For they had nothing much at all Compared
To what you've got!
They may have had a bank account
And lots of ready cash;
They may have been Quite long on funds,
But they were short on dash!
Now you are tall, have lots of Charm,
A devil in your grin!
And you have
Two strong arms
A girl can really snuggle in!
But these are not the major things
That make you best,
It's true!
The difference
Lies in the fact
That I'm in love with you!

When the First Prairie Larks Sing.

Hush-o'-March is on my hedgerow. Not the fettered apathy of winter, but a listening stillness, pulsing with the earth's own heartbeats. Gray are the grasses, and long since dead; but underneath them, should you look, are pale shafts and darts and lances and brittle buds, awaiting elixir of sun and rain. The busy blackberries are toiling o' nights that on a halcyon morning they may heap for my basket their offering of obsidian fruit.

Black-etched upon a sky of steel are the shaggy osages, hung round with little empty lanterns, their candles long since gone out. A far cry to summer and the cataract of jade and cream and silver that here flowed down and glorified my hedgerow! They call it wild cucumber, but the pixies and I know that it is foam-o'-vine, spilled from the edge of the laziest and fleeciest of August cumuli.

The pixies know, too [my hedgerow is full of them], those corners of the ancient fence where lie buried great pots of pirate treasure—emeralds and amber and rubies and gold; and sometimes, in the moonlight, when I forget and exclaim over wealth of gooseberries or goldenrod or bittersweet, I overhear a lilt of elfin laughter. They know, too, who stole from this treasure trove two polished bits of matrix turquoise and hid them in a robin's nest at the heart of an armored thorn. And they know—hark! . . .

A sweet voice, slightly querulous: "I thought—the spring—had come!" . . . There! Swinging on that branch of elder! . . . Listen! . . . "I thought—the spring—had come!" . . . 'Tis L'Alouette! And spring has come, and larks have come, and Hush-o'-March is broken!

O, any place, just so it's far from home.

Perhaps some day the children won't need me—

An anchor light—by that time I'll be old;
One cannot walk so very long or far
On aching, aged feet, or so I'm told;
What would I see then, from a motor car?
This year I'll surely go across the lake
To Mackinac, the Soo—if I must steal
The fare—here's something nautical—I'll take
This ash tray on the little steering wheel.

SPRING "ROSE COLDS."

While we all welcome spring with open arms, the warmth of our greeting may be reduced by symptoms of hay fever. About 3 per cent of our entire population is sensitive to plant pollens and a smaller group will react to those produced by early grasses and trees. These so-called rose colds are merely signs of sensitivity to new factors in the surroundings.

The tendency to this type of disturbance is hereditary and we may find manifestations in parents or grandparents—with susceptibility skipping an individual now and then. Just why it affects one and not another must be ascribed to a constitutional peculiarity that resents the breathing in of foreign materials—for example, the fertilizing elements from plants. With children, an attack may follow whooping cough or a minor surgical operation, such as the removal of tonsils.

Now, most of our irritants—those from the garden and the roadside [trees and grasses]—pollute the atmosphere because they are taken up by the wind and are carried hither and yon. During April and May we will find a rather sharp peak—a period wherein the annoyance is quite marked. The symptoms are far more acute than those experienced in the autumn. Fortunately, relatively few persons are bothered.

The first indications include reddening of the mucous lining of the air passages, a profuse watery discharge, and a sense of blocking as tho air could not get thru. Then, intermittent sneezing will appear—with difficulty in breathing. As a rule, two or three days will be required to develop a full blown case. An episode that comes quickly generally leaves with equal rapidity, altho a few victims will observe a morning paroxysm that will last for only two to three hours, with complete freedom by nightfall. In all probability this denotes that but a tiny bit of the irritant has been absorbed. An abrupt termination, however, is too much to hope for. As long as the particular variety of vegetation is in flower the disorder will continue to exhibit its disturbing effects.

We are all familiar with the methods of detecting the offender via the patch or the skin [injection] test. The trouble with this plan lies in the fact that a chronic sufferer is likely to show positive reactions to so many different substances that it may be useless to attempt to identify the initial "starter." This is the reason why stock or "shotgun" vaccines often prove to be helpful. If one or two culprits stand out prominently, however—and if their presence cannot be avoided—an effort may be made to protect against them.

Most of us are unable to guard the nasal passages against the emanations from our first blossoms. Altho masks are more or less of a nuisance, a well constructed type will strain out 80 or 90 per cent of the air borne antagonists. Nevertheless, our chief reliance must lie in an attempt to raise the body's resistance against the criminals—before the season opens. This offers about the best way of insuring comfort.

Vaccine injections should be begun during the first part of April and continued until at least the middle of May. Physicians will usually space the "shots" from four to seven days apart, starting with a very dilute solution and gradually increasing its strength. This is of far more value than waiting until the irritation is present and then expecting the remedy to bring relief.

As a rule, the discomfort caused by a vaccine is negligible. On the other hand, if reactions occur it may be that the quantity is too large or that too much time has elapsed between injections. This means that one who starts a series of treatments should continue them on schedule until the course has been completed.

If these early attacks are allowed to have full sway the chances are that when summer blooms come in profusion, a second encounter may be more severe.

FEVER PULSE.

O. B. writes:

1. When a person has a fever, how fast does the pulse beat?
2. Why does a person perspire when he faints?

REPLY.

1. There is an approximate increase of 10 beats with each degree of fever.
2. When this symptom appears it is due to a dilatation of the capillaries in the skin, with accompanying stimulation of the sweat glands.

BLOOD TEST.

D. L. writes: What does "negative" and "positive" mean in a blood test?

REPLY.

There are many types of tests. If you refer to the Wassermann or the Kahn—employed to determine the presence or absence of syphilis—"negative" means usually freedom from the disease. "Positive" indicates that the disorder is probably present.

TINY FEET.

Miss H. writes: Is there any way to make the foot smaller?

REPLY.

Only by following the old Chinese custom of binding. Most of us admire sizable pedal extremities—just so they are shapely and covered with well fitting shoes.

CATARACTS.

R. S. writes: My mother has cataracts in both eyes. They have reached the stage where she can only discern light. Is it too late to be operated upon?

REPLY.

No. Seek the services of a skilled physician. Your mother can regain vision.

THE TREND IN ART.

Chicago, April 4.—I would like to put in my two cents about the Art institute shows. The basic trouble seems to be that a large number, if not the majority, of cultivated people in and about Chicago prefer conservative art to modernistic. Yet for at least 10 years it has been next to impossible to find a really good conservative picture by a local artist in the institute shows. It is necessary to travel around to the various private exhibits if one likes beauty with his art. And the perplexed out of town visitor with a similar taste just doesn't know where to go.

To clear up another controversial point: It isn't true that those who dislike modernistic art are simply unable to understand it. They understand only too well, and are repelled by the degenerate tendency too frequently present in such art. If you listen to the jargon of those who rave about even the more atrocious examples, however, it is easy to tell who doesn't understand art.

That there is just as great a demand for conservative art as for what the Art institute thinks people want, is surely shown by the following attendance figures of recent shows. Rembrandt attendance, 105,000; Picasso, about 70,000; Van Gogh, 164,000, and Italian Art exhibit [paid admission], 250,000. The two latter shows were more highly advertised than the first two; the last one, the most of all.

A trend toward beauty, optimism, and better craftsmanship in pictures seems to be appearing in some of the eastern shows. Why cannot Chicago take the lead in this new mood? True, at the current Chicago and Vicinity show one member of the jury was conservative, yet few good paintings of conservative type were submitted. The reason? Recognized local artists of highest standing have had so many good paintings rejected in years past to make room for the distorted products of the new school that they no longer care to go to the trouble and expense of submitting pictures. Those who do frequently distort their own style in order to make the show.

Now for a constructive suggestion. For the next year or two let two juries be selected for the local and American shows at the Art institute—one for conservative paintings, one to pass on modernistic output. [After all, a conservative artist is a poor judge of modernistic art, and vice versa.] Then allot some of the rooms for the first group; the remainder for the other. If the Art institute adopts such a course it will surely win the admiration of all art lovers in Chicago. Mrs R. B. MacFarland.

BURIED GOLD.

Oak Park, Ill., April 4.—Our buried gold which seems to worry The Tribune is of the greatest importance to the United States as a nation.

I was educated in a most excellent school where I was taught that every country must have a gold reserve to meet any unexpected emergency.

At the present time our 18 or 20 billions of gold makes us the strongest and richest country in the world. We cannot go bankrupt as long as we maintain it. Every good American should be glad that two-thirds of all the gold in the world is in Uncle Sam's pockets.

ALIEN INFLUENCES IN AMERICA.

Chicago, April 3. — Many Americans must feel, after viewing Nazi White Book charges, that Martin Dies should have first investigated the alien tendencies of those appointed ambassadors to foreign countries. Ralph C. Nehls.

GEORGE MONROE CHANDLER.

Chicago, April 2.—On one of the quieter side streets of our city is a small shop, No. 75 as numbers go. Thru its Georgian window panes twinkle and smile the welcome of many books. Books old and new, grave and gay, some in the gaudy jacket of the modern novel, others in quiet dress. You lift the latch and from behind the book stacks comes our host—he is none less than that. Tall, slightly stooped and with fine reserve, this Virginian, this gentleman of another day, gives you greeting.

I first remember him in that now shadowy "Saints and Sinners Corner." There he was much at home with other lovers of rare and quaint books. But the world was hurrying on and with the passing of these sacred haunts came the new order. By some method, known only to itself, this little shop has stood the test of time and thru the sympathy and understanding of its kindly owner has offered sanctuary to more than one perplexed and disillusioned soul.

Today it is sad at No. 75. Our host is gone, but in the little cemetery at Montross, Westmoreland county, Virginia, George Monroe Chandler adds his name and record to what Lin Yutang calls "the importance of living," but Henry James, great artist that he was, defines as "the sense of the past."

Susan W. [Mrs. Wm. H.] Hubbard.

REWARD FOR DOING RIGHT?

Chicago, April 4.—Since when have people expected to be rewarded for being honest? The woman "D. S." whose letter appeared in The Tribune on April 3 says she found a wallet containing money and cards, and notified the owner. He wanted to make some return for her kindness but she said it "wasn't necessary" and now she is complaining because nothing was forthcoming. The wallet wasn't hers; why shouldn't she return it as a matter of course? Did she expect to be paid for doing her duty, the right thing? She must have known better or she would not have told him "it wasn't necessary" to make any return for her kindness.

PURCHASE AGREEMENT.

Chicago, April 4 [Legal Friend of the People].—I bought a car in May, 1939, for $95. I paid $10 down, which left a balance of $85. The payments are $11.58 a month for 12 months, which totals $138.96. I didn't get credit for the $10 I paid down. In other words, the car cost me $148.96, which makes a carrying charge of $53.96, including insurance. They are charging me 33½ per cent. Are they allowed to charge that amount? If they aren't, what would you advise me to do? I have already paid in $102.64. A. L.

Your statement amounts to saying that they raised the price and that you signed the contract for the raised price. We see no reason why such a contract should not be enforcible against you. In general, the tag that a dealer places on goods is legally regarded merely as an invitation to an offer rather than as an offer such as to become binding on acceptance. It would follow that the dealer would be in a position to change his terms up to the moment when the contract was finally agreed upon.

If a written contract purports on its face to be a complete expression of the whole agreement, oral understandings incidental to the negotiations are superseded and cannot be proved in court to change the written contract. [See 22 C. J., 980.]

UNDIVIDED INTERESTS.

Chicago, April 3 [Legal Friend of the People].—Four brothers and sisters hold undivided interests in a Michigan farm which they inherited about a year and a half ago. The decedent left no will. One of the brothers has been acting as administrator. One of the heirs is attempting to buy the farm from the other heirs and has put in a bid which has been accepted by two of said heirs. The fourth heir is holding out for a higher price. The administrator states that under Michigan law he can, if necessary, secure a court order which would permit him to sell the place to the bidder unless the figure was ridiculously low. Can the administrator secure such an order and compel the recalcitrant heir to sell at the figure the other three have agreed on? J. A.

You do not make clear whether the administrator is talking about partition or about a sale in connection with the probate proceedings. In any event it is reasonably clear that a sale at a reasonable cost can be forced.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale. Tribune Law Department.

TODAY IN HISTORY

April 9, 1865

Peace agreed on at Appomattox. According to the terms, confederate officers were to "give their individual paroles not to take up arms against the government of the United States . . . and each company or regimental commander to sign a like parole for the men of their commands"; neither "side arms of the officers nor their private baggage" were to be surrendered; and, since many privates owned horses and mules in service, these were to be left in their possession.

GEN. MAGEE SEES NEED OF WINGED MEDICAL CORPS

Evacuation of Wounded by Air Urged in Wartime.

BY MARCIA WINN.

The United States army must be prepared to advance its surgical units in future wars or evacuate its wounded by airplane, Maj. Gen. James C. Magee, surgeon general of the United States army, declared here last night. Probably he added, it will do both.

Maj. Gen. J. C. Magee.

New military tactics, he pointed out in a speech before a class of medical-dental reserve officers at the James B. Murphy memorial, 40 East Erie street, demand new medical tactics, but surprisingly few improvements of value, he said, have come out of recent wars.

Germans Utilize Planes.

The Italian medical corps made scant use of airplanes during the Ethiopian campaign, but the German army, in its conquest of Poland, transported about 2,500 wounded by airplane. The Germans found aircraft of great use "in selected situations," Gen. Magee said, but worked out no detailed scheme for air transport of wounded.

"Certain classes of patients do not stand air transport well," he explained. "These include, first of all, 'shock' sufferers. For nervous shock the air transportation ban is absolute.

"Newly operated cases are in general excluded from air transport; cases of pneumonia and severe anemia from hemorrhage must be weighed critically before being moved by this means. In all patients serious consideration must be given to the effects of air sickness and of oxygen deficiency. The latter is of great influence in gunshot wounds of the chest.

Ground Transport Necessary.

"Other factors enter in. There must be ground ambulance transport, with adequate medical personnel at hand. Landing fields must be under friendly military control. Because it is quite probable that large fields will not always be available, the use of small, low landing speed planes is advocated."

Recent wars, Gen. Magee said, have shown that surgery should be performed as close to the front as possible. The appalling onset of gangrene and the great number of amputations among the Loyalist wounded in the Spanish civil war arose, he said, from the lack of surgical facilities close to the firing lines. Gen. Magee also said "a real need" for airplane ambulances was shown.

Yellow Cab Exhibits Streamlined Taxi

New Fleet Planned

Chicagoans were given a preview of the Chicago Yellow Cab company's new taxicabs yesterday when one of the streamlined models was put on display in the Sherman hotel. The cab has all the latest gadgets, including mirrors for the ladies, special crash padded upholstery, a buzzer which warns pedestrians when the driver backs up, a porthole in the roof, and a "landaulet" top over the rear seat which can be lowered on sunny days.

Benjamin Samuels, president of the company, said 200 or 300 of the new cabs will be put in service May 1, and the company's entire fleet of 1,200 cabs will be replaced as quickly as possible.

Michael M. Sokoll, president of the Checker Taxi company, announced that his firm's fleet of 1,000 cabs also will be replaced, with about 100 of the new models reaching Chicago streets May 15.

Cabs of both companies will be similar except for the traditional color schemes. Even the driver gets a break. Driver's seats on the new models have six different adjustments. Two roof ventilators keep air in the taxi fresher. The new taxis will not roll backward when stopped on an incline. And they have a "whistling gasoline tank" which warns when the tank is about to be flooded by a filling station attendent.

LUXURY DIVORCE REVERSED; WIFE'S DEMANDS UPHELD

A divorce Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski granted 15 months ago with the comment that "divorce is a luxury" was reversed and remanded for a new trial yesterday by the Appellate court.

Mrs. Dorothy Goodman

The divorce was obtained by Mrs. Dorothy Goodman, 22 years old, 3941 Pine Grove avenue, from Melvin Goodman, 28, of 1637 Chase avenue. Judge Klarkowski refused to award her alimony, attorney's fees, or half of $400 realized from wedding presents. She appealed and the higher court vacated the whole decree.

According to the transcript supplied the Appellate court, Judge Klarkowski said this of the divorce at the time: "It is a luxury. If these persons want a divorce, they have to pay for it themselves."

The Appellate court held Judge Klarkowski should have allowed Mrs. Goodman "a reasonable sum" for alimony, $75 for attorney's fees, and $200 from the wedding presents.

M'CARL DEMANDS MORE STALWART MEN IN CONGRESS

Former Controler General Aids New Campaign.

If the United States is to avoid a breakdown in self-government, the American public must again nominate and elect stalwart, fearless men to congress. This challenge was issued yesterday by John Raymond McCarl, former controler general of the United States and a foe of New Deal economic policies.

Mr. McCarl addressed 100 business and professional leaders in the Palmer House at a luncheon launching a nation-wide nonpartisan campaign to "Send Strong Men to Congress." The campaign is sponsored by the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

Former Congressman Samuel B. Pettengill of Indiana, as chairman of the committee, defined a strong congress as one composed of men and women "who will fight to preserve our constitutional form of government and our system of free enterprise."

Need Revitalized Congress.

Confidence in our government can only be reëstablished, Mr. McCarl warned, if a courageous congress is elected which will control the executive branch of government and keep it within the law.

It would not necessarily be a fatal mistake, Mr. McCarl asserted, if we erred in the selection of President, provided a revitalized congress were elected.

Before confidence in government is restored, Mr. McCarl said, it would be necessary to allay the fears that a dictatorship or superstate may be permitted to develop, or that the nation may be dragged or pushed into any foreign war.

Avoid Ruinous Inflation.

There must further be assurance, he said, that ruinous inflation be avoided, that government income match spending, that borrowing stop, that all spite be removed from tax laws and that taxes be laid on a basis of government need for legitimate uses, and graduated according to ability to pay.

Private enterprise must be fostered and encouraged by government, Mr. McCarl continued, not fettered and discouraged, and "men who toil permitted to enjoy at least some small share of what they earn."

Yesterday's luncheon was arranged by Frank J. Loesch and George D. Rosseter. W-G-N broadcast the talks of Mr. McCarl and Mr. Pettengill.

W-G-N TO BROADCAST ELECTION RETURNS AS VOTES ARE COUNTED

Union Leader Seized After Fight Injures Truck Driver

Ted Dobrzynski 42 years old, a truck driver, was in a critical condition yesterday in St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, after being injured early Sunday in a street fight in Hammond. George Eberle, 1022 Eaton avenue, Hammond, a union business agent who admitted striking Dobrzynski, was released on a $5,000 bond. Police said the fight did not involve union trouble. Dobrzynski lives at 254 Clinton street, Hammond.

REPUBLIC STEEL LOSES IN APPEAL ON LABOR ORDER

Supreme Court Refuses to Hear Case.

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—The Supreme court refused today to review a National Labor Board order directing the Republic Steel corporation to reinstate approximately 5,000 Ohio employés who participated in the 1937 "little steel" strike and pay them accumulated wages.

This left in effect a decision by the federal Circuit court at Philadelphia sustaining the reinstatement order except for 40 employés. The cost of the order to the Republic Steel corporation, the labor board said, must await future determination.

A petition for a review of the Circuit court ruling, asked by a group of unions of the corporation's employés known as the Central Council of Steel Plants, also was denied by the high court. The board had ordered their disestablishment on the ground they were company dominated.

Must Reimburse Relief Agencies.

The labor board also directed that the corporation deduct from back pay granted employés any sums received by the workmen for labor performed upon federal works projects, and pay this amount to appropriate governmental agencies.

This provision of the order was sustained by the Circuit court and, since the Supreme court refused to review the Circuit ruling, remains in effect.

While validity of the labor board order was challenged, the steel company said five months ago that all but a few of the workers involved in the strike had returned to work. This statement was made after the federal Circuit court at Philadelphia had sustained the board's order, except as to reinstatement of 40 employés held to have been guilty of extreme violence.

Agrees with Labor Board.

The Circuit court agreed with the labor board that unfair labor practices by Republic Steel were responsible for the strike, which spread thru the corporation's mills at Warren, Canton, Youngstown, Massillon, and Cleveland. Three strikers were killed and others wounded at Massillon.

Republic Steel told the Supreme court that the strikers had disqualified themselves from a reëmployment order because of acts of violence by individual members of the union. But the Circuit court ruled that "some disorder is unfortunately quite usual in any extensive or long drawn out strike" and that conviction of minor offenses should not bar reinstatement.

In connection with the labor board's order Republic Steel has started a suit in federal District court at Cleveland seeking $7,500,000 from the C. I. O. and affiliates in damages the corporation attributes to the strike.

Labor board officials said a staff would be put into the field in two or three weeks to begin computing the back pay due workers under the board's order. Officials estimated that some 9,000 claimants would have to be interviewed.

CRASH MOTORIST, TRACED BY PLATE, GETS TEN DAYS

Edward Lhotak, 27 years old, 5321 South Fairfield avenue, was sentenced to 10 days in jail on a charge of reckless driving by Judge Frank Padden in Safety court yesterday and was fined $10 for leaving the scene of an accident. He was traced thru a license plate which was knocked off his car after it struck a parked auto in front of 2740 59th street.

John S. Plantz, 27, of Hammond, was sentenced to 10 days and his driving privileges were suspended for 30 days on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He collided with another car Saturday at Indianapolis boulevard and Ewing avenue. A fine of $100 and costs for the same offense was imposed on Leon Brezinski, 46, of 2457 North Lotus avenue, who struck another car at Central avenue and Addison street.

Two drivers, Edward Gratz, 32, of 1728 Monroe street, and William Klawitter, 29, of 3936 South Throop street, were sentenced to five days each for reckless driving. Gratz hit a car that was halted for a traffic signal, and Klawitter collided with another machine.

POULTER TELLS SNOW CRUISER'S BATTLE WITH ICE

Designer Home After Antarctic Tests.

Four months of travel to spend ten days unloading and testing the giant snow cruiser at the Bay of Whales camp of the United States Antarctic service were described yesterday by Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, designer of the cruiser. He returned to Chicago and his post as scientific director of Armour Institute's research foundation.

"I had expected to spend much more time at the camp," Dr. Poulter said, "but the crew of our supply ship, the North Star, was so expert at unloading the cruiser and 1,400 tons of supplies that they soon were ready to return."

Ramp Used for Unloading.

The Bay of Whales is in a great sheet of barrier ice, ranging to a depth of 1,500 feet, Dr. Poulter said. It was impossible to unload the cruiser and the supplies directly upon the barrier ice, because its edges were towering cliffs. To overcome this difficulty, Dr. Poulter said, a 75 foot ramp was built from the side of the North Star to smooth ice in the bay.

"Our actual landing," he said, "was being made on an ice cake that had floated eight inches from the bay ice. I had some anxious seconds getting the cruiser off that ramp, and I didn't stop until I was on the bay ice proper."

Wheels Drop Into Crevasses.

Dr. Poulter said the cruiser's left front and rear wheels dropped into parallel crevasses as he was ascending a slope onto the barrier ice. Hydraulic lifts were used to pull the wheels up into nacelles in the body of the cruiser, the crevasses were packed with snow, the wheel were lowered again, and the cruiser went on.

"You can't accuse me of going for the ride, because I'm a poor sailor," Dr. Poulter said. "But the quarters for four on the snow cruiser are the most comfortable accommodations that ever existed in Antarctica.

NATION DEMANDS REDS BE FORCED INTO OPEN: DIES

House Cites 3 Communists for Contempt.

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] said today that 90 per cent of the country and the house of representatives were with his committee on un-American activities in wanting what he termed really effective legislation to make subversive organizations reveal their purposes and membership.

Thomas O'Dea [top], Philip Frankfeld, Dr. Albert Blumberg [bottom].

He asserted in a press conference that he would submit to the justice department, probably tomorrow, the material around which he believes the department should write a bill requiring organizations with international connections to file comprehensive data.

The committee chairman made this statement to newspaper men a short time after the house approved three more contempt citations against communists who had refused to answer committee questions.

The three named in the citations are Thomas F. P. O'Dea and Philip Frankfeld of Boston, Mass., and Dr. Albert Blumberg of Baltimore, Md.

Refuses to Give Names.

O'Dea refused to give the committee names of members of the Young Communist league at Harvard university. Frankfeld refused to answer any questions because the committee would not permit him to read a resolution denouncing it. Blumberg declined to identify communist party members or to discuss party records.

Both Frankfeld and O'Dea previously had been charged with contempt in warrants issued by United States Commissioner Needham Turnage. Frankfeld and O'Dea were jailed last Friday when they failed to make $1,000 bonds to appear to answer that charge on April 12. Later they were released on bond pending a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus.

To Resume Hearings.

Five communists, in all, have been cited. The other two are James H. Dolsen and George Powers of Pittsburgh, Pa. The citations mean that the cases are to be presented to a grand jury.

Dies asserted that hearings would be resumed Wednesday with an important group of witnesses. He added that Robert E. Lynch, committee counsel, would confer with the justice department tomorrow on whether Nicholas Dozenberg would be released by the department to testify before the committee. Dozenberg, a communist, recently was sentenced in New York to one year in a federal penitentiary on a passport charge.

DRIVES HIS AUTO INTO RAILROAD ABUTMENT; DIES

Francis Sullivan, 49 years old, of 950 North Lavergne avenue, a trainman for the Milwaukee railroad, died yesterday in the Robert Burns hospital of injuries incurred Sunday night when his automobile struck an abutment of the North Western railroad right of way at Sacramento and Carroll avenues. Sullivan lost control of his car when he swerved to avoid another which cut in front of him.

Mrs. Lillian Haywood, 32, colored, a domestic employed at 1356 Hyde Park boulevard, was fatally injured when an automobile in which she was riding struck a truck which had double parked in Ashland avenue near 27th street. She was riding with George Thomas, 50, of 6003 Wabash avenue.

Alfred Seiffarth, 59, a laborer, of 4523 Addison street, died in county hospital of injuries incurred Feb. 15 when he walked in front of a car driven by Arnold Wisniewski, 3643 Buena avenue, at Kilbourn avenue and Addison street.

A trailer truck carrying a seven ton boiler overturned on two parked cars when the boiler shifted as the truck driver, Michael Kudirka, 30, of 3510 South Union avenue, turned from Western avenue into 53d street. No one was injured, but the two cars were badly damaged.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 245 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 187 were killed in Chicago, where 5,465 were injured in the same period.

Izler Solomon Limits Concert to Three Works

BY CECIL SMITH.

With Izler Solomon conducting, the Illinois Symphony orchestra last evening devoted its concert in the Studebaker theater to three compositions—Harl McDonald's "Three Poems on Traditional Hebraic and Aramaic Themes"; the Symphony in A minor by Gardner Read of Evanston, which won the New York Philharmonic-Symphony society's award in 1937 for a new symphony by an American composer, and the Tschaikowsky violin concerto, with Herman Clebanoff, the 23 year old concertmaster of the Illinois Symphony orchestra, as soloist.

Mr. Clebanoff's performance showed that he has made considerable advances in the last few months. His technique is sure than before, tho not yet quite infallible. He played the slow movement and the expressive portions of the opening movement with excellent line and phrasing, and with warm tone when the E string of his instrument did not become too piercing. In bravura passages he would still profit from more brittle rhythm and the exercise of greater care in the articulation of rapid figurations.

Mr. Reed's symphony is, to take the charitable view, a memento of the early stages of a promising career. Armed with all the rabble-raising clichés of prewar 20th century orchestration, he has succeeded in writing four movements that sound almost precisely alike.

Each movement contains repeated alternations of climax and subsidence, introduced arbitrarily over and over again, so that, as my compainion remarked, "the symphony goes up and down like the tide, only much more frequently." Themes are not allowed to discover their musical potentialities before they are hurled into climaxes full of reminiscenes of Scriabin, Chausson, Ravel, or Wagner. The symphony is dissatisfying, not because its composer lacks native gifts, but because he has falled to think thru his problems of organization.

The McDonald poems, first heard hereabouts at Ravinia under Sir Ernest MacMillan, are agreeable and unaffected expansions of several themes of ancient near eastern origin. In these, as thruout the concert, the orchestra played with exuberant animation, and with evident appreciation for the excellent quality of Mr. Solomon's interpretations.

Spectators Provide Fashion Show Themselves

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Leander McCormick, Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr., and Mrs. Leon Mandel watching the fashion show at the Pump room yesterday afternoon provided a fashion show themselves. Mrs. McCormick was all in black except for the red carnations at her neck and the quill on her smart small hat; Mrs. Harvey's straw hat was especially chic, and Mrs. Mandel's furs were attracting as much attention as any of the costumes on display. They are platina foxes.

Women Sigh in Envy as Young Models Parade

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Ah, to be a size 14 and young! audibly or silently every one of eighteen hundred women made this wish yesterday afternoon. Fourteen hundred of them were at a fashion show and tea given by the Evanston board of the Northwestern University settlement at the Country Club of Evanston, and the others were seeing a fashion display shown at tea time in the Pump room. "I wish some one would show some styles suitable for me," complained a fortyish size 18, but she probably wasnt sincere, for every one loves young, slim models.

A lovely young woman who wore her own bridal dress on Jan. 20 was the bride in the Evanston show, Mrs. Frederick D. Sauter [Caroline Buck]. She wore a white tulle dress with a very full skirt and tight bodice, and a short veil. Her attendants, Mrs. Winthrop Robinson, sister of the bride; Mrs. Lucian Wilkinson, and Mrs. Charles Fuller, were dressed in rainbow colors—pink, green and blue—and wore floppy horsehair braid hats. Mrs. George F. Falley and Mrs. Thomas C. Galloway headed the committee that planned the successful benefit.

Another recent bride, Mrs. James W. Pope [Eleanor Rosenbaum] was one of the bridesmaids in the wedding that climaxed the show in the Pump room. Miss Janet Moore was the bride and Miss Charlotte O'Brien and Miss Nancy-Leigh Bowes the other attendants. This was an all white wedding, with the bride and one attendant carrying white flowers and the other two with armloads of daffodils.

The spectators, who watched the show in town were as fashionable as they were numerous. When Mrs. Leon Mandel entered she excited as much attention as any of the models, for around her shoulders were two platina fox skins, something new and ultraexpensive. The duchess of Windsor had the first of these pale brothers to the silver fox, and Mrs. Mandel is the first Chicagoan we have seen wearing them.

With Mrs. Mandel were Mrs. Leander McCormick and the Harvey sisters-in-law, Mrs. Byron Jr., and Mrs. Stewart.

Near by sat Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, and Mrs. Herbert E. Schwarz. Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes Jr., Mrs. Burke Williamson, Mrs. Frank Pierce, and Mrs. Edmond Sullivan were a smart young foursome. Across from them sat Mrs. Richard T. Crane and her sister, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, Miss Pauline Palmer, Mrs. Potter Palmer III., Mrs. E. Harris Brewer, and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham were together. Among others who enjoyed the show were Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall, Mrs. Frank Woods Jr., Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. Dudley Root, Mrs. Herbert Kennedy, Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, Mrs. John Root, Mrs. John L. Irving, and her sister, Miss Kay Kelly, who is just back from Sun Valley; Mrs. James C. Hutchins, and Mrs. John P. Wilson.

Golfer's Quip.

A foursome that included Wallace Winter, Frank Hibbard, and Herbert Schwarz paused at the sixth tee at Old Elm.

"Well, are you going to drive straight and far?" Mr. Winter asked Mr. Schwarz.

"Straight, maybe, but some one has cut my hair," retorted Mr. Schwarz.

Art Lover.

Charles Laughton, wearing a blue suit with white stripes, a blue shirt with a blue, red, and gray tie and cherry red socks, spent his time at the Art institute between trains Sunday. He made his way at once to the Rembrandt room to see the Portrait of Rembrandt's Father, which is his favorite, and the Girl at the Open Half Door. Laughton's greatest affection is for the 19th century French paintings. He stood for 20 minutes in front of Seurat's Le Grand Jatte, was fascinated by the color in Van Gogh's Bedroom at Arles. Struck by the superb arrangements of purple, orange, green, tan, and gray in a Gauguin canvas, he commented on it, then going into the Renoir room, stopped before a small painting, Seated Woman, from the Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson collection, and pointed out what Renoir had done with the same colors. Laughton is a Renoir collector.

Noise Problem Solved.

Violoncellist Hans Hess tells of the children in his neighborhood in Highland Park who, thrilled to see the spring sunshine one day last week, chorused noisily for some time, "Spring is here." One of his neighbors was disturbed by the noise. Approaching the children, who were between 3 and 5 years old, he said: "Listen, children, you know that great big dog I have in the house—my Dobermann-Pinscher? Well, he is trying to sleep. Won't you please be more quiet?" It had the desired effect. The children immediately tiptoed away.

Erring Linotyper.

The linotype operator on the Maroa, Ill., News-Times dropped a "t" instead of an "e" and the proofreader didn't catch it. Thus an account of a meeting of the W. C. T. U. one day last week concluded: "Tight ladies were present."

Out of the Hat.

Capt. E. Donald C. Herne, W-G-N news commentator, considers 13 his lucky number. He was born on the 13th, his transport license is No. 13, the figures on his office number in Tribune Tower add up to 13. He bought a new car the other day and applied for a license. When the license arrived it was No. 1313-675. He lives at 675 North Michigan avenue.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Where There's Life There's Hope.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 8.—"Road to Singapore" is winning favor at the box offices of the country, with the critics in particular patting Bob Hope on the back for his pleasantries. . . . That is as it should be, because he is a pleasant fellow, a most capable clown, and an asset to this series of mirages which are show business. . . . Like a lot of very expert comics, Bob Hope was born in England, but his typical American flavor is accounted for by the fact that his parents unloaded him at Cleveland when he was 4 years old. . . . By the time he had arrived at East High school, he was as Yankee as the Clipper. . . . He started out as a singer, lending his soprano pipsqueak to the church choir. . . . Even then his chin was so long that parishioners exiting from church looked in amazement at the little boy who was all white surplice and chin. . . . He was reminiscent of an outboard motor.

It will be exactly three years come September that Lester Townes Hope arrived in Hollywood, a date that is easy to remember for this scrivener because we had arrived at the same time and were delighted to see Bob and his pretty frau, Dolores. . . . It was like old home week. . . . He had just recorded his first song at Paramount and both he and Dolores were worried about how he had registered. . . . He didn't want to ask the studio officials for a peek at the "rushes" so I offered to contact Paramount's Chris Dunphy and ask for a look. . . . An hour later, the scene was on the projection sheet and even a columnist could tell that Hope was "in." . . . The camera had caught his pleasantness and his good humored nonchalance and the song, "Thanks for the Memory," was that 1,000,000 to 1 shot, a potential hit. . . . "You're not saying that just because we're friends," said Dolores when this enthusiastic report was hurried back to her. . . . I told her that the opinion was quite cold blooded.

Then he got his own radio program. . . . Paramount cautioned the radio officials to be careful. . . . "Don't ruin him with bad scripts." . . . After a few months the shoe was on the other foot. . . . The radio officials were of a mind to urge Paramount not to ruin their radio white hope with bad pictures. . . . In fact Hope retained his popularity via radio despite a series of bad flickers, and it was not until the remake of "Cat and the Canary" that he finally got a part that gave him a chance to show what he could accomplish on the screen.

Teamed with another Cleveland youngster, George Byrne, Hope was given his first big upward shove in show business by Fatty Arbuckle, who was making a personal appearance tour. . . . For short dough, the two of them did an awful lot of work in their first stage unit. . . . After they did a dance, they rushed to their dressing room and blacked up with burnt cork, getting back to the stage in time for a Moran and Mack patter. . . . Off they rushed again to the dressing room to clean up and don moth eaten dinner jackets. . . . This brought them back to the stage in time to sing in a quartet. . . . After that specialty, Hope doubled on a saxophone. . . . The only thing that permitted them to make so many exits and changes was that they were never retarded by applause. . . . Hope and Byrne never were called back for bows. . . . They went direct to their dressing room and nobody said them nay.

One week at New York, they finally got a touch of the big time. . . . They appeared on the same bill with the Siamese twins. . . . It was a terrific thrill to the two youthful hams. . . . From then on, life for them was one small time theatrical circuit after another, and it is startling that Hope didn't pick up a lot of those annoying small time vaude mannerisms that identify the second raters of this business all their lives. . . . Now and then Hope does fall into the small timey trick of looking off into space while another player is reading a line, and now and then, on a stage, he turns from the audience to grin at some imaginary figure in the wings. . . . This, to the old timers, was nonchalance and poise of the better sort, but he'll discard these tricks of the trade as he goes along. . . . He'll resist, too, the temptation to get quick laughs with material that is faintly "blue," stage-ese for gags that are slightly off color.

"Roberta" was his first important break on Broadway and he was excellent in it. . . . He had a nice, relaxed way of working, an excellent sense of timing and he was pleasant and charming. . . . It was during that show that Paramount signed Fred MacMurray, who was tooting a sax in the California collegians band. . . . He got his first big radio break on a show with Shep Fields.

Casual, his manner is a raise clew to his success. . . . I know of no performer who works harder or has greater courage, and you need what the profession describes as "a cast iron stomach" if you are engaged in the business of getting laughs. . . . His power of concentration, a valuable ally to any sort of success, is tremendous. . . . Only once was he jarred out of his smoothy style of working. . . . It was at a huge benefit at Madison Square Garden. . . . He was rolling along brilliantly and had just laid the groundwork for his smash gag of the routine when the audience smothered him out with applause. . . . He tried to talk and the applause grew even more voluminous. . . . Gov. Herbert Lehman had entered the auditorium and the audience abandoned the stage in favor of the arrival from Albany. . . . The uproar subsided. . . . "Guv," said Hope, cooly, "You are my favorite point killer."

I don't think that Hope even has reached his peak yet. . . . He'll go a long way, and as his judgment improves with experience, he'll be difficult to stop. . . . Not that he is doing badly now, mind. . . . If he ever had dreamed that he'd be where he is that week he played with the Siamese twins, he would have been wholly content. . . . Or maybe he did dream just that future and made it come true. . . . With the aid of Louis [Doc] Shurr, who has been more than an agent to many performers.

Lacy Hosiery Designed for Cut Out Shoes

BY REA SEEGER.

Spring hosiery specially designed to wear with footgear decoratively cut out, toe, heel, and at the sides, are the filmy beauties with lacy toe and heel sections. Unusually easy on the eyes, that may also lessen the wave of criticism by the spectators. Chiffon and lace mesh finds are other spring arrivals in flattering and super-slenderizing shades of suntan and the newest fashion pet, neutral shades of beige. One particularly stunning lace pattern is larger than in previous promotions. It's called royal lace, has a definite snowflake design combined with a neat little mesh background.

Still another new mesh stocking, ideal for spectator sports costumes, is an all-over mesh resembling metal mesh bag patterns. Unbelievably sturdy, such hosiery more than deserves the shopping popularity. . . . Prices are easy on the budget and flattering high fashion shades are plentiful. Sun bronze is a new tint, a winner with browns, greens, navy, and all the vivid plaids and colored checks.

For exceedingly active sports, try the new bend-easy stockings . . . a band of wide lace elastic deftly placed between the wide band and the well fitted lower portion. This elasticized band widens and gives with every motion, thereby assuring ease and comfort plus the knowledge that the hazard of runs and snags has been reduced to minimum. All flattering new spring and early summer shades are available.

Also new are the shadow heels . . . hosiery with slender reinforced heels a subtle darker shade of the stocking. It's delicate, slenderizing, and flattering for the ankles, a good telling accent for all the open cutouts at the backlines of the newest sandals and wedgies.

Gun Bought Grant

By Luke Short

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Framed by his enemy, Santee Bales, Sam Teacher, outlaw cowboy, shoots the bank robber dressed to resemble him. The governor agrees to give Sam $25,000 in addition to full pardon for all crimes accredited to him if he will persuade Matt Drury to sell the railroad the right of way through one of his canyons. Sam goes to work for Drury and has a run-in with his worthless son, Steve, and his pretty but spoiled daughter, Celia. Sam advises Matt to give Steve a small stake of his own and make Celia manage her father's household. Drury takes this advice and both his children leave in a huff. Celia gets a job in a restaurant, and Steve, getting the canyon property as his stake, goes into partnership with Bales, planning to make the governor pay them instead of Sam. Bales captures Sam, takes his gun and leaves him tied up. Sam breaks loose, but upon his return to town he is arrested for Steve's murder. His gun is found near Steve's body. Matt wants Sam hanged, but Pearly, Matt's foreman, convinced of Sam's innocence, resigns, buys a stable next to the jail and digs Sam out. With dynamite Pearly and Sam change the course of the river that determines the boundary of the land Santee plans to sell the railroad, thus preventing the sale. Celia begins to see Sam's way. Santee gets a court order to change the river back. With Pearly's aid, Sam commandeers a wagonload of gold ore and dumps it into the dry river bed. When Santee, the sheriff and workmen arrive to change the river back, they find gold. A stampede starts and the workmen persuade the sheriff to lock Santee in jail to keep him from flooding their stakes. Fearing Santee will learn his and Pearly's trick, Sam returns to town planning to lock the sheriff in jail to prevent him from carrying out Santee's court order. Not knowing Santee is jailed, Sam is taken unawares and is locked up. Santee pays his fine and is let out of jail after the miners get a restraining order to prevent Santee flooding their stakes.

INSTALMENT XXXII.

PRISON TRANSFER.

If Santee knew the ore planted in the Rio Medio canyon was Sam's work, all he would have to do would be to get George Harnum to tell the camp how a wagonload of ore was scattered down the stream bed. The boom would collapse, then, and with nobody to contest the diversion of the Rio Medio back to its original course, Santee's court order would be carried out and the right-of-way would be sold.

Sam looked about him in helpless despair. Pearly could not get him out of this. He wished he could see Pearly, could tell him what had happened, and direct him in a last fight against Santee. But even that consolation would not be allowed him. He was going to a tight jail, to a trial and to a hanging.

A murmur of conversation out in the sheriff's office came to him and he lay down on the cot. Suddenly, the corridor door opened and he turned his head. Celia was standing there, Anse Lovejoy at her side.

"So that's Steve's killer?" Celia asked in a cold voice, looking at Sam.

Sam sat up, saying nothing, as Anse, pride in his voice, said, "That's him. Bales caught him mighty pretty."

"I've never seen a killer that I was sure was a killer. May I have a look at him?"

"Go right up and look," Anse invited.

Celia came up to the bars and faced Sam. He caught her slow wink. He said, insolently, "Do I look any different than I did when I worked out at the Star 22?"

"Yes," Celia said quietly. "In my eyes, you do. You look a lot different—like a condemned man."

Sam, taking his cue, said sharply, "Don't say that! It's bad luck!"

"Your conscience troubles you, doesn't it?"

Sam stared at the floor and said nothing. Celia turned to Lovejoy. "I'd like to talk to him alone. Maybe I can find out how my brother died."

Lovejoy, amazed to see Sam's defiance melting when he was faced with the sister of the man he killed, nodded abruptly. Maybe the girl could get a confession out of him. He backed out, saying, "Be very careful, miss. He's dangerous."

When the door was closed, Celia said, "O, Sam, why didn't you come to the café before you tried it! I could have told you Santee was in there!"

"I should have," Sam said ruefully.

Celia turned around and pulled up her long skirt. When she turned back to Sam she had Pearly's gun in her hand. "Here. Can you get out with this?"

Sam looked at the gun and then at Celia. He looked at her for a long time, at her dark, troubled face and her worried eyes.

He got up and came over and made no attempt to take the gun. "I could," he said. "Only I won't."

"But you've got to!"

"No."

"But, Sam!" Celia's voice was pleading. "It's all you need, isn't it?"

Sam's face was a little tense with anger. "How will Lovejoy think I got the gun? He didn't search you like he would a man that would come to see me. No; he'll know you brought it. And he'll throw you in jail for helping me. And the government wants me bad enough that all your dad's power won't keep you out of trouble. No, I won't take it!"

"But you've got to! You've got to!"

Sam shook his head stubbornly. "I don't aim to drag you in this. It's my fight, my hard luck. Put that gun away now and listen to what I have to tell you."

Celia's face reflected hopelessness and anger and pity and something else, too. She said quietly, "What is it?"

Swiftly, Sam began to recount the planting of the gold ore, but Celia interrupted him with the statement that Pearly had already told her.

"Then there's just one thing that will keep Santee from gettin' that right-of-way. As long as those jugheads out there on the Rio Medio think they'll find gold, they'll stay there. A boom camp grows fast and dies slow. And the only way it'll die quick is for George Harnum to spread the word it's a fake. Pearly's got to catch George before he gets back to the mine, and he's got to hold him. We got to keep that camp on the Rio Medio."

"But what good will it do?" Celia cried. "You'll be in jail! Pearly can't fight Santee alone! What difference does it make whether Santee gets the right-of-way tomorrow or next month? He'll get it, because you'll be in jail."

Sam smiled thinly, reflectively. "Let me see," he drawled. "I been in jail—well, let's say 25 times in my life. I've broke it every time."

"But not this time, Sam! Not when the governor wants you so badly that he signed his name to your reward dodger! And you were never accused of killing the son of the most powerful man in the territory!" She put her hands on the bars. "Please, please, Sam, take the gun and break out!"

"No."

"But won't you let me do even that to bring Steve's killer to justice? Because if you're out, you can catch Santee or kill him!"

Sam shook his head slowly. The muscles on his jaw corded, with the efforts to control himself. He would have given his very soul for that gun, for a last chance at freedom and Santee Bales. But he knew with a dread certainty that as soon as he accepted the gun he would seal Celia's fate. Matt Drury would never forgive his daughter. Lovejoy, with such evidence, would kick up a row that the governor himself would have to take sides in. It would be a bitter battle, and Celia could never live down the shame of it.

He said, "I never used a woman yet, Celia. I never will. Thanks."

Celia was convinced that further argument was useless. She put the gun away under her dress, and when she turned to Sam again her face was gentle and her eyes luminous. "Well, I tried," she said, choking a little.

Sam didn't say anything. Celia put out her hand and Sam held it. "I'll do whatever I can to free you, Sam. You—you've been a friend."

Sam said softly, a little of the arrogance fading from his face, "So have you." He hesitated then, for what he was about to say was hard, and it deserved saying. "Once I said a lot of pretty bad things about you, remember?"

"Remember? I'll never forget them. They were true."

"I'm plumb sorry I said them."

Celia smiled softly. "I'm not. They made the difference between existing and living. They hurt, and they were true, and I deserved them." She faltered a little. "I—said some things about you, too. Only where yours were true about me, mine weren't true about you."

"I'd even forgotten 'em."

"I'm sorry."

"That don't even——" Sam stopped. The tears were streaming down Celia's face and she turned away from him and walked a few steps. Then she said, "Good-by, Sam. And God bless you. And He won't let you die! He won't!"

She went out, then, Sam heard Lovejoy's embarrassed mumble, ending with, "He didn't confess, then?"

"No," Celia sobbed. "He didn't confess." And she went out.

It was a long and weary ride to Santa Luz. They took him to McHarg, a stop on the northern stage route, and bought out every seat on the southbound stage. After filling it with the half dozen Trabajo men whom Lovejoy had deputized, they continued the long ride to Santa Luz. Sam only hoped that Pearly would not attempt to rescue him, for it would be suicide. These guards realized they held the most dangerous man in the territory; they were nervous enough to shoot first and ask questions afterward of any one who tried to stop the stage. But Pearly made no such attempt, and Sam thought he could understand why. Pearly's mind just didn't run to fighting. Instead, he would be pleading with Matt Drury to use his influence in Sam's favor.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THAT'S THE BIRD

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: One of the Reasons

Active Mind Earns Woman Charm Rating

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

One of the things that should give the great average group of women hope and courage is the fact that so few women with reputations as glamorous creatures are pretty or beautiful. They're women, to paraphrase an old bromide, who know how to be unusually attractive. They are, above everything else, interesting. Not necessarily career women, you understand; altho, other things being equal, the woman who is out and around and who must keep her appearance at par is inclined to have an advantage.

Yet, some career women become too one track minded to be interesting to people outside of their own particular field. It's another kind of "being interested" that is meant. It's keeping the mind open to new ideas, keeping in tune with the times, broadening one's interests and activities, avoiding holding to old, timeworn prejudices, and last, but not least, refusing to adopt traits and habits that are "set" or "old hat."

Keeping one's health at par naturally would be accepted as a "MUST" in any woman's plan of appreciation. Tending the looks she has, nursing and coddling them along into higher notches of efficiency, too, is an accepted form of duty. But there are many women who enjoy health and who spend a great deal of time on themselves who lack the "spark" that ignites the eyes and the facial expression. They're actually duds, in common parlance, or wax window models, clothes horses—a number of things except the interesting individuals they might be with a better knowledge of what creates glamor or charm in a woman.

In the foregoing sentence we had in mind pretty women and women who today, or in earlier years, are or were beauties of a kind. Perhaps their current lack of interest is due to the stress they put on past glories or the undue importance they give today to regularity of features and coloring and so on.

But the truly interesting and glamorous woman stakes her all on the brains given her,

Leftover, stale white bread may be put to a dozen and one attractive uses. In fact, it sometimes is worthwhile deliberately to allow bread to become stale, for the sake of preparing some of the these bread-made cookery delights.

Dry out slightly stale bread in the oven and roll it to fine crumbs. Keep these in a loosely covered jar or paper sack, and use them for breading meats and to-be-fried foods. Or sauté the crumbs in butter and use to sprinkle over hot cooked vegetables. Add salt and pepper as the crumbs fry, and even a tiny dice of garlic or a bit of onion for some vegetables, potatoes, for example. A little lemon juice added to sautéed crumbs for broccoli or asparagus will give a new flavor.

And here's a superbly luscious thing to do with sautéed fine bread crumbs. Just before removing them from the skillet, sprinkle in brown sugar, and allow it to melt. The result is a crumbly caramelly topping for vanilla ice cream or a simple light pudding.

Croutons for soup long have been popular. Cut sliced bread in cubes or strips and toast in the oven. Or sprinkle first with melted butter. Or spread strips of stale bread with butter and sprinkle with cheese before toasting. This last version is excellent with salads as well as soups.

Coarse, stale bread crumbs are most valuable for meat and poultry stuffings and for bread puddings. Sauté and sweeten them and they'll do very well instead of cake or lady fingers for refrigerator desserts.

Suppose you have a whole loaf of slightly stale unsliced bread. There are several exciting possibilities. Everybody likes this idea: Trim off top and side crusts, leaving the bottom crust intact. Slice lengthwise thru the middle of the loaf to the bottom crust, but not thru it. Slice crosswise at five even intervals. Now brush over the "rolls" thus made with melted butter, and toast to golden in a moderate oven. Delicious for luncheon or tea, or even for breakfast, with jam. And even better, some folks think, when soft cheese is spread over the bread after the buttering and before the toasting.

You really don't even have to use stale bread for this treat. French bread, sliced almost thru, is delicious this way. Of course, one wouldn't remove crusts from French bread.

Croustades or bread baskets may be fashioned from the crust-trimmed whole loaf by cutting rather large cubes and hollowing them before toasting. A large bread basket may be made from the whole loaf, and filled with a creamed concoction for lunch. It may even have a cover, managed by slicing lengthwise of the box-shaped loaf once before scooping out the interior.

Trimmed sliced bread may be made into "buttercups" by brushing each slice with butter, pressing it into a muffin cup and toasting in the oven.

Leonard Stocker, Baritone, Pleases with His Rich Voice

Leonard Stocker, baritone, sang a Gluck air and a variety of German, Russian, and English lyrical songs in the course of his Kimball hall recital of last evening. He displayed a rich, resonant voice which in its upper register, in soft passages, actually deserves the adjective "hornlike." His singing was pleasant, unassuming, and nicely inflected. Pauline Peebles provided piano accompaniments and a solo group. The beautiful Godowsky transcription of Strauss' "Serenade" she tossed off in an especially competent manner. E. B.

Since those born on a 9 are emotional, and since this is a 9-year for those born on today's date, these birthday children will have to be especially careful this year in regard to romantic affairs and friendships. There is the possibility that some may terminate with more said than is wise. April should be spent in work, putting your affairs in order and bringing your accounts up to date.

Dainty and Feminine Dress

MISS' TWO-PIECE DRESS.

There's springlike and summery beauty in this dainty dress, and girlish charm, too. We've designed it for slimsters only, because it's that kind of dress, demanding a sort of ingenue quality in its wearers. The blouse has a buttoned front. The contrasting collar, the blouse hemline, and the closing all are edged with ruffling or lace. There are bows where pockets normally would be. The skirt is a widely flared one, in contrast to the slimness of the nipped-in waistline.

Make this frock all in one material and color, or use the contrast idea, as shown in the sketches at the left. Silks and cottons, plain and patterned, vie for favor this season.

Style No. 3289 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 2½ yards of lace or ruffling for short sleeved version; 2¼ yards for skirt; 1¾ yards for blouse.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Little Child Requires Your Understanding

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Each age about which we write needs so much said about it, if it is to be covered adequately. Each stage in a child's life would make a book, if written in full. So, altho we had a series on the young child not long ago, the little boy or girl from 18 months on, some other suggestions for understanding and management have occurred to me that I want to touch on today. After all, these very young travelers of the road of life need a great deal of help, and often are very bewildering to their mothers and fathers.

Acquiring a new skill involving a new use of muscles and unfamiliar mental processes is a gradual and relatively slow matter, varying, quite naturally, with the individual, a fact true of grownups as well as of children.

Keep this in mind when your little boy or girl, just emerging from babyhood, is learning any of the many things he or she has to learn. You may think "O, but learning to button a dress or lace up moccasins is easy!" It is not! It is a complex task, and difficult when unfamiliar.

I wish I might be able to show to impatient parents a slow movie of a baby's early attempts to pull on a snubby, tiny moccasin-oxford and lace and tie it, and then later his more or less finished performance.

A mother must not try to hurry for example, the process of dressing. In the first place, she won't succeed, because the child actually can't speed up. In the second place, by trying to hurry him and by being impatient, she interferes with his concentration and confuses him, and then he is less successful and may grow discouraged.

If you need speed and efficiency, dress the child yourself. Don't get impatient or, with an annoyed air, take matters out of his hands and snap him briskly thru the rest of the dressing act, as if he were at fault.

Instead of thinking how slow your child is, watch your small boy or girl as he or she learns some of these many new things that have to be acquired, and be patient as well as observing. You will see, first, that when he wants to dress himself he enjoys it. You will see, that with the simplest thing, such as first pulling on a sock, he makes unnecessary motions, he experiments, he makes mistakes.

Another important thing to avoid is hurrying of a different kind, not the hurrying of a single act, such as putting on socks or pajamas, or tying a shoe lace, but the hurrying of expecting a child to learn a whole new skill before he is ready for it. There comes a time when a child is ready, mind and muscle, for a skill. When that right, or ripe, time comes he usually wants to do it, and can do it, without strain, provided his parents will let him alone sufficiently.

Altho you may not realize it, it is in these early days that your child begins to develop self-reliance, determination, and concentration while he is slowly learning to perform the [to you] simple acts of everyday living.

Motifs for Various Uses

BY NANCY CABOT.

Birds, beasts, and flowers, residents of the barnyard and forests serve as embroidery motifs for towels, aprons, curtains, and children's clothes. Every figure illustrated is included in the hot iron transfer pattern, and each design measures approximately three by four inches. The stitches are simple and may be quickly worked up for innumerable purposes.

Russian Easter Eve Celebration April 27.

The Russian Easter eve celebration that Col. and Mme. Yaschenko will hold on April 27 will be the last one in the present Yar, for the restaurant is moving to the Lake Shore Drive hotel later this spring. The celebration will extend into Easter, of course, for as usual the Russians will go to late services at their church on Easter eve, and then sup until the wee sma' hours of Eastern morn. The Yar is a favorite rendezvous on this occasion for Prince and Princess Rostislav, the George Voevodskys, the Nicholas Starosselskys, and others of the Russian colony.

The opening of the Yar Garden at the Lake Shore Drive hotel will be about the middle of June, but the restaurant proper will not be ready until about mid-September. The cocktail bar will be ready, however, when the garden is finished. Philip Maher is drawing plans for the new home of the Yar. The garden is to be modeled after a famous garden restaurant in Copenhagen.

Mrs. George B. Farnam to Visit First Grandchild.

Mrs. George B. Farnam is arriving tomorrow from her home in New Haven, Conn., to see her first grandchild, the daughter born last Saturday at the Presbyterian hospital to Mr. and Mrs. George B. Farnam of Chicago. The baby, who has not yet been named, also is the first grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan of Lake Forest.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Taylor is at the Whitehall for a few weeks en route to her home on Nantucket Island. Mrs. Taylor has been spending the winter in California.

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey will address members of the Cercle Français at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the clubrooms in the Fine Arts building. Mrs. Dewey will speak of her experiences with "évacués" in France and of the work of the International Red Cross. Tea will be served following the program.

Cards are out for a tea on Tuesday, April 16, from 3 to 6 o'clock at the Tretyakov galleries for Boris Lovet-Lorski, sculptor. An exhibition of Mr. Lovet-Lorski's work will be opened with the tea and will continue thru May 16. Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon, Mrs. Lewis Bernays, Mrs. Daniel Catton Rich, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, and Mrs. Nathaniel Owings are among those whose names are on the invitation.

The Stage

Theater Guild and American Theater society subscribers will receive tickets to "Romeo and Juliet," starring Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh, for the fifth play in the subscription series. The production of the Shakespeare tragedy, staged by Mr. Olivier, will occupy the Auditorium theater from Wednesday, April 17 to Saturday, May 4.

A special matinée of "Key Largo" will be given Friday afternoon at the Selwyn theater for the benefit of the Actors' fund. Paul Muni and the rest of the cast will give their services for this benevolent cause. There will be no tax on tickets.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

When the word got around that a startling new shade of nail polish was about to be launched, we were so besieged with inquiries about it, and WHEN it would be available, that we decided we wouldn't even get excited about it when it made its appearance.

However, when it did reach our desk, curiosity won out and we must confess couldn't wait to get the bottle open to experiment with it. We're glad, too, that we didn't wait.

About the shade: It's a surprise color, but an intriguing one—a dark, dark cherry red with a ruby undertone to it that definitely lifts it out of the dull color class. To get the true depth of the shade it is suggested that two coats of polish be used.

It really was meant to be a surprise, coming out as it does along with numerous pink shades. Worn with the lighter costume colors that have a place on the fashion calendar, such as the creamy beiges and soft grays, it's a perfect foil.

There's no question about it, dark polish is flattering to the hands, making them seem whiter and daintier by contrast. It's an accent to fingertips that is as effective as sparkling jewels are to the hand when played against light backgrounds.

For smoothness in application and wearing qualities this polish meets all requirements.

You're not left stranded when it comes to selecting a lipstick to match, for there is one all set to harmonize with the polish. It's dark in color, with quite a blue undertone; creamy and smooth, with a tip shaped to make it easy to achieve a perfect lipline.

The polish with lipstick to match in its smart container of dark blue with a wide silver band can be purchased together in a small purse pouch. FLORENCE MURDOCH.

In the majority of hands the defenders can form only a tentative plan of defense which is subject to repeated change as the play gradually develops. In other hands, however, it is not difficult to foresee at the very outset what is certain to transpire toward the end of the hand, and in those cases the full campaign must be mapped out at the start.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 diamonds	Double	2 hearts
3 spades	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

West was by no means satisfied with his own choice of a two diamond bid over the opening spade, but he was afraid of a take-out double because of his shortness in the other major suit, hearts, and could not see how a three diamond bid could improve the situation, since again it was an odds-on chance that his partner would respond with hearts. East's rescue, despite his trickless hand, was not bad. He could clearly see that in diamonds his hand could not produce a single trick, whereas if he found partner with even two hearts, his six card suit might produce as many as four tricks. South had a close question to decide: whether to double two hearts or to bid for game in spades, taking advantage of his own 30 part-score. His choice could not be censured, but he should have given more thought to the subsequent play.

West opened the diamond king, dummy won, and declarer promptly proceeded to lay himself wide open by taking a trump finesse to the jack. It is true that very few players in the West position would have had the skill to take advantage of this slip, but this particular West was a master of defense. Upon winning the spade queen, he led, not a diamond honor, but the six of diamonds. [The beauty of this play will become apparent as the analysis proceeds]. Declarer overruffed East's ruff, led the ace of spades, and then knocked out the ace of hearts. This time West continued with the diamond queen. Again declarer ruffed, and now he cleared away the club ace. The jack of diamonds came back and declarer had to use his next to last trump, which left him with the blank king. He cashed one club trick, but West ruffed in on the next lead, and the ruff of the ten of diamonds now took declarer's last trump. West ruffed declarer's next lead and cashed his good diamond for the second setting trick.

The hand was extremely interesting from two different angles. First, had declarer properly disdained the trump finesse, laying down the ace and king, thereby leaving West with two trump tricks, then had gone about his business of clearing away the aces of hearts and clubs, no defense whatever could have taken more than four tricks. After the spade finesse, however, it still required West's brilliant underlead of his remaining three diamond honors to defeat the contract at all.

Mother, Be Careful
ABOUT GIVING YOUR CHILD UNKNOWN REMEDIES

Take no chances with your child's health to save a few pennies.

BE SURE TO ASK THE ONE MAN WHO REALLY KNOWS

Before you give your child a doubtful "bargain" remedy . . . any medicine you are not absolutely sure about—ask your doctor.

Wait. Call up your own good doctor before you give your child a single dose of some cheap, unknown drug . . . a shopworn "orphan" product, perhaps, or a mysterious new medicine with some fancy name; "something just as good" sold on the old hawker's argument that it's a few pennies cheaper. Such a "bargain" could be the dearest purchase ever a woman made, mother.

For your own peace of mind alone, give no home remedy you don't know all about without your physician's approval first.

What the Name "Phillips'" Means

Ask your doctor even about the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia. And when he says, "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia", see that you get real "Phillips'" when you buy.

Your doctor has long known Phillips'—and knows its marvelous gentle action is especially suitable for the delicate system of children.

Have your physician "check up" your family frequently. His scientific training may safeguard against serious illness.

If your child prefers Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermint-flavored tablets scarcely larger than an aspirin tablet—that children chew like candy, give it this way. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips' and a big box costs only 25c at your druggists.

The small bottle of liquid Phillips' costs but a quarter, too, so take no chances on an unknown preparation. Get the genuine Phillips' by asking for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia".

DEAN BLANKS BROWNS FOR 5 INNINGS; CUBS WIN, 15-2

DIZZY GIVES UP ONLY TWO HITS, FANS 3 IN DEBUT

Todd Hits a Homer with Three On.

The White Sox and Pirates were rained out yesterday and are scheduled to play in Kansas City today. Story on Page 21.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Smith, Ark., April 8.—Dizzy Dean's 1940 unveiling here this afternoon was a grand success. The Great Man started and pitched five innings against the St. Louis Browns, yielding no runs and two singles.

While Dean was operating, the Cubs made 10 runs, nine of which were driven in on homers by Hank Leiber, Dom Dallessandro and Al Todd. The other one was driven across on a double by Ol' Diz himself. The Cubs kept on slugging after Dean's withdrawal and won, 15 to 2.

Fans Three, Walks Four.

Dean faced 21 batsmen, made 78 pitches, of which 35 were balls, and 27 strikes other than fairly hit balls. He fanned three and walked four.

Jake Mooty, shelved earlier in the spring with a tender arm, also experienced his 1940 unveiling after Diz went away. Mooty fared well, except for a home run greeting by Joe Gallagher and a double by George McQuinn, which scored a gent who had walked. Sam Harshany made a single in the ninth to make the hit total against Mooty only three.

Billy Herman, Augie Galan, and Leiber, three of Diz's closest pals, saw to it that the big fellow had some encouragement before he started to pitch. With one out in the first inning, Herman doubled and held second while Galan beat out an infield hit. Leiber then smashed his homer, a 375 foot shot, over the left field fence. Niggeling threw out Dallessandro and Glen Russell.

Mr. Dean Bears Down.

Then Dean went to work. Rip Radcliff walked on five pitches, the fourth of which was a strike. Diz threw a strike to Alan Strange, then a ball and a foul strike, after which Strange forced Radcliff, Bob Sturgeon to Herman. George McQuinn walked on four pitches. Joe Gallagher's first inning record was a strike, a foul strike, a ball and fly to Leiber. Harlond Clift grounded out to Stan Hack on the first pitch.

The Cubs went out in order in the second, then Dean performed as follows: Walter Judnich fouled to Hack after a three and two count. Don Heffner also ran the count to three and two, then grounded out to Hack. Harshany knocked the first pitch for a single to center. Niggeling tapped to Dean on the first pitch.

The Cubs again went out in order in the third, whereupon Diz did some real bearing down. Radcliff struck out on three pitches and Strange popped to Sturgeon on the first pitch. McQuinn walked after a three and two count and Gallagher sent him to

Keep Them Specialists Away: Dean

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Smith, Ark., April 8.—Jerome Herman [Dizzy] Dean tonight found himself back again in the spotlight he loves so well. Ol' Diz suddenly became a personage of note because of the neat five inning pitching job he did for the Cubs against the St. Louis Browns today.

Dizzy Dean.

When Diz left the game at the end of the fifth inning the Cubs were leading, 10 to 0, and the Browns had made only two singles off his delivery. His performance resulted in a rush of interviewers who were curious to learn if Diz was as good as he appeared to be. Following are comments from baseball folk:

JEROME HERMAN DEAN: I felt better than I have for two years. I was plenty fast when I wanted to be. Doc Lotshaw [Trainer Andy Lotshaw] has brought me back and I hope they keep them specialists away from me.

Hartnett Hopes Dean Is on the Comeback Trail.

MANAGER GABBY HARTNETT: I don't want to get excited too soon. I hope Dean's good showing today is the forerunner of a great comeback—for his sake, the Cubs' sake, my sake, and for baseball in general.

FRED HANEY, manager of the Browns: He showed me two pitches, fast balls with which he struck out Rip Radcliff and Harlond Clift, which convinced me that he can again pitch regularly and win in the National league.

RADCLIFF and CLIFT: Diz had plenty of stuff on those third strikes.

WALTER JUDNICH [called out on Dean's only overhand pitch]: He fooled me completely with that overhand curve.

UMPIRE BILL GRIEVE: It seemed from behind the plate that Diz counted mostly on slow stuff but he had the zip when he needed it.

Debut Eclipses His Opening Performance Last Year.

Tho Diz reported almost a month earlier in 1939 than this year, his debut on April 9 of last year was not nearly so impressive as today's performance. The detail of the two innings he worked on that date, in San Antonio, Tex., is as follows:

FIFTH INNING—Mesner threw out Spindel. Kramer beat out an infield single. Almada singled to right, Harris stopping at second. Harris scored and McQuinn was safe on Mesner's error. Bell walked, loading the bases. Clift walked, forcing Alamada across the plate. Gryska flied to Gleeson. Two runs, two hits, one error.

SIXTH INNING—Berardino doubled to left center. Mesner threw out Spindel. Kramer flied to Leiber, Almada bounced to Cavarretta. No runs, one hit.

That is all there was to the Dean debut one year ago.

EUROPEAN TEAM ENDS DRILL FOR CHICAGO FIGHTS

Confident of Victory in Stadium Tomorrow.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The European champions' preparation for tomorrow night's International Golden Gloves matches in the Stadium came to a close yesterday with a session of boxing and rope skipping. It was a happy, confident lot of amateurs who left the gymnasium in the Chicago Towers club.

Each man had worked with competent sparring partners, and each had reached the peak he had set for himself when the little band trudged out of Rome March 22 on the 5,690 miles trip to the loop. Most important in the minds of the boxers and officials was the fact that the week of strenuous drill had resulted in no injuries.

Only light exercise is scheduled for today, and tomorrow the squad's program is restricted to a little road work in the morning. Thereafter the success of the trip will rest in the hands of fate—and Chicago's Golden Gloves.

Europeans Confident.

It is the impression around the European camp that only the superior punching power of the Chicago boxers gives them a chance to regain the title the invaders won for the first time last year. From the fighters down to the bathhouse boys who have been administering to them, no one sees much chance for a Chicago victory except by the knockout route, and it remains to be seen whether the Chicagoans are sufficiently skilled to land the dynamite they are reputed to pack.

And in the matter of power, the European representatives are not to be taken lightly. Featherweight Federico Cortonesi, of Italy; Egisto Peire, the European and Italian lightweight champion; Welterweight Erik Agren and Olle Tandberg, three times European heavyweight champion, can upset an opponent with a well timed punch.

Peire, the government clerk from Susegana on the River Piave, wins a good share of his fights by knockouts, and Agren is accustomed to punching away at middleweights and heavyweights back in Sweden. Both were International Golden Gloves winners last year. Peire also is an excellent boxer. Tony Ancona, his Chicago opponent, may not be able to land a solid punch on the shifty Peire all night.

Peire Develops Punch.

Peire began his career as a boxer and altho he has developed a punch, he has never neglected the more artistic phases of his calling. His start in the ring dates back to a night at a boxing show in Susegana five years ago when he drifted into the arena to watch a school chum.

After the fights Peire danced about the exit leveling punches at an imaginary opponent in a bit of shadow boxing. The club boxing instructor saw the demonstration and asked him to report for workouts. Until he had undergone six months of instruction and had three fights, no one suspected him of being a puncher. His talent for quick dismissals came to light in the second round of a bout when he dropped his opponent with a short right to the chin. Thereafter more attention was paid to his punching and until Cortonesi came along, Peire was considered the outstanding puncher in Italy.

Select Chicago Punchers.

Selection of Chicago's representatives indicates the respect Chicago coaches have for the Europeans' ability. Men with the best punch were favored all along the line—where there was a choice—Sam Stinson, the flyweight; Ancona, Anthony Jones, the middleweight, all getting the call because of their power. It is evident the Chicago coaches do not have much faith in their charges' ability to box their way to victory. The advantage in experience lies with the Europeans, none of whom has had less than five years of international competition.

This matter of experience is an-

Contagious Disease.

I think the most contagious thing
That there could ever be
Is nothing but a simple yawn,
You know—Ooooo my—Ooooo me.

You'll catch it simply by a look,
And quick as A B C,
I beg your pardon—Aaaa Um—
Don't get too close to me.

You try to look away, but then
The harm's already done.
And then you—O, excuse me, please,
Here comes another one.

It surely gets you tuckered out,
I mean that yawning so,
But then again it feels so good,
You hate to see it go—O! O!

Drafts Bill for Congressional Probe of Boxing

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—Criticizing professional boxing as a sport that "may not be worth saving," Rep. Ambrose J. Kennedy [D., Md.] said today he would ask congress tomorrow to order a federal investigation of the sport and place it under jurisdiction of a government commission.

The Maryland congressman completed the draft of bills which would order a congressional inquiry and create a federal supervisory boxing commission. His motive, he said, "is one intended to aid and better boxing rather than to harm the sport in any way." Kennedy said the bills were drafted on his own initiative and not at the request of the National Boxing association. The N. B. A., he added, would welcome such an investigation.

Kennedy said there was a tendency to monopolize the services of leading boxers and that he believed pugilists should be free to negotiate with any promoter they choose.

"I mean to ascertain whether a deserving boxer gets his chance at the title because his record entitled him to the chance or whether he gets it merely because he signd up with one promoter," Kennedy asserted.

Kennedy said he also was opposed to such bouts as that between Joe Louis and Johnny Paycheck and between Louis and John Henry Lewis.

ENGLAND CALLS OFF WALKER CUP BECAUSE OF WAR

New York, April 8 (AP).—The United States Golf association today was notified that because of the war Great Britain will not send a team to oppose the Americans in the Walker cup matches this year.

This year's international matches between the amateur teams had tentatively been scheduled in St. Paul, Minn., on August 30 and 31. The Walker cup was last competed for in June, 1938 at St. Andrews when the United States lost, 7 to 4.

SIX INTERCITY WINNERS SEEK MORE HONORS

All in Top Shape for Bouts Tomorrow.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The eight boys who will carry Chicago's colors in the International Golden Gloves matches were picked yesterday. They will meet the amateur champions of Europe tomorrow night in the Stadium. Basing selections on present condition and past performance in Golden Gloves and intercity competition, the coaching staff headed by John Behr made the following choices:

Flyweight—Sam Stinson, Peoria, Ill.
Bantamweight—Jimmy Joyce, Gary, Ind.
Featherweight—Leon Haire, St. Louis, Mo.
Lightweight—Tony Ancona, Detroit, Mich.
Welterweight—Savior Canadeo, Chicago.
Middleweight—Anthony Jones, Springfield, Ill.
Light heavyweight—James Richie, St. Louis, Mo.
Heavyweight—Cornelius Young, Chicago.

These boys constitute the best boxing talent assembled from the 23 states which sent contestants into the Golden Gloves tournament. All have demonstrated their boxing ability and their fighting spirit. Tho they face the tremendous task of restoring American supremacy in international boxing, they have shown that if any group in the country can do it, they are the boys for the job.

Six of the eight won their Intercity Golden Gloves matches in New York and are eager for the chance to add international victories to their accomplishments. These six are Young, Richie, Jones, Canadeo, Haire, and Joyce.

Holds Victory Over Saccoia.

In getting the flyweight assignment Stinson edged out Harold Dade, who won the Golden Gloves title in that class. Stinson's most noteworthy accomplishment was his knockout victory over Vic Saccoia, defending champion in the Golden Gloves tournament. The Peoria boy's ruggedness and hitting power were the factors which swayed the coaches in giving him the call.

It is generally believed that if the Italian flyweight, Guido Nardecchia, is to be beaten, the only way it can be done is by hitting him hard, rather than by trying to outbox him. Tho Dade is one of the most accomplished boxers on the Chicago squad, the coaches figured it wouldn't do to try to beat Nardecchia at his own game.

Joyce Is Level Headed.

Joyce, whose brother William was a Golden Gloves champion in 1937, is one of the most level headed fighters on the squad. No matter how fiercely his opponent charges, Joyce handles the situation coolly. After his teammates had lost the first three bouts of the Intercity engagement, he stepped in and checked the rout with a Chicago victory. He will face the veteran Ulderico Sergo of Italy in the International bouts.

Haire is admirably suited to meet Federico Cortonesi, hardest hitter of the European squad because he has an excellent chance of staying clear of the Italian's tremendous punches for the full three rounds. Meanwhile he may be scoring enough points to win. Haire, who is very tall and long armed for a featherweight, knows how to use these advantages so well that he went thru his Golden Gloves tournament bouts and his Intercity match without allowing one opponent to tag him solidly.

Ancona to Meet Peire.

Ancona will encounter Egisto Peire, defending International champion in the lightweight class. Ancona has quite a bit of prestige himself, having won two consecutive Golden Gloves titles. Tho he was stopped by Ray Robinson in his Intercity bout, he scored a knockdown over the brilliant New Yorker.

Canadeo, captain of the squad, will face another defending international titleholder—Eric Agren of Sweden. Canadeo has a particularly fast and accurate left which has decided many bouts in his favor. He holds the wel-

SPORTING DOGS WILL GET TESTS OVER WEEK-END

Two Field Trials, Puppy Match Scheduled.

BY BOB BECKER.

Owners of sporting dogs will have several opportunities to see their favorite breeds in competition during the coming week-end, with two field trials and a puppy match on the Chicagoland schedule. One of the field trials will find pointers and setters competing west of Chicago, the other involves the retriever breeds in a trial near Waukegan. The puppy match will be held Friday evening for cocker spaniels only.

The cocker spaniel puppy match will be held in the Bal Tabarin room of the Sherman hotel with judging to start at 8 o'clock. It will be sponsored by the Cocker Spaniel Club of the Middle West. The competition is open to any cocker puppy under 1 year old, regardless of whether its owner belongs to the club. An added feature of the show will be an exhibition of cocker spaniels which have been trained in obedience. Admission is free. Cocker owners wishing further information on the match should call Paul Moser, Randolph 4347.

Headquarters at Stanton Stables.

The headquarters for the pointer and setter trial will be the Stanton stables, on Butterfield road two miles south of Glen Ellyn. The event is the annual spring trial of the Chicagoland Field Trial club. Five stakes are on the two-day schedule. George Schall, Chicago, and Frank Sturges, Kimhurst, will be judges. The Chicagoland club has inaugurated a system of using loud speakers to inform the spectators about the trials, making it unnecessary to ride horseback to follow the pointers and setters as they point and retrieve pheasants.

The Midwest Field Trial club, pioneer retriever organization in the central states, will hold its annual spring trial Saturday and Sunday at the Dunes park, four miles north of Waukegan on Sheridan road. Two New York judges — Mrs. Walton Ferguson and Mrs. Morgan Belmont—will officiate with Richard Ryan of Minneapolis.

Two New Events for Setters.

The Western Pointer and Setter club recently announced that it has established two new competitive events for English and Irish setters. Achievement trophies will be awarded to the owners of the English setter and Irish setter which win the most credits in dog shows held between now and the date of the Western Specialty show in Chicago next November. The second competition will be a puppy futurity event for English and Irish setters. Persons wishing further information should inquire of John H. Morse, club secretary, box 183M, route 1, Des Plaines, Ill.

Men Race Tonight for New York-Chicago Title

The feature of tonight's roller Derby in the Coliseum will be a quarter mile match race between the rival skaters of the New York and Chicago teams for the men's championship. Over 9,000 last night saw the Chicago team come from behind to defeat New York, 12 to 4, with Peggy O'Neal scoring five points for Chicago.

Woman Turf Trainer Lands Big Time Job

New York, April 8 (AP).—Mrs. John Bosley, the Maryland society matron who has been keeping the wolf off the welcome mat for half a dozen years by developing horses, hit the big time among turf trainers today.

She was engaged to handle the horses of Mrs. E. Graham Lewis, the Elizabeth Arden of the cosmetic world, taking the place from which Lou Feustel resigns.

Thus the former Elizabeth Cromwell, taking over one of the major racing stables in the turf world, advances to a spot higher than any woman trainer has ever reached before. In Mrs. Lewis' barns she has a promising string of thorobreds of all ages, including the Kentucky Derby candidates, Jacomar, Perfect Love, Samuel D., and Gen'l Manager.

Developed Chase Me.

Mrs. Bosley has ranked high among developers of racing stock ever since she brought Chase Me to the races from the Bosleys' Fox Hill farm in Monckton, Md., in 1933 and won $30,000 with the former hunter that year. Since then she has developed horses for Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, Mrs. John Durant, and the Bostwicks—Pete and A. C.

In becoming trainer for Mrs. Lewis' extensive string, she climaxes a career that reads like one of Horatio Alger's success stories. Back in 1933 she found herself with a mortgage on Fox Hill and three children to rear. She knew horses best—so she turned to the races. Several hunters were in the stables at Fox Hill, one of them Chase Me, a pet of the children. The whole family got together and trained this brown son of Purchase for the races. He swept thru the Maryland season that year with six straight victories.

Refuse Hollywood Offer.

Along came an offer for the whole family and the horse to go to Hollywood to make a picture, but the Bosleys voted to stick to racing. In his very next start—the Suburban handicap at Belmont in 1934—Chase Me broke a leg and had to be destroyed. The next successful Bosley hope was Betty's Buddy, which also won about $30,000.

Last year, Mrs. Bosley saddled 22 winners and won $24,337. Her husband has been an owner and trainer of steeplechase horses for years. Her son, John Jr., also is a trainer as well as a gentleman jockey.

WEATHER JINX KEEPS CLUTCH ON SOX AND PIRATES

Wet Field Prevents Game in Hutchinson, Kas.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hutchinson, Kas., April 8.—The White Sox and Pirates, rained out at Enid, Okla., Saturday and frozen out yesterday in Wichita, Kas., almost got to the point of appearing this afternoon before some cash customers. The big league tourists dolled up in their working togs and taxied to the local park only to learn that officials in charge of the affair had decided nothing short of a caterpillar tractor could navigate the soupy like infield. Even the burning of hundreds of gallons of gasoline had no effect on the gumbo.

Herold [Muddy] Ruel.

However, all was not lost, altho the respective secretaires, after two barren days, would have preferred to share in at least a slim slice of gate receipts. As long as the athletes were at the park, Muddy Ruel, acting manager, figured the White Sox might as well throw the ball around for a while.

Mr. Ruel Is Irked.

Mr. Ruel, who hasn't seen anything but terrific weather since he took charge and is threatening to demand the immediate return of Manager Jimmy Dykes, will go back to John Rigney and Vallie Eaves for his pitching selections tomorrow in Kansas City against the Pirates.

In his brief managerial career Ruel has been able to boss one complete game. That was in Lubbock. Then came the five inning affair in snow at Amarillo, followed by three postponements.

The three days on relief undoubtedly has Ruel worried as to whom he should pass on to Manager Dykes as his nominee for opening day April 16 against the Cleveland Indians in Comiskey park. Ruel rightfully takes pride in his judgment of pitchers and, as he caught a flock of them in his younger days, Walter Johnson included, he must know something of the temperaments at the other end of the battery line. Ruel secretly hopes to have Edgar [Lefty] Smith in readiness, knowing as he does that Smitty casts a spell over Bob Feller and the Indians.

Option Boyles, Cromer.

Two more of the Sox freshmen were dismissed from class today but will be permitted to reenter after a little more prepping. Harry Boyles, tall right handed pitcher who has possibilities, was optioned to the Fort Worth, Tex., league team. Hal Cromer, outfielder from Indiana university, was sent to Oklahoma City.

The Sox pitching staff now is down to the point where not much more whittling can be done. There'll be room for nine after May 15 and the survivors probably will be Ted Lyons, Clint Brown, John Rigney, Thornton Lee, Bill Dietrich, Jack Knott, Edgar Smith, Pete Appleton, and Vallie Eaves. Two of those who probably will be optioned out for experience are Orval Grove and Ed Weiland, but Dykes undoubtedly will try to give them a little big league work before making the final trim. Aside from the pitchers, there is only one other man destined for shipment and he may be Frank Metha, third baseman.

third by dumping a single on the left field line on the first pitch. Clift had a ball, two strikes, a ball and a foul, then struck out.

The Cubs gave Diz three more runs in the fourth. Leiber was hit by a pitched ball. Dallessandro knocked a homer over the center field wall, scoring behind Leiber. Clift threw out Russell and Todd but Sturgeon singled to left and scored on Dean's double to center. Niggeling tossed out Hack.

It was three up and three down for the Browns in the fourth. Judnich struck out after a three and two count. Heffner popped the first pitch to Herman. Harshany was thrown out by Sturgeon after a count of two balls and a strike.

After two were out in the Cub fifth Niggeling walked Leiber, Dallessandro and Russell to load the bases. Todd stepped up and knocked his four run homer over the wall in left center. Gallagher went against the left field fence to pull down Sturgeon's drive. In the Browns' fifth, Joe Grace, a pinch hitter, walked on five pitches, then Radcliff popped to Russell after a three and two count. Strange flied to Galan after a two and two count. McQuinn took two strikes, then popped to Herman.

Gallagher Hits a Homer.

Emil Bildilli took over for the Browns at the start of the sixth and retired the Cubs in order. Mooty replaced Dean at the start of the sixth and his first pitch of the exhibition season rebounded off Gallagher's bat for a homer. Clift, Judnich, and Heffner then were retired in order.

The Cubs boosted their total score to a dozen in the seventh, Bildilli's second and final inning. Jim Gleeson was called out on strikes, then Bill Nicholson walked and took second on a wild pitch. Phil Cavarretta batted for Dallessandro and flied to Radcliff, but Russell doubled, scoring Nicholson. Clyde McCullough doubled, scoring Russell. Sturgeon flied to Judnich.

The Browns made a run in the seventh on a couple of walks and a double by McQuinn. Mooty opened the eighth against Loy Hanning with a double to left center and scored on a double by Bill Rogell. Two more runs were made on walks and stuff.

Sues Fighter

MRS. DAVEY DAITCH.

A writ of ne exeat to prevent Davey Day, No. 1 contender for the lightweight crown from leaving the city was obtained yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Marion Sylvia Daitch [her husband does not use his real name in the ring], 23, of 2332 North Spaulding avenue, who is seeking separate maintenance. The writ was issued by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort, and bond was set at $5,000.

According to Mrs. Daitch's complaint, filed by Attorney Alvin L. Kayner, the couple married last Nov. 13, and since then she "never had a day alone with her husband." She told Judge Desort that there were always fighters, trainers, and relatives around, and that her husband beat and choked her on several occasions.

The court was told by Attorney Kayner that Day makes $25,000 a year and that he has a fight scheduled in Louisville on Derby eve. If he posts the bond guaranteeing his appearance in court, he will be free to go ahead with plans for the Louisville fight. Sam Pian and Art Winch, managers of Day, later said that Day actually doesn't net more than $5,000 a year.

WANERS TO SIT ON BENCH FOR PIRATE OPENER

Wichita, Kas., April 8 (AP).—For the first time in 14 years the Pittsburgh Pirates seem likely today to take the field in the opening game of the National league season next week without one of the Waner brothers in the starting lineup. Manager Frankie Frisch disclosed that his plans for the first game against St. Louis do not include the Waners as starters.

Frisch said he would use Debs Garms in Paul Waner's accustomed spot in right field if the Cardinals use a right hand pitcher, and Maurice Van Robays in right if a southpaw is used. Johnny Rizzo will play left and Bob Elliott center.

Dodgers Beat Yanks, 10-6, in Series Opener

Owensboro, Ky., April 8 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers gave the world champion New York Yankees their annual lesson in humility today by plastering a 10 to 6 defeat on the Yanks before 3,200 in the first game of their spring series which will wind up in Brooklyn Sunday.

The Dodgers fell upon Spud Chandler for seven runs in the second inning and collected three more in the seventh on home runs by Babe Phelps and Pee Wee Reese off Steve Sundra. Joe Di Maggio was the only Yankee hitter who could do much against Hugh Casey, accounting for four runs with a homer and a single. Score:

New York [A.].....000 400 200— 6 9 2

Taste beer the European Way
Beer flavor shows up at 50 Degrees
...So you enjoy to the full the rich goodness that's hidden if over-chilled
Richard Seibold, Meister Bräu Brewmaster

50°

Thousands have switched to MEISTER BRÄU after making this 50-Degrees Test

IF you don't want to fool yourself, drink beer the European Way. Then it's easy to judge beer like an expert and to get full enjoyment from all the goodness brewed in it.

Beer is different from some other drinks. Cold disguises the taste—buries the honest flavor—instead of bringing it out. That's why brewers test beer flavor at 50 degrees, where the true flavor—good or bad—shows up. It's the European Way to drink beer. Old country beer lovers won't drink a beer that has to be freezing cold to be palatable. They drink it at a temperature where they can get the benefit of all the goodness brewed into it.

For 49 years we've been making beer to suit the 50-degree drinkers. We know if we can please the "beer cranks" we will please everybody. We could add sugars or syrups to the brew and save time. But we'll never do it. Compare flavors at 50 degrees, and you'll ask for the beer you prefer by name from now on.

So order Meister Bräu from your retailer. See for yourself why we've made up our minds to stick with all-grain flavor and the old-fashioned methods which produce it.

THE "50-DEGREES" TEST
Shows up Beer Flavor . . . GOOD OR BAD
Take a bottle of Meister Bräu and one of any other beer at average refrigerator temperature. Let stand until it's the proper temperature. Then open and compare flavors. Use an ordinary food thermometer such as you can get at a ten-cent store.

Ask for Meister Bräu Draft Beer. Bars take special care to serve it at the proper temperature.

ACTRESS TO FLY FROM WEST FOR ROLE ON W-G-N

Dame May Whitty to Make Radio Debut Monday.

Dame May Whitty will make her American radio debut on W-G-N and the coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting System on the Fifth Row Center program at 9:30 p. m. next Monday. The celebrated British actress will fly to Chicago from San Francisco for the broadcast.

Dame May Whitty.

The program, ordinarily heard on Sunday, has been changed to Monday for the one time only. Its time next Sunday, 5 to 5:30 p. m., will be taken by "Romance in Rhythm."

Play Written for Broadcast.

Miss Whitty will be heard in "Incident in Singapore," a radio play written specially for the broadcast. She will play the part of self-styled timid lady from the English provinces who almost turns a peninsula upside down.

Miss Whitty is now appearing on the stage in San Francisco with Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier in "Romeo and Juliet." The play opens here at the Auditorium theater on April 17 for a run of two and one-half weeks.

Honored by King George V.

Miss Whitty was given her title of dame by the late King George V. for her work during the last war. Her brilliant theatrical career began in 1880. She boasts a career of 60 consecutive years of public performance. Her second play made her a star.

She was the daughter of Alfred Whitty, wh. was publisher of the Liverpool Post. Her husband is Ben Webster, who is playing Montague in her current Shakespeare stage success.

Miss Whitty has starred in a number of motion pictures. American picture enthusiasts will remember her best for her work in "Night Must Fall," "The Lady Vanishes," and "Raffles."

FLEXIBLE RULES FOR TELEVISION URGED UPON FCC

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—Allen B. Du Mont, television manufacturer of Passaic, N. J., told the Federal Communications commission today that standards for commercial telecasting should be flexible. There should be further research and experimentation before permanent standards are set, he asserted.

Du Mont was the first witness as the commission reopened hearings on the question of permitting limited commercial operations in the television field.

He said flexibility of standards would pave the way for immediate initiation of widespread public participation in television.

The commission once ruled that commercial telecasting could begin next Sept. 1, but later suspended its order and directed new hearings on the question of whether commercial use of telecasting now might retard research unduly.

Ten other manufacturers and telecasting systems gave notice of appearance. Included was the Radio Corporation of America, whose president, David Sarnoff, commented that he was amazed that the commission had suspended the Sept. 1 date for commercialization.

COURT UPHOLDS HASKELL GIFT OF 40 OIL PAINTINGS

A gift of 40 oil paintings valued at $100,000 to the Art institute by Frederick T. Haskell, banker and philanthropist who died in 1935, was upheld yesterday by the appellate court.

The decision affirmed the dismissal by Circuit Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of a claim by Mrs. Lila F. Haskell for a widow's half share in the paintings. Mrs. Haskell charged that the gift was designed to defraud her of a share in the paintings. The appellate court opinion was written by Justice John M. Connor and concurred in by Justices David F. Matchett and William H. McSurely.

Among artists represented in the collection are Sir Joshua Reynolds, Constable, Gainsborough, Corot, Millet, and Gilbert Stuart.

U. OF C. 'PULSE' RATE IS DOUBLED TO BOOST SHOW

If Pulse, the University of Chicago student magazine, can be believed, William J. Hochman, a law student, is a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde personality.

On the cover of today's issue is his —or their—picture. Hochman is both a correctly garbed swain, in dinner clothes, and a charming young woman, in an evening gown. Even more puzzling, Hochman, the suitor, is embracing Mr. Hochman, the glamor girl.

The deception is a photographer's trick to advertise "Patients Please," the spring show of Blackfriars, the men's student dramatic organization. Hochman will appear in the cast as a female impersonator.

MAUNA LOA EMITS A FLOW OF LAVA 'BIG AS NIAGARA'

HILO, Hawaii, April 8 (AP).—Mauna Loa, quiescent since December, 1935, erupted today. Army aviators said the volcano was pouring molten lava from a fissure on the Kau desert side, opposite Hilo. A description of a lava flow "as big as Niagara," of geysers bursting several hundred feet high from a molten lake, and of rivulets of lava coursing down the mountain slope was related by Brig. Gen. Walter H. Frank, who flew over the scene. The eruption occurred in the Mokuaweoweo crater and was said by Gen. Frank to have cracked the mountain's back.

SENATE INQUIRES ABOUT TRIMS IN AGENCY CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—The senate called on the budget bureau today to say just how the bureau proposes to make a 700 million dollar reduction in the capital of government lending agencies. The cut was suggested in President Roosevelt's annual budget, but Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] told his colleagues that the chief executive had failed to name the agencies involved.

Byrd's resolution asking such information developed a brief clash between himself and Democratic Leader Alban Barkley, who objected to a statement in the legislation that "repeated requests to have the director of the budge identify or enumerae "the agencies have been denied.

Barkley said that the resolution "carries the implication that the budget director has refused to give the information to the house or senate.

"It is a truthful implication," Byrd snapped back.

NEW SECURITIES OF 178 MILLIONS TO BE MARKETED

United States Steel Plans Refunding.

Offerings or proposed offerings of securities totaling $178,000,000 were announced yesterday, including two issues amounting to $23,000,000 which will be placed on the market today.

The largest of the proposed issues is one of more than 95 million dollars which the United States Steel corporation is considering with a view to raising funds to redeem its 3¼ per cent debentures. An official of the company indicated that the refunding issue would pay a lower interest rate than the debentures and would be offered publicly.

Redeemable at 103.

About $95,100,000 of an original $100,000,000 issue of the 3¼ per cent debentures were still outstanding at the end of 1939. The present debentures are dated June 1, 1938, and are due June 1, 1948. They are redeemable on any interest date on 30 days' notice or any other date on 60 days' notice at 103 thru June 1, 1941, and at varying lower prices thereafter.

Directors of Texas corporation, a leading producer and refiner of oil, voted at a special meeting to refund $60,000,000 of 3½ per cent debentures, due in 1951, and to issue the same amount of new debentures which would mature in not less than 20 years.

One of today's offerings consists of 147,688 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock, $100 par value, of Safeway Stores, Inc. It is priced at $108 a share. The underwriting group is headed by Merrill Lynch and E. A. Pierce & Cassatt.

Preferred to Be Paid.

Part of the proceeds will be used to redeem on July 1 all of the outstanding 7 per cent and 6 per cent preferred stocks of Safeway Stores. The rest will be used for general corporate purposes. Sale of the new stock is subject to prior subscription by holders of the stocks to be retired.

Goldman, Sachs & Co. heads a group which is putting on the market today $7,000,000 of United Biscuit Company of America 3½ per cent debentures due April 1, 1955. They are being offered at $102. The proceeds will be used to retire higher rate bonds, to repay bank loans, and for other purposes.

An issue of $75,000,000 of notes dated April 9 and maturing Nov. 23, 1940, was allotted by the state of New York yesterday to 93 banks in amounts ranging from $100,000 to $2,000,000. Interest at the annual rate of 0.15 per cent will be paid at maturity.

Proceeds of the issue will be used for general state purposes, including as a major item the final payments of state aid to rural schools.

CHICAGO GROUP ASSAILS MOVE TO FIX TRUCK RATES

Regulation of motor truck rates on the same basis as rail freight rates would destroy inherent advantages of the motor carriers, the Chicago Association of Commerce states in a brief filed yesterday with the Interstate Commerce commission in Washington.

The brief is part of the exceptions to the findings of an examiner who heard representatives of the trucking industry recently in hearings on the question of fixing rates for motor carriers. The association of commerce seeks oral arguments before the commission before a decision is reached.

"Terminal costs of motor carriers are much lower," the brief states, "while line haul costs are relatively higher, particularly for longer hauls. By prescribing the rail basis of rates for motor carriers, long haul rates would be less than reasonably compensatory while short haul rates would be excessive. Such a proposal would increase competition and transportation costs and retard effective coördination between rail and motor transportation."

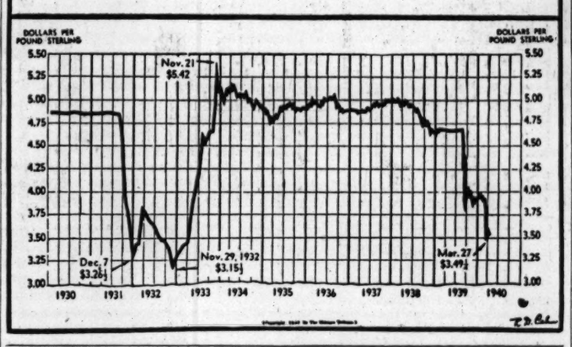
The Price of Sterling Since 1930



Weigh Effect of Dual British Exchange Rate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 8.—The treasury is studying the effect of two rates on pound sterling upon American business but there is no reason to believe that the British have "willfully" depreciated the value of their currency," Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said today.

Asked whether depreciation of the pound as reflected in an unofficial, or free, rate did not offset any previous trade advantages with Great Britain, Morgenthau replied that a continuous study is being made.

"I had a survey made among importers and exporters on any complaints as to the two rates of exchange and I have had no complaints to date from them," he said. "There is no reason for me to feel that the British at this time have wilfully depreciated the pound for competitive purposes."

Agreement not Violated.

He insisted that the "spirit" of tripartite agreement has not been violated. This agreement, which has gone into practical discard since the European war began last September, called for coöperation of Great Britain, France, the United States, and some of the smaller European nations, in stabilizing exchange rates.

The war forced the British and French to forgo this collaboration. They set up exchange restrictions to protect the internal rates of their currencies and prevent any outflow of exchange which might handicap their conduct of the war.

The tripartite agreement banned any competitive currency devaluation for procuring trade advantages.

"Free" Rate Much Lower.

The official rate on the pound ranges between $4.02½ and $4.03½ while the unofficial rate today was $3.55¾. When the British established the official rate last September they promised that the $4.02 basis would be maintained for foreign trade transactions and for liquidation of American-owned prewar sterling balances. All subsequent exchange transactions were to be at the lower rate.

Morgenthau asserted the treasury is studying the dual exchange situation strictly from a customs angle and that the treasury is seeking to determine its legal responsibilities in connection with merchandise coming from the United Kingdom.

MANUFACTURERS SLACKEN RATE OF STOCK BUILDING

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP).—Edward J. Noble, undersecretary of commerce, said today that inventory accumulation of manufacturers slackened in February.

He estimated that stocks on hand increased 7-10 of one per cent in February, compared with 2.2 per cent in January, 2.7 per cent in December, and 2.8 per cent in November.

Noble estimated that manufacturers' sales other than in the airplane industry dropped 5.4 per cent, new orders dropped 4.2 per cent, and the volume of unfilled orders declined 3.8 per cent in February compared with January.

WHEAT RECOVERS EARLY LOSSES TO END ABOUT EVEN

Grain prices moved uncertainly yesterday. Wheat futures dipped early on reports that the west and southwestern producing areas had received additional rains over the week-end but prices rallied to close ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower. Trade in corn was restricted and prices closed ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

Heavy rains in the last three days were believed to have temporarily halted damage from drouth in the more eastern sections of the winter wheat belt, but precipitation in parts of western Kansas was reported light and further rain is needed.

Wet and cold weather was reported delaying the start of spring wheat seeding in the northwest.

Trading in soy beans was light with commission houses moderate buyers of October on a bureau of agricultural economics report that with war in Europe and other factors there would probably be an active demand for beans this fall.

Walter E. Heller Co. Calls Note Issue for Payment

New York, April 8 [Special].—Walter E. Heller & Co., instalment banking and factoring firm of Chicago and New York, today called for redemption on May 10, at 102 and interest, all outstanding 4 per cent notes due Oct. 1, 1946. The original issue was $2,500,000. Term loans of $2,400,000 to replace these funds at lower interest rates are being placed with a group of banks, the company reported.

CHICAGO GROUP ORGANIZES NEW FIDELITY FIRM

Takes Over Midwest Annuity Business.

Plans were announced yesterday for the formation of a new corporation with capital of a half million dollars to take over the middle western business of the Fidelity Investment association of Wheeling, W. Va.

Allen G. Messick.

Capital for the new corporation, which is expected to be named the Fidelity Corporation of America, is being raised by a Chicago group headed by Allen G. Messick and F. H. Pufer. Messick, a former Indiana banker, was engaged in the radio manufacturing business until a few years ago. He has been active in La Salle street in recent years and lives at 3300 Lake Shore drive. Pufer has been an executive of Fidelity Investment for 16 years and recently has been in charge of the company's operations in Illinois.

Present Contracts Continue.

Fidelity Investment, which was organized in 1911, sells annuity contracts. Its outstanding contracts total more than $250,000,000 face value. The company's last annual statement listed total assets of $34,770,000. The existing contracts of the company will not be disturbed by the formation of the new company, it was explained. Contract holders number about 100,000.

Plans for organization of the new company were announced in Wheeling by John Marshall, chairman of Fidelity Investment. Stockholders of the company, he said, at a meeting yesterday approved an agreement with the Chicago group under which the latter would put up new capital to carry on the business in the middle west. States other than Illinois in which the new company will operate were not listed. It was said, however, that operations of the concern would cover several middle western states.

The new company will not operate in those states in which Fidelity Investment is now selling annuity contracts, it was explained.

No Merger Is Planned.

Marshall said that "while there would be a close relationship bewteen Fidelity Investment and the new corporation, a merger of the companies was not planned, at the present time."

"The obligation of Fidelity Investment association and Fidel Association of New York, Inc., its subsidiary, to carry out the terms of their existing contracts remains in full force and effect," the announcement said.

In 1938 Fidelity Investment association consented to the entry of a court decree under which it agreed to abide by certain regulations of the Securities and Exchange commission governing the sale of annuity contracts. Prior to that time there was some question whether the business of the company and others operating in the field were subject to the jurisdiction of the commission.

Both Fidelity and Investors Syndicate of Minneapolis, which is engaged in the same field, submitted to the commission's authority to avoid protracted litigation that might injure their business. A receivership action brought against Fidelity in 1939 in federal court in Wheeling was dismissed after a special master found the allegations against the company to be unwarranted. The dismissal was subsequently upheld in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Housewife's Wheat 'Gambling' Suit Against Brokers Reopened

The suit of a Chicago housewife against her brokers for $21,500 she lost speculating in the wheat market was reopened yesterday by the Illinois Appellate court. In the event of an ultimate ruling against the brokers, many other similar suits may be filed, attorneys said.

E. A. Pierce & Co., the brokerage firm, was sued by Mrs. Myrtle Salzman, 128 South Parkside avenue, who charged that her losses were gambling losses, recoverable under Illinois statutes.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg had ruled against Mrs. Salzman in January, 1939, holding that the firm was not responsible for the actions of its customer's transactions.

Reverses Feinberg's Decision.

The Appellate court yesterday reversed Judge Feinberg's decision and remanded the case for retrial. Justice John M. O'Connor held that the brokerage firm cannot escape liability on the ground that Mrs. Salzman dealt with one of its agents.

The suit was filed under the Illinois statute which makes illegal and subject to penalty, transactions in commodities where delivery is not intended. Earlier court decisions have held that purchases of grain futures on margin were gambling transactions when it was established that the purchaser had no intention of taking delivery of the grain.

Exemption Claim Overruled.

Harold M. Keele of the law firm of Levinson, Becker, Peebles & Swirin, representing Pierce & Co., contended that a new practice law passed in 1934 barred such suits. His contention was overruled. Keele said a petition for a rehearing would probably be filed within 10 days.

That the case may have far reaching consequences was revealed when Judge Feinberg issued his decision. He said:

"If brokers were held liable under the statute for the actions of their employés no brokerage firm would be safe from assault by the unscrupulous conduct of a salesman. The best of houses would collapse under such conditions."

Mercury Goes Up—It's War, Not the Heat

The explosive powers of a gray, sandy substance—fulminate of mercury—and the demand for it in time of war have more than doubled the price of mercury in Chicago.

Quicksilver, as the metal is popularly known, is sold in 76 pound flasks. Current quotations in Chicago vary from $180 to $185 per flask. The average price in 1939 was $103.94; 1938 [prewar], $75.47; 1937, $90.18, and 1936, $79.92.

Mercury and its compounds are used for a multitude of purposes, including thermometers, dental amalgam, and making artificial minnow fish lures wiggle realistically. One of the most important uses of the liquid metal, however, is the fulminate compound that acts as a "starter" for the basic explosives. The fulminate explodes thru heat or percussion. No efficient substitute for fulminate of mercury has ever been discovered, authorities say.

Output Is Not Large.

Because of limited deposits and difficulties of extraction world production of mercury is fairly small, totaling around 100,000 flasks per year.

A major part of the world's supply is mined in Spain. During the civil war in that country production was restricted, and the Almaden mine [largest deposit in the world] was a prize fought for by both sides.

Other deposits are found in Japan, Mexico, and the United States. The normal annual consumption of mercury in this country ranges from 25,000 to 35,000 flasks. About half of this amount is produced here and the balance imported in normal years.

Recently plans were announced for the reopening of the New Almaden mercury mine in California as a result of the war demand for the metal. This mine was the first in the United States and started producing in 1846. Its operations were discontinued 14 years ago.

Known in 300 B. C.

Mercury was first mentioned by a writer in 300 B. C. Since then, and until comparatively recent times, the liquid metal was believed to have magic properties.

Alchemists used it in their attempts to convert base metals into gold. Its poisonous properties and its liquid character in any natural temperature made it a metal of mystery to the layman.

In the 16th century, when chemistry and medicine became united, the medical effects of the metal were recognized. Medical authorities today use mercury and its compounds in about 35 different treatments of human illnesses.

BOEING GETS 8 MILLION ARMY CONTRACT FOR 50 FLYING FORTRESSES

Washington, D. C., April 8 [Special].—An $8,000,000 contract for 50 huge bombers was awarded by the war department today to the Boeing Aircraft company of Seattle.

The contract, which is one of the largest awarded by the war department in recent months, calls for a four engined craft of the type known as "flying fortresses." It will be known as the B-17D. It is understood that it will have a range, with bomb load, of more than 3,000 miles, and a speed of more than 225 miles an hour.

Not only is the war department ordering more big, long range bombers, but it is understood that it has so far refused to grant permission for their export to Europe.

One of the largest heavy truck orders in years—for $1,250,000—has been placed by the French government with White Motor company, of Cleveland. The order calls for 145 huge six wheel trucks, each weighing more than 25 tons, equipped with 18,000 liter tanks for petrol transport service with delivery by June 1.

Steel Production Declines After Last Week's Spurt

Steel mill operations will decline to 61.3 per cent of capacity this week, resuming the almost unbroken recession prevailing since early January, the American Iron and Steel institute estimated yesterday. Last week the rate rose to 61.7 per cent from 60.7 per cent the previous week.

GEN. MOTORS' FIRST QUARTER SALES AT PEAK

Ships 549,182 Units to Its Dealers.

General Motors corporation yesterday reported its 1940 first quarter sales were the largest for the period in the history of the company. The Automobile Manufacturers association announced in a preliminary estimate that more automobiles and trucks of all makes were sold during the first three months than in any comparable span with the exception of 1929.

Factory sales, according to the association, totaled 1,310,234 units, a gain of 23 per cent over the same period in 1939. The figure is based on an estimate of 439,100 units sold in March, an increase of 4 per cent over February and 13 per cent over March, 1939.

Put Total at 549,182.

General Motors listed first quarter sales to dealers in the United States and Canada together with overseas shipments at 549,182, against 431,057 in the same period of 1939. Sales to United States consumers totaled 419,308 units, compared with 314,178 in the similar period a year earlier.

Dealers in the United States bought 506,449 units from General Motors during the first quarter, against 375,597 a year ago.

Total sales to dealers in the United States and Canada, together with overseas shipments, amounted to 193,522 in March, compared with 174,572 in February and 161,057 in March, 1939.

March sales to consumers of this country totaled 174,625 units, compared with 123,874 in February and 142,062 a year ago. Sales to United States dealers last month were posted at 181,066, against 160,458 in February and 142,743 a year ago.

Outlook Is Favorable.

Ward's Automotive Reports in the current issue reported that an unexpectedly heavy retail demand for new motor cars is creating an optimistic situation in the automobile industry.

Production declined slightly last week with an assembly total of 101,655 units, compared with 103,370 in the previous week.

Retail sales of Ford trucks and commercial cars during March rose 41 per cent over the preceding month to reach the highest point for any March since 1929 with the sole exception of 1937. Sales to customers totaled 18,829 units, a 20 per cent gain over the same month in 1939.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York, April 8 (AP).—Specialties and motors continued their rally today, but some stock leaders sold into moderately lower territory. Gains running to 3 points for favorites at the best were reduced or canceled in many cases at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks managed to hold an upturn of 1 of a point at 51.5. Transfers amounted to 1,260,360 shares, against 1,255,440 Friday, the preceding five hour session.

With important primaries tomorrow in Nebraska and Illinois, traders lightened commitments with the idea markets might be influenced by possible clews to the presidential campaign.

Earnings forecasts propped individual stocks. Motors exhibited quiet strength from the start on reports of broadening sales of new cars. General Motors, which, with Chrysler, made a new peak for 1940, was buoyed by the disclosure the corporation's first quarter distribution established a record for this period.

Other new tops were posted for American Shipbuilding, New York Shipbuilding, Loft, United Drug, White Rock, Lockheed, and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit.

New York Bonds.

New York, April 8 (AP).—Utilities, New York traction and low yield bonds moved forward in an active market today.

Announcement of United States Steel and Texas corporation plans for refunding operations caused an immediate decline of 1¼ points in both instances, in the former's 3¼ per cent bonds and the latter's 3½.

United States government loans were generally inactive, closing from 1-32 point lower to 3-32 higher.

Chicago Stocks.

Another upward surge of prices on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday swept nine issues to their highest levels of 1940. Included were the two volume leaders, Aviation and Transportation, up ¼ point to 4⅜, and Commonwealth Edison, ⅛ point higher at 33.

Bank Stocks.

Prices of four Chicago bank stocks advanced in yesterday's trading. First National shares gained 3 points, American National 2 points, City National 1 point, and Continental Illinois half a point. Other leading issues were unchanged.

SUPERIOR AUTO TIRE MADE FROM RAYON DESCRIBED

Its Efficiency Far Exceeds Cotton, Says Expert.

Cincinnati, O., April 8 [Special].—Out of the rayon vats has come an automobile tire fiber vastly more durable than ordinary cotton fiber, the American Chemical society was told here today. On an overloaded, high speed run under high temperatures the rayon tires gave 80,000 miles of service, while ordinary tires wore out after 3,000 miles. The new fiber has a higher tensile strength than steel, it was reported.

These facts, the results of carefully controled tests covering millions of miles, were told the society by William H. Bradshaw, director of rayon research for E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

Explains Secret of Success.

"The secret of the rayon tire's success," he said, "is its ability to maintain its great strength at high temperatures." He said a rayon tire is as safe at 105 degrees as the older type tire at 75 degrees.

The new rayon fiber—called "cordura"—is twice as strong as ordinary textile rayon, he said.

"Mileage expectancy for rayon and cotton fiber tires is about the same at 60 degrees but the advantage of the rayon tire increases rapidly as the temperature rises," Bradshaw declared. "At 75 degrees it is twice as good and at 105 degrees it averages 10 times the service obtained from the cotton tire."

Another advantage of the new tire, cited by Bradshaw, is that the rayon fiber increases in strength as moisture is removed while cotton loses strength.

Fibre Made from Cotton.

The tire rayon is made from cotton, acquiring sturdy characteristics thru a sensitive process of transformation, Bradshaw said. He compared the technique of its manufacture with that employed in making piano wire, tained by this process."

"The 'stretching' process used in this procedure and in making nylon yarn, another new development, imparts increased strength to the filaments," he said. "A strength of 70,000 pounds to the square inch is obtained by this simple process."

Another reason for the tremendous resistance offered by the new fiber is its uniformity of structure and the fact it can be made in one continuous filament, Bradshaw told his audience.

Eliminate Chances of Breaks.

"In a single length of cord in a truck tire there are at least 60,000 cotton fibers," he said. "That means 60,000 breaks in the continuity of the structure. The continuous filament of rayon eliminates this handicap and permits whatever combination may be desired to obtain the utmost in resistance to fatigue, rupture, and other failure."

Rayon production, he added, has increased from 10,000,000 pounds in 1921 to 370,000,000 pounds last year. The new fibre is made by reducing the cotton to a cellulose jelly and squirting the jelly thru a pin point hole.

REICH RAILROADS STRUGGLE UNDER HEAVIER BURDENS

System Is Taxed Heavily by Demands of War.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 8.—The war has greatly increased the strain on Germany's transportation system, especially the railroads. Even in 1938 the capacity of the railroads had proved inadequate for handling a volume of traffic which has increased substantially since 1933.

The situation is aggravated by the fact that for many years railroad management has failed to increase rolling stock in proportion to the rapidly increasing freight volume. The number of freight cars declined 10 per cent between 1929 and 1937 while the quantity of freight handled increased 2.6 per cent. The 1937 tonnage was 78 per cent larger than in 1933.

New Burdens Carried.

The annexation of Austria and the Sudetenland and the incorporation of several thousand miles of track into the reich railroad system tended to increase the strain on the already overburdened system.

Deficits in freight cars on the German railroads were officially estimated at 15 to 20 per cent in relation to the 1939 volume of freight traffic.

To cope with the congestion, a bottleneck in the spectacular expansion of reich industrial activity since 1933, an unprecedented extension and replacement program has been adopted. Equipment to the value of 3 billion 500 million marks [about 1 billion 400 million dollars] is to be ordered during the next four years.

With the outbreak of the war the position of the railroads was further aggravated because they had to carry a disproportionately large share of the national traffic, much of it having been diverted from highways and waterways.

Sea Traffic Diverted.

Also, the empires' blockade made it necessary to transport overland by rail most of the goods to and from the Mediterranean, such as coal for Italy, oil from Rumania, and bauxite from Jugo-Slavia, which were previously shipped by sea via Gibraltar.

The necessity of increasing imports from the southeastern states to replace supplies previously drawn from overseas countries effected the railroads in the same manner.

The blackout has seriously delayed loading and unloading of cars and switching operations. The dispatch of thousands of locomotive engineers and other skilled employés to operate the Polish railroads has added to the difficulties of German rail operation.

Last December German railroads were able to satisfy only about 75 per cent of the demand for freight cars. The curtailment of passenger train services to about one-third of normal has failed to bring material improvement in the transportation situation.

ILLINOIS' STATE BANK TOTAL CUT 101 DURING 1939

10 Become National Units to Ease Liability.

The number of state banks in Illinois declined by 101 in 1939 with the conversion of 10 into national banks and the dissolution of 91, most of which were in liquidation or receivership. This report was issued yesterday by Edward J. Barrett, state auditor.

Conversion of the 10 was attributed to the double liability on stockholders of state banks in Illinois, one of the few states which retains it. Double liability for stockholders of national banks was removed by the banking acts of 1933 and 1935, and the change permits them to operate at an advantage, it is said.

No New Charters Issued.

The lack of new charters for state banks in 1939 also was tied to the double liability provisions of Illinois law. An attempt to amend the law in 1938 was defeated because more than a million voters failed to mark their ballots on the proposal.

One Chicago and one suburban bank were involved in the conversions. The Mercantile Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago became the Mercantile National Bank of Chicago, July 1, and the Elmhurst State bank became the Elmhurst National bank, Feb. 28.

The other eight which were changed were the State Bank of Hoiles & Sons, Greenville; State and Trust Bank, Highland; Monroe County Savings Bank & Trust Company, Columbia; Fairbury State Bank, Fairbury; Citizens State Bank of Macomb, Macomb; Central Illinois Trust & Savings bank, Mattoon; Farmers State Bank of Fairbury, Fairbury, and the Peoples State Savings Bank of Kewanee, Kewanee.

Two Reduce Capital.

Two state banks, the State Bank of Hoiles & Sons, Greenville [converted], and the State Bank of Cerro Gordo, had their capital stock decreased in 1939 from $100,000 to $50,000 and from $60,000 to $50,000, respectively.

Three others had their capital stock increased. They were the State Bank of New Athens, $50,000 to $60,000; Farmers State Bank of Fairbury [converted], $40,000 to $50,000, and the Illinois State Savings Bank, Pontiac, $50,000 to $100,000.

Remington Rand Company Unions to be Dissolved

New York, April 8 (AP).—The regional office of the National Labor Relations board today announced a settlement providing for dissolution of nine associations, or so-called "company unions," at six separate plants of Remington Rand, Inc. This ends a four year controversy.

Norway and Germany at War—German Troops Invade Denmark—Copenhagen Occupied by Nazis

Developments of the last few hours which led to war between Germany and Norway. Part of the German fleet moving thru the Kattegat attempted to force entrance to Oslo fjord but was repulsed. German troops also invaded Denmark, occupying Copenhagen. The British had been trying to cut off German supply lines from Swedish ore areas.
